Forming Habits.

Remember that the brain is the instrument through which the real personality expresses himself; and he can only express what is already written there. Consequently the external world will be just what is inscribed upon his brain, for all his actions must be dictated or directed through these brain records. you cannot saw wood with a hammer; nor can the soul play a piano with the fingers until the knowledge of piano playing is written in the musical place of the brain. You can never snow forth a high and noble personality until you have written within your skull a record of noble and holy desires; according to the tools you give it, so will the expression of your soul be. You can wind up a phonograph, and you may make it run fast or slow, but you cannot make it say anything that is not on the records. If some one had put his opinion of you on a record, even though you knew that opinion to be untrue, you could not make the record tell the truth; the only thing possible would be to make another. You have written your opinion of yourself upon your brain; you cannot be anything else until you change the record.

Why Working Woman Do Not Marry.

In an article entitled "A Substitute for Matrimony" in the February Woman's Home Companion, Anna Steese Richardson proves conclusively that the majority of business girls of today do not marry because the men they might marry do not earn as much money as they do. Mrs. Richardson speaks with authority—she has a greater experience than perhaps any other woman in America, she concludes her article thus:

"The business woman of to-day is achieving financial success at the sacrifice of domestic content and maternal instinct. Is it worth while?"

The number of statesmen who believe in foreign missions increases just before a new President is inaugurated.

Some women are awfully touchy. A widow has brought action against a paper which said that her husband had gone to a happier home.

"After one has attained a competency, money is superfluous—just like an excess of fat," says John Burroughs, the naturalist and man of letters.

Speak may be "sickish" but it isn't in it with some people who labor under the impression that they are witty. If you doubt it, just sit up and listen at times.

Dr. Leffler, a Batavia veterinarian, and Wm. Walters, a Batavia farmer, left Batavia Tuesday for New York where they will undergo treatment for the prevention of rabies at the Pasteur Institute. Both men were bitten by a horse owned by Mr. Radcley, and that the animal was suffering from rabbies there seems to be little doubt.—Batavia News.

"Goes" of Whisky.

Forty "goes" of whisky had been consumed by the prisoner, Victurion, and still he was sober—at least so he told the city coroner. "Goes" is a common term in this connection, but it lacks that appropriateness to the situation of its Scottish equivalent in the story of another big drink told by Dean Ramsay. It was at a party near Arbroath, held to celebrate the return of some of the young men who had been enemies. When the party at last broke up, at a morning hour, the perurious lady of the house, who had not been able to sleep a wink for anxiety, called over the stairs to the servant:

"How many bottles of whisky have they used, Betty?"

"Ding her them," was the answer, "but they've cooked six gang o' water."

Crowning Him.

Mr. Pogson's three sons had married and gone to settle down in different parts of the country. One day he received this telegram from the eldest:

You have a grandson. Fine boy. Ten pounds. GEORGE.

Mr. Pogson answered it at once:

Good! Buy finest baby carriage you can find and send bill to me. FATHER.

In due time the bill came. It called for $35, and he sent his check for the amount.

A few weeks later his second son sent him this dispatch:

You are the grandparent of a fine boy. Not weighed yet, but a bouncer. HENRY.

To this he responded:

Glad to hear it. Buy good, serviceable baby carriage and forward bill to me. FATHER.

Promptly came the bill. It was for $25, and he paid it.

Ten days elapsed, and then came a dispatch from the third son to this effect:

You have another grandson. Large, fine boy. Expected for you. ALBERT.

Mr. Pogson's response to this was as follows:

All right, but looks like crowding me. Am sending $125. Buy baby carriage with it. FATHER.

—Youth's Companion.

Very Lucky.

The following is a genuine essay by a ten-year-old boy:

"My life has been a very lucky one. When I was three years old I fell downstairs and cut my head. When I was five years old I was looking at some hens and a dog bit my leg. When I was eight I went with my brother in the trap, and the horse fell and threw us out of the trap; my brother lit on his feet, and I lit on the horse's back. Last year I was playing, and I ran into a survey and cut my eyebrow, and it has left a mark. One day I went into the slaughter house, and a big sheep ran after me and knocked me down. I have had a lucky life."

This cheerful acceptance of what are usually regarded as the ills of life reminds the writer of an old school fellow who took part in the fight at Elandslagte at the beginning of the South African war. After the engagement he was taken to the hospital at Pietermaritzburg. As soon as he was able to write home and ease his people, the tunic he had worn in the battle.

"You will see," he wrote, "that there are eleven bullet holes in it, but I was awfully lucky. Only six of them hit me."—Cleveland Leader.

No Indigestion or Dyspepsia

MAKES MISERY FROM AN UPSET STOMACH VANISH IN FIVE MINUTES.

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any sour stomach can be made sweet and the misery of indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night, vanish in five minutes.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome your stomach trouble five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to rift you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion. Ask your Pharmist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take one triangule after supper tonight. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with unpleasant odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for all stomach misery. He make it take hold of your food and digest it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Actual, prompt relief for all your stomach misery is at your Pharmist. Write for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure a case of Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

PASTEURIZING CREAM.

Views of L. H. Flagel, a Successful Butter-Maker of the Northwest.

The pasturization question has a great many things to it that the butter-maker won't realize until he has used one for awhile. I am satisfied to say that after a butter-maker has used it for awhile, and used it right, he would not be without one in a separate creamery, at less than having the winter when the cream is delivered only twice a week or in the spring, when the cows get out in the grass and get hold of some weeds that will cause a bad flavor in the butter.

To take an entirely spoiled cream and expect the pasteurizer to put it in a condition so it will make an all around good piece of butter is expecting too much, although it will do such cream a great deal of good.

Also, sour cream cannot be pasteurized as satisfactorily as sweet cream. You have got to be very careful while pasteurizing sour cream and not get it too hot or else it will give the butter a gritty or mealy taste like as though there was flour in it. One hundred and fifty degrees is high enough for sour cream, while sweet cream can be heated up to 170 or even higher before it gets that mealy taste.

If I could get the cream delivered perfectly sweet and free from bad flavors, I do not think I would bother with a pasteurizer, although it would improve the keeping quality, but we in the hand separator creameries will find cream every day that can be improved by pasteurizing and keep it from spoiling the whole lot.

Pasteurizing takes out most of the bad flavors in the cream that come from the feed or tanks that are not caused by germs. The germs that cause bad flavor in the cream cannot be taken out, but their growth can be checked so that when you add a good starter to your cream directly after pasteurizing and let it stand at 70 degrees for a few hours it will develop acidity enough so that you can cool it down to churning temperature and get it made into butter before the undesirable germs can renew their growth, and as butter is not a suitable germ food, it can then stand a long time at a medium temperature before it will go off in flavor, whereas the butter made from raw cream with its undesirable germs in full growth will go off in flavor much faster.

As the extra expense in pasteurizing, besides the fixtures, can be made so it will be very small in the first place. You can put on pulleys so the engine don't have to more than merely move the belt to give the pasteurizer and pumps full speed, and coming right down to saving points, you can catch the condensed steam that comes from the pasteurizer after heating the cream and use it for cleaning up. It is as good as soft water and almost boiling hot, or if you can't use it yourself, perhaps you can sell it to some washwomen or laundry during the dry time of the season when rain water is a scarce article.

It makes some extra work to pasteurize, but we must put up with that if we see a chance to improve the quality of our butter.

MAN ABLE TO WORK READY TO GIVE UP IN DESPAIR Restored to Health By Vinol

"I was sick, run-down and really had to give up work. After trying a number of remedies and several physicians, I was just about ready to give up in despair. I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it, and it has done more good for me than all other means combined. It has built me up and restored my strength until I now feel twenty years younger, and am able to attend to my work again as usual." Job Jeavons, 1036 Lind street, Wheeling, W. Va.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains tonic iron and all of the strengthening blood-making and body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil. Vinol is unexcelled as a strength creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, and after sickness—and is the best known remedy for coughs, colds and bronchitis.

We return your money if Vinol fails to give satisfaction.

The Starboard Light.

"Twice a day for a week I have been harassed by doubt as to how far a man should go in correcting the failing mistakes of strangers," said the man who enjoys looking in shop windows. "There is an art store downtown where the present window collection includes the picture of a ship. It is elaborately framed and has a lighthouse carved on the wooden strip at one side, but the artist should never have rendered marine work. He has got the red side light of that vessel on the starboard side. Two or three times I've been to the point of going into the store and asking the proprietor either to have that picture or put a patch of green paint over that red, and each time my nerve has failed me.

"I am half hoping that the false side light will cause a collision in that window which will smash the picture, and then my anxiety will be relieved."—New York Post.

Protective Coloring of Insects.

A well known little moth with pale green mottled wings is the only case in which I have myself watched the protection afforded by color at work. It was on a summer's evening when I saw this little moth zigzagging up and down with the most extraordinarily irregular flight and a bird pursuing it. Twice the bird swooped and just missed his prey owing to a sudden turn and drop on the part of the moth. And then to my great delight the moth flopped against the stem of a tree on which was growing a greenish gray lichen. The bird swooped again close to the tree, but failed to see the insect and quitted the chase. It took me an appreciable time to detect the little moth resting against the lichen and closely matching it in color.—Sir E. Ray Lankester in London Telegraph.

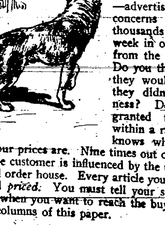
Don't Use a Scarecrow



To Drive Away the Mail-Order Wolf

You can drive him out quickly if you use the mail order houses' own weapon—advertising. Mail-Order concerns are spending thousands of dollars every week in order to get prices from the home merchants. Do you think for a minute they would keep it up if they didn't get the business? Don't take it for granted that every one within a radius of 25 miles knows what you have to sell, and what your prices are. Nine times out of ten your prices are lower, but the customer is influenced by the up-to-date advertising of the mail order house. Every article you advertise should be described and priced. Big Fire at Canisteo.

On Sunday night the Canisteo basket factory caught fire and burned to the ground. It seems the building caught before during the day and the watchman though he had it all put out, but during the early morning hours it was discovered in flames.

There was a large quantity of material burned with the building and the loss is placed about $35,000. The building was built many years ago by Albert Fuller and was at a time used as a silk mill, but for the past five years has been used as a basket factory. The basket factory was in a highly prosperous condition and its burning will be a great loss to Canisteo.
