DO IT YOURSELF

The world's life and progress doesn't depend upon the startling things. It's the every day faithfulness to the little duties that make for the better things of the world. We are sometimes led to think that the world is swayed this way and that by great thinkers and writers. The men who do great things. Now don't get the wrong notion about it. This old world is going to be—no is, just what you and I are making it to be, as individuals. Your world, or the world for you is just what you can touch. That's all. You can't hunt in Africa with Colonel Roosevelt, neither can you influence as great a number as some greater person. But you can live your life, yourself. It is the quiet influence, day in and out that counts. You must do that yourself. No one can do it for you.

Your life will make the village of Andover, the village won't make your life; for take life out of the village and the village is gone. It is so easy to look on the other side of the street and think of something the "other fellow" can do; something he can right; some opinions he can express. But, Mr., there are some things you can do. Think it over and then don't try to proxy, but do it yourself.

Loyalty.

The other day, going down Main Street, one gentlemen said to another, "Well, there is one thing about it, Andover people are loyal. Now, there is much truth in that and scores of people will say that is true. Let any body get into trouble, no truer, kinder people live than Andover people, and that's commendable. But loyalty should go further than that. It should reach down into the very fiber of community life. Loyalty to each other. No person ever rose to dizzy heights upon the ruins of other people's character or reputations. Loyalty to friends—that's what counts. To be loyal when the rest of the folks don't know it. Where there is no applause in sight. Loyalty to one's own self respect. Practical loyalty can be shown again and again in patronizing Andover's merchants. That's practical loyalty. In a community like ours we depend upon each other. Money circulated gives more business to the merchants. The merchant spends more with the people and then every body catches the spirit of loyalty to Andover's industries. Only a few years ago, not a whistle blew at the noon hour. Not a dollar from outside sources came in. It was "dog eat dog." Now there are weekly pay rolls and through the financial stringency our industries have passed, what if there is a little let up now. Don't get discouraged. Be loyal. Stand by There never was a night but a morning. Be looking for the morning. Be loyal and let the world know that Andover people are loyal to the care of Andover's future.

TAG ON WHITE HOUSE ROOF.

Charlie Taft and His Chums Frolic About the Chimneys.

If there is any place in or about the White House unexplored by Charlie Taft it probably is the top of the flagpole, and this yet may be discovered by the strenuous young son of the president, who is lending to the new administration all the strenuousness that marked the last.

He recently chose the roof of the White House for a playground, in which "tag" figured. Accompanied by some fifteen of his classmates in the public school, he took possession of the broad lawn immediately behind the White House and organized a scrub game of baseball. When the youngsters tired of that they disappeared in the state, war and navy building, just across Executive avenue, those who had been observing the game were astonished to see the boys appear on the roof of the White House. Charlie Taft's tousled head coming through the scuttle first.

For a half hour they slid down the steep slopes of the roof and dodged and hid behind chimneys. The danger of falling to the ground was lessened by the presence of a marble balustrade that runs around the eaves of the house. Both the president and Mrs. Taft were absent from the White House during the afternoon.

BIG CLUB OF OPTIMISTS.

Chicago Rabbi Wants One Composed of Every American City's Citizens.

"An optimists' club, composed of all the citizens of every city in the United States, should be organized," said Rabbi Tobias Schanfarber in his sermon the other morning at K. A. M. temple, in Chicago. "The croaking, querulous pessimist walks about the earth with his eyes closed, finding fault. Things are far from perfect, but the first hour of the twentieth century is the best hour the world has ever looked upon.

"Dirges of despair are heard as to industrial conditions, and we are far from having reached the wished for goal. But there is none who is so foolish as to deny that there is a growing better feeling between capital and labor.

"The nations of the world are not as harmonious as they should be, but today the whole civilized world is living together in peace. Religious prejudice has not been wholly wiped out, but there is no period in the history of the world when conditions were as hopeful as they are today. On the whole, there is warrant for taking a cheerful view of conditions that confront humanity."

C., and California.

FREE FISH FOR THE POOR.

Andrew H. Green's Wish to Be Carried Out by Worcester Authorities.

A long cherished wish of the late Andrew H. Green, known as the father of Greater New York, is to be carried out at Worcester, Mass., according to a recent announcement by Edwin P. Curtis, chairman of the parks commission. Mr. Green once said he would like to see the large pond on his summer place in Worcester overrun with fish that he might give them to the poor.

Since he left his estate to the city of Worcester for a park fishing has been prohibited. Now the pond is overrun with carp, and Chairman Curtis stated the other day that city employees could fish there daily, and their catch would be distributed free to the poor.

Stiffer Golf Course For Rockefeller.

John D. Rockefeller, the oil king, has become so expert as a golfer that the course at his big estate, Forest Hill, near Cleveland, O., is not stiff enough for him. In order to make it more difficult he has decided to add ten bunkers. More will be built later.

Mr. Rockefeller spends hours every summer day at Forest Hill driving the golf balls. He is no amateur with the sticks, as he has proved on many occasions. He recently wrote his superintendent that he wanted the course ready early, and he wanted it "stiff."

Place to Get Them.

"He has been a minister for forty years."

"What a wonderful collection of buttons he must have."

CLUBWOMEN'S LEAGUE.

How Spokane Women Intend to Work on the "Block" System.

Clubwomen of the city are bent on making Spokane, Wash., a spotless town. Each block in the city is to come under the supervision of one club member, who, after having reclaimed it from litter and unsightliness, will improve the premises by planting flowers, shrubs and trees.

The Current Events club is the first woman's organization to take official action. At its meeting the other day at the home of Mrs. Albion McGhustin in the Elm apartments the communication of A. L. White, president of the park commission, urging the women of the city to take an active part in the city beautiful campaign was considered and the following committee appointed to make arrangements: Mrs. Albion McGhustin, Mrs. J. C. Barlow and Mrs. A. M. Riley.

Although none of the other clubs has taken official action, yet a general plan of the work was outlined by Mrs. H. W. Allen, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, at a luncheon rendered Miss Alice Cunningham Fletcher by the Woman's club.

Mrs. Allen recommended the use of the "block" system, and several of the women present expressed their willingness to take charge of more than one block if necessary.

To Raise Biggest American Flag.

Flag day, June 14, will probably be marked by the raising of the largest flag in the United States in Lincoln park, Chicago, before the statue of the martyred president. The American Flag Day association has issued an appeal to the various patriotic associations to raise funds for it.

Beautify!

The town beautiful movement should appeal to every householder in each community. A little work and very little expense on the part of each citizen would work wonders in the improvement of a town, and everybody would share in the benefits.

Small town people sometimes fall into the habit of running down their own place in conversation. This is almost as bad as saying you wish you had married another woman instead of your wife. If you said that and your wife heard of it, probably you would have a chance to get another woman. But you'll never have much of a chance to get another town until you improve the one you're in so that you'll love it for its own sake. Be kind to your home place and it will be kind to you.
