TROOPS FORM LIBERTY BELL

A Number of Andover Boys Were in the Picture. Story of the Liberty Bell

R. F. Temple is showing a remarkable picture of the Liberty Bell. The bell is made by the formation of living men training for service. Mr. Temple, John Karcanes and other Andover men were in the group.

On the 20th of June, 1918,—a beautiful afternoon—at the great army cantonment, Camp Dix, twenty-five thousand soldiers assembled and formed a living embodiment of this famed Liberty Bell.

The formation and ground measurements of this historic picture were previously prepared by correctly applying the law of perspective. Thousands of yards of tape were laid on the ground to indicate and guide the formation. The following ground measurements seem almost incredible.

Length of beam across the top 368 feet.

Width of bell at bottom, 64 feet

Length of each bolt, 395 feet.

Width of beam top to bottom, 435 feet.

Total length, top to bottom, 550 feet.

The bolt is over three times the length of the bell itself.

The length of the beam is almost six times the width of the bell.

The beam required more than eleven times the number of men required for the bell.

Number of officers and men composing the picture—25,000.

The Liberty Bell became famous in July, 1776, when the continental congress declared the independence of the United States. It was rung on this occasion, and called the citizens together to listen to the reading of the Declaration of Independence.

The Liberty Bell was cast in England in 1752, arriving at Philadelphia in August of that year. It was cracked by a stroke of the clapper while being tested. It was recast successfully in Philadelphia, and was rung on succeeding anniversaries and other festal occasions until it cracked again in 1835, when the edges were clipped and an ineffectual attempt was made to render it serviceable.

Subsequently, it was placed on the original timbers in the vestibule of the State House. It has since been an object of veneration, reposing principally in the city of Philadelphia, where it first rang out the glad tidings of the scriptural message cast upon its face: "Proclaim liberty thruout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."

It has been removed only on a few special occasions, such as the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893, and the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915, when it was placed on exhibition.

DON'T DESPISE SALTING

Little Used Method of Preserving Vegetables Has Several Advantages, Bulletin Points Out

Altho salting is less used than most other methods of preserving perishable vegetables, it nevertheless has several distinct advantages, points out the State College of Agriculture in a bulletin just issued.

The process is simple, requires no expensive equipment and helps in the shortage of tin and glass cans, as in many cases large crocks may be used for storing the salted vegetables.

The bulletin gives full directions for salting all kinds of vegetables. String beans, kohl-rabi, parsley, swiss-chard, and like vegetables, for example, will keep when packed in alternate layers of dry salt, provided enough bring is added two days after they are packed to cover them completely.

The bulletin likewise gives many recipes for the use of the salted vegetables. Here is one for stuffed green tomatoes:

Soak salted tomatoes for two hours. Remove a slice from the top of each, take out the seeds, and fill the cavity with a mixture of boiled hominy grits, barley or rice well seasoned with onion, paprika and ground peanuts. Place the tomatoes in a baking dish and add enough stock to cover them. Cover the dish, and bake it slowly until the tomatoes are tender, which will be about one hour.

Any one who may care for a copy of this bulletin may obtain one by writing the College at Ithaca for R. C. F. H. 119. The title is "Preserving Vegetables With Salt."

SOLDIER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Otto D. Davenport, 7th Division, 56th Infantry, appeared at the farm home of Floyd Crowner, near Almond, Tuesday morning, claiming he had fallen from a troop train, during an attack of dizziness, while the train was stopped for a moment near that place. Davenport had entrained at San Antonia, Texas. Mr. Crowner took the young man to Mayor Shorer, of Wellsville, who decided the better thing to do would be to place him on the next troop train. Leaving the young man in his dental office he went to the station to ascertain when a train was expected. Upon his return he found the unfortunate soldier unconscious from having drank one-half an ounce of chloro form. Dr. Ross was summoned and said he would not die, and he was placed on the train to awaken from the stupor.

The young man was nervous to the state of unaccountability for fear he would be obliged to face a Court Martial. Private Davenport is twenty-five years of age and apparently a well educated young man.

THE ULTIMATE CONSUMER

Ever notice that it is the ultimate consumer who always gets the "hot end of the poker?"

It's a fact.

The remark is prompted from watching the ice man. See him start out with a 100-pound block of ice under a blazing sun. That block is estimated to cut ten blocks of 10 pounds each — and ten blocks it does cut, but as to whether of 10 pounds each or not depends on the time and distance the ice man must travel. And the ultimate consumer foots the bill.

See the grocer order a barrel of apples. Going thru them he discovers a certain per cent. have rotted. His per cent. of profit must cover these — and again the ultimate consumer gets the hot end of the poker.

Poor Mr. Ultimate Consumer must not only pay store rent and clerk hire, insurance, etc., but he must make good all losses from decay, deterioration and waste, and, as if all these were not enough, he must pay the bad debts of the fellow who is on the beat.

The remedy?

Be a producer or a middleman.

THE FLOWER EXHIBITS.

A Department in Which Many, Young and Old, Are Interested.

Lovers of the beautiful as well as the practical will find much to interest them in the Flower Department of the coming State Fair. This is particularly true of the gentler sex and of the young people of both sexes.

The competition for premiums in this department will be spirited beyond all precedent, and every one who visits the exhibit will be delighted by the unusual array of choice offerings. Through the agency of the State Department of Agriculture large quantities of flower seeds donated by leading seedmen of the state have been distributed among the youthful applicants who propose to compete for fair premiums with the gay products of their labor and their care. It is learned from the Albany department that no less than 460 children have obtained seeds in this way and for this purpose.

Practically all of this group will have entries under class 170—i. e., for the best vase of late flowering pink asters. To show how flower raising for the State Fair exhibits has been combined with the more practical war work it is stated by the Agricultural Department that there has been many inquiries about class 169, the special premium in the class being a collection of annuals grown in a war garden with twenty-five vases named. Classes 81, 82 and 83 in the amateur section are also going to be very popular. In the amateur class 100, the best collection and display of roses consisting of 100 blooms, will be one of the features of the Fair.

With a bumper crop of wheat, oats and other grain ripening in the field around Tonawanda, some of which farmers have already begun to harvest, there is a pronounced scarcity of help and it is feared that much of the crop will go to waste unless relief is afforded. Some farmers have received promises of help from friends in the city for a few days, but this will be insufficient to get the entire crop in. The hay crop on many farms is still in the field because of inability to secure labor.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY

DON'T HAVE A SLACKER IN THE KITCHEN

Stand sentry over your gas range and you will be aiding in the fight for democracy just as truly as the soldier who stands sentry on the battle line of France. Every day enough gas and, therefore, enough coal is wasted thru lack of care in the kitchen to bunker a ship. Now when every lump of coal is needed the housewife should conscript her range and see that it works for the country instead of for the gas company.

Take these tips and help save coal, cash and country.

Don't light the gas before filling the teakettle.

Don't heat more water than cooking requires.

Don't use large burner when small one would do, or small burner when simmer would do.

Don't leave flame on full after food boils—water boiling hard isn't any hotter and won't cook food any faster than water just boiling.

Don't let flame extend beyond utensils.

Don't leave gas on from one process to another.

Don't heat oven too hot or too long beforehand.

Don't leave oven burners lighted until baking is finished — the oven will retain enough heat to bake for 5 or 10 minutes after the gas is shut off.

Don't use a yellow flame — it means dirty burner or dusty burners—clean burners give a flame which is hotter.

Be careful in planning meals as always to make use of heated oven space.

Statistics show that on the average people use all the burners on a gas range about twenty minutes for each meal. If watchful care two and a minutes' use of each burner be saved it will mean a saving to the country of 10 per cent. of the coal and incidentally it mean a saving to you of 10 cent. of the cost of cooking. In many cases it will be possible to do even better.

NEWS PRINTING HOUSE

NEW NATIONAL CAPITAL

Views of Interest From the Seat of Government by the News Special Correspondent, J. E. Jones.

AFTER THE WAR

Washington, D. C., July 27.—It is the business of the Government to look ahead! Already Washington has plans in operation to provide against the day of the home-coming of American soldiers.

War Risk Insurance is one of the greatest plans of modern times. Vocational employment for wounded soldiers is an actuality, and plans are being perfected to take care of ten thousand incapacitated men, who are likely to return from Pershing's Army this year.

Secretary of the Interior, Franklin K. Lane, has called attention to the fact that at the close of the Civil War America met its problems of caring for the returning soldiers by throwing millions of acres of homestead land open for entry. The so-called Homestead Law was signed by Lincoln in the second year of the war, and out of our wealth in lands we had farms to offer millions of veterans. But the bountiful domains of the sixties and seventies have passed, and as Mr. Lane puts it: "We have no land in any way comparable to that in the public domain, when men turned westward with army rifle and 'rolled blanket' to begin life anew."

Even tho the rich homestead lands have all been taken, the fact remains that there are still arid lands in the West, cut-over lands in the Northwest and in the states bordering the Great Lakes. The swamp-lands of the South can be made available thru their proper development. However, the best opportunity for new home-seekers doubtless lies in the Colorado Basin. "That project, I believe, will appeal to the new spirit of America," says Secretary Lane, who comments: "It would mean the conquest of an empire in the Southwest. It is believed that more than three millions of acres of arid land could be reclaimed by the completion of the Upper and Lower Colorado Basin Projects. It has been officially estimated that more than fifteen millions of acres of irrigable land now remain in the Government's hands. This is the great remaining storehouse of Government land for reclamation."

The Drift to Farms

Harkening back to the days of the Civil War, there is an abundance of evidence that soldiers returning from military life showed a decided preference for agricultural pursuits. The soldier life in the open appears to be conducive to the selection of the farm for a vocation. History challenges the prediction and prophesy so often heard that our soldier boys will flock to the great cities upon their return from Europe. They have never shown any tendency to coop themselves up in apartment houses and tenement flats.

The United States is no longer ignoring the experiences of other countries, and governments, and we have ceased to drift along in a self-satisfied manner. A study has been made of the agricultural conditions of Denmark, Ireland, New Zealand and Australia with reference to the land situation, and it has been determined that organized community development in these countries has succeeded in turning the drift of population from the cities toward the farm. The Interior Department, under Secretary Lane, is urging that the Government seize the opportunity for immediate duty with reference to beginning new irrigation projects and reclaiming vast tracts of land that can be utilized after the war, so that the United States may be able to say to its returning soldiers: "If you wish to go upon a farm, here are a variety of farms, of which you may take your pick, which the Government has prepared against the time of your return."

Secretary Lane is very insistent that the United States get busy right at this phase of national development.

Government Employment Service

Under a new form of employment that has been worked out thru the United States Department of Labor, a centralization of employment service for the purpose of recruiting and distribution of labor for world production has gone into effect. The new United States employment services proposes to blanket the United States, and a large staff has been employed at Washington, while thruout the country Community Labor Boards have been established. Beginning with August 1, it is the purpose of the Government to control, as far as possible, the employment of labor. Ten thousand private employment agencies thruout the United States will be forced out of business.

Similar work has been carried on successfully in England since the beginning of the war.

President Wilson, in a message upon this subject dated June 17, said: "California draws its unskilled labor from as far east as Buffalo; New York from as far west at the Mississippi; thus labor has been induced to move fruitlessly from one point to another, congesting the railways and losing both time and money." Labor has been urged by the President to respond as loyally as heretofore to any calls issued by the Government employment service for voluntary enlistment in essential industry. The President adds: "And I ask for both alike to remember that no sacrifice will have been in vain if we are able to prove beyond all question that the highest and best form of efficiency is the spontaneous co-operation of a free people."

"Fundamental Laws"

United States Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, in discussing Government ownership said that he had been a student of the subject all his life, and that he had likewise devoted some time to the study of "fundamental principles and the underlying policies of Socialism." Senator Watson declares that in the legislation aiming at taking over huge property interests that the doors have been opened to a policy "which, it relentlessly pursued, means inevitable changes in our form of Government."

In the new policy extending Government control over our large industrial institutions, Senator Watson discovers the danger that "fundamental law" is being swept aside, and he declares that the basic ideas of Government are being overturned, with the result that we are led to suspect that our institutions are a myth, funda-mentals a hallucination, and law and order irrelevent terms." He asserted that our whole fabric of Government may even become only "a Utopia that can never be realized among men."

Senator Watson predicted that unless Congress checked the onrushing tide that all factories engaged in the manufacture of munitions and supplies will eventually be laid hold of, and all the industries of the United States, save along agriculture, will soon pass under Government control. Senator Watson voiced the opinion that conditions are heading the United States towards Socialism. Public dissent is easily quieted, he points out by a course like that adopted with the railroads, when an increase of $[illegible] in wages of railway employees followed speedily upon the heels of Government control.

Profits and Prices

Profits may be considered from two angles:

1st—Their effect on prices;
2nd—As a return to investors.

When profits are small as compared with sales, they have little effect on prices.

Swift & Company's profits are only a fraction of a cent per pound on all products sold, and if eliminated entirely would have practically no effect on prices.

Swift & Company paid 10 per cent dividends to over 20,000 stockholders out of its 1917 profits. It also had to build extensions and improvements out of profits; to finance large stocks of goods made necessary by unprecedented requirements of the United States and Allied Governments; and to provide protection against the day of declining markets.

Is it fair to call this profiteering?

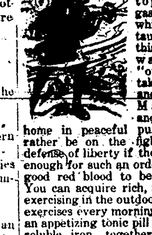
Over the Top with the Gas.



Is this a monster from Mars, or a soldier of modern warfare? It is only one of our "Sammies" going over the top with the gas and the fire which the Huns taught us in this barbarous war. To go "over the top" takes courage and strength. Many men and women at home in peaceful pursuits would rather be on the fighting line in defense of liberty if they felt strong enough for such an ordeal. It takes good red blood to be courageous. You can acquire rich, red blood by exercising in the outdoors, breathing exercises every morning, and taking an appetizing tonic pill made up of a soluble iron, together with native herbal extracts, called "Irontic." These "Irontic" Tablets were discovered by Dr. Pierce and his able Staff at the Surgical Institute, and were invariably found to give vitality to the blood and strength to the nerves. The person who might be run-down, with watery blood, face pale, or those warning signals of distress, such as pimples or boils, immediately begins to have a better appetite, soon gets over the "blues" and becomes bright, buoyant and happy. Take "Irontic" for a few weeks, and notice the difference. You feel full of vim, vigor and vitality, instead of tired, worn-out and dull.

Druggists sell "Irontic" in 60c. vials, or send 10c. for trial pkg. to Dr. Pierce' Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD IN 1918

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly. No Other Newspaper in the World Gives so Much at so Low a Price

The value and need of a newspaper in the household was never greater than at the present time. We have been forced to enter the great world war, and a large army of ours is already in France. You will want to have all the news from our troops on European battle fields, and 1918 promises to be the most momentous year in the history of our universe.

No other newspaper, at so small a price, will furnish such prompt and accurate news of these world-shaking events. It is not necessary to say more.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Andover News together for one year for $2.25.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

Rentable property is the "most advertisable thing" in the world.
