Of Interest to Farmers

DAIRYING INCREASES OF NEW YORK STATE

Milk Producers Have Been Replacing Beef Cattle, Hogs, and Sheep in Empire State During Past Decade

The last census shows dairy cattle to be increasing in New York, but beef cattle, sheep and swine have decreased in numbers during the past ten years, according to the department of agriculture economics and farm management of the State College at Ithaca.

New York had 2,144,244 cattle in 1920 compared with 1,984,874 in 1910, or an increase of 8 per cent. in the ten years. The number of dairy cows, however, including heifers over one year old, was 1,730,082 on January 1, 1920, an increase of 14.6 per cent. over the number of "cows kept for milk" reported on April 15, 1910.

Beef cattle decreased rapidly during the ten-year period, until the business of raising beef has practically disappeared from the state, attracted westward by the lower prices of both feed and dairy products.

Sheep Also Decrease

Sheep also decreased in spite of war-time prices for wool and mutton, from about three and one-[illegible]lions in 1850 to less than [illegible] thousand in 1920. There [illegible] decrease of 4.5 per cent. [illegible] ten years.

Hogs have decreased from a [illegible] over 1,00,000 in 1850 to 600,[illegible] in 1920. Since 1900, New York has averaged about thre[illegible] to every farm; as compared [illegible] last census of figures of [illegible] to a farm in Iowa. T[illegible]on, say the economists, [illegible]wa and New York farme[illegible]ted their farming to tran[illegible] marketing, and feeding co[illegible] their respective states.

Boys and Girls of State Who Have "Achievement Pins"

The junior project workers thruout the state are now turning in the records of their completed projects. Some already have won local, county or state prizes. The majority, however, cannot be in this group of prize winners, but each boy or girl completing a project does receive from the State Bankers Association, thru the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, the silver and enamel seal pin bearing the four-H clover, and the lamp of knowledge—the emblems of the junior project work.

The "achievement pins" have the dark green four-leaf clover with the letter H in the center of each leaflet, signifying in its four-fold repetition the training of head, hands, heart and health, which all project workers receive from work well done. The lamp of knowledge is in the center of the clover leaf, symbolizing the fact that the work is definitely educational; that the four-square training comes thru educational activity.

At the rate project leaders are requesting the pins from the college, when all are distributed there will be 10,000 boys and girls in at least 2,000 different communities of the state wearing this year's achievement pin. There are other thousands wearing the pins distributed in previous years.

MILLBROOK BOASTS VENERABLE TREES

Foresters Locate Some of Oldest in State on Dieterich Estate in Dutchess County

Some of the oldest plantations of forest trees in New York State have been discovered at Millbrook, Dutchess County, by workers from the forestry department of the State Agricultural College at Ithaca, according to the local paper, The Mirror and Reading Table. The record trees are on the Dieterich Estate at Millbrook, and are in a forest preserved principally as a home for game, where deer and other animals have the freedom of the woods.

Members of the forestry department of the college are available, usually thru county agents, to look over forest plantings and give advice and help as to the benefits of this long-time crop.

RAISING MARKET PEAS MAY PROVE PROFITABLE

This Year's High Prices Arouse Interest in Next Year's Crop — Harvesting Big Item

[illegible] production of market peas has [illegible] to the attention of a [illegible] of New York farmers [illegible] cause of the high prices [illegible] of 1921. These prices, however, were entirely due to a poor crop; yet in any year, according to the records in vegetable gardening at the College of Agriculture at Cornell, market peas offer opportunity for a quick growing cash crop that is also a soil improver.

Furthermore, the authorities say that it can readily be fitted into the farm work on many dairy farms. They say that much of Central New York is adapted to the production of peas, and that this has been demonstrated in sections of Madison, Otsego, Onondaga, Cortland and Chenango Counties.

Even tho it may be fitted into the plan of operation on dairy farms, however, the labor requirements at harvest time, and the problems of marketing must not be overlooked. The county agent or the State College will be glad to give further information to any interested in the possibility of growing market peas on their farms.

BILL BUMGARDENER'S VIEW

(From Arch Bristow's Hay Rake)

Old Bill Bungardener attended the big picnic at Grand Valley and stayed to watch the dance at night. Bill doesn't get out into the world much. He was deeply impressed with the girls' clothes at that dance.

"Some of th' ladies' clothes I seen up there puts me in mind of a bob-wire fence," he said.

Somebody asked George how any girl's frock could remind him of a barb-wire fence.

"Well," says George, "it's this way—they appear to protect th' property without obstructin' th' view."

PRINTER WAS PEEVED

Charley Harris, Ft. Worth, Texas, printer, got slightly peeved at a letter from a doctor who wanted bids on several thousand letter-heads, different sizes, different grades, different colors and wanted the printing form held standing. So Charley took his typewriter in hand and wrote:

"Am in the market for bids on one operation for appendicitis. One, two or five-inch incision—with or without either—also without or with a nurse. If appendix is found to be sound, want quotations to include putting same back and canceling order. If removed successful bidder is expected to hold incision open for about sixty days, as I expect to be on the market for gallstones at that time and want to save the extra cost of cutting."—Kansas City Post.

Plant Juice for Fish Bait.

Late in the dry season, when the rivers are low in the heart of Africa, the Gwari, who inhabit the central Soudan, set out on prolonged fishing expeditions. The natives who live on the banks of the rivers are proficient fishermen, taking great pride in their work, but the village Gwari are not very exacting in their methods. They go out for the final results rather than for the pleasure of the sport.

They pour the juice of locust tree pods into the pools, to which the streams have shrunk, and this causes the fish to leap out of the water. Wildly they leap, flopping out on the dry river bottom as often as not, but the excited natives do not wait for the fish to catch themselves. They lean over the shallow water, finding great delight in snatching the leaping fish as they flash from the river.

This custom of using the "jump juice" seems to have been handed down from time immemorial among these strange Africans.

Squirrels and Robins Fight.

A fierce lawn battle between forces of squirrels and robins has been observed in Mount Vernon, N. Y. The squirrels and robins on Eleventh avenue, Mount Vernon, have declared war upon each other, and each day the battles are wageing bigger and fiercer. Residents on Eleventh avenue have for some time thrown peanuts on their lawns for the squirrels and bread crusts for the birds of the neighborhood. Three weeks ago a few robins after eating the bread helped themselves to peanuts, and the squirrels ran away. The first day a few squirrels attacked the robins and there was a short but furious fight in which the squirrels saved their suppers. The second day about twenty robins swooped down and the squirrels were routed. The third day the squirrels returned reinforced by an equal number and there was a battle royal for a quarter of an hour. It was a drawn battle, both sides leaving most of their peanuts and crusts on the field.

Service, Protection and Cost

When a buyer of insurance is thinking about the company or agency with which he will place his insurance, the three points uppermost in his mind are: Where can I get the most prompt and efficient service, the nearest to absolute protection and at the same time, moderate and reasonable in cost.

If this same buyer of insurance will take the time to check up, or make a comparison, using Service, Protection and Cost as his standard of companies represented by this agency with those that are not, he will eventually insure with us.

150 Healthy Holsteins in the November 15-16 Sale at Hornell, N. Y. 150

ALLEGANY COUNTY Holsteins in four months' testing under Federal and State control have proved 97.78 Per Cent. free from tuberculosis, slightly over 2 Per Cent. showing any trace of disease.

STEUBEN COUNTY closely approaches this extraordinary record.

BOTH COUNTIES are putting into the coming sale the pick of their finest animals, selected by competent judges representing the two counties. In many herds the committee has been given absolute freedom of choice. The result is a better lot of animals than were ever before listed for a sale in the Allegany-Steuben district.

THE BIG BANQUET to be an evening feature of the great 2-days' sale will be paid for by the County whose offerings record the lowest average in the sale.

YOU ARE INVITED to the Sale and the Banquet.
