THE GREAT TORNADO.

A dispatch from Louisville Ky., dated March 28, says:

A disaster unprecedented in the history of this state has overtaken this, the second city of the South, and tonight her people are sick with the agony and awe that can come only by the sudden loss of homes and friends by one of nature's great convulsions. At an hour when hundreds of families were seated at their tables for their evening meal and thousands more thronged the streets on their way to places of amusement a tornado, which had been for hours gathering strength as for a final effort, swept down upon this city with relentless fury.

It lasted only fifteen minutes, but when it passed on across the Ohio to scenes of further desolation it left in its track the ruins of 2,500 peaceful homes and massive business buildings and the dead and dying bodies of half a thousand stricken citizens. Two thousand men are injured and the city tonight is one vast hospital. To recount the details of this disaster is at present beyond the power of man. Our people are stunned and dazed, and even those who lost no dear relatives are shocked beyond the power of systematic and intelligent action by the ruin and carnage which has come upon us with such sudden... Soon after the storm the streets have been ... with maddened peo... hither, they ... are searching ... have found ... death, and ... hoping ... Still ...

...ster, only to turn away sickened beyond speech when they have seen and felt the horror of it. Days must pass before the story can be told. The pathway of the tornado is like a hideous gash across the breast of one of the fairest cities of the South, through which is oozing the life blood of many of her best people. The storm entered the city with its fullest fury at about 8 o'clock in the evening, at Eighteenth street, moving diagonally in a path five blocks wide, until it reached Seventh street. From the first crash of the hurricane until it rolled away, leaving the city wrecked and mutilated, with its street full of dead and wounded, there was an irrestible panic.

Such desolation as prevailed in this narrow path no city has known in this century from such a cause. Every building, tree, telegraph pole, or other object which presented any resistance to the howling gale was swept from its track like so much chaff, until to-day nothing intercepts the view from one end of the tornado's path to the other. On an area of 3 miles long and half a mile wide not a stick or stone is standing to-day where but yesterday some of the proudest structures in the land reared their massive heads.

The approach of the storm was heralded by a sharp, cracking sound, like the snapping of gigantic trees, followed instantly by a succession of tremendous roars that made men turn pale with fear. Almost instantly those who were without the storm's path knew that something terrible had happened, and then began a mad rush for the scene. At its borders the crowd were met by other crowds, crazed by fear and fighting fiercely for egress from the death trap through which they had so recently passed. Shrieks of agony and fear, mingled with the hoarse shouts of excited men, filled the air and made themselves heard above the loud roar of the storm fiend as it continued its deadly work. It was not until the massively built portion of Seventh street was reached that the full force of the disaster began to dawn upon the incoming crowd.

From that point to the Ohio River the scene was terrible and beyond description. Immense business blocks were crushed like eggshells; enormous tobacco warehouses, built to withstand tremendous pressure from without and within, had crashed to their foundations, spilling their golden contents in a yellow torrent upon the streets. Here and there from beneath a pile of debris protruded a mangled hand or foot, and the running, panting mob put their fingers in their ears to shut out the awful cries their fears would not permit them to heed.

When West Market St. was reached, however, a sight met their eyes the horror of which made them forget even their deadly fear. There lay a mass of ruins where once had stood Falls City Hall, one of the largest lodge and meeting places in the city. The crowd stopped and shivered with the terror of the thought as they remembered that within that building there had gathered for social purposes, not an hour before, over 300 men, women and children.

Where were they now? The answer came quickly and terribly in the shrieks of the wounded and groans of the dying, and no man in all that crowd left that fatal spot until he had done his part in the rescue with all his might and main.

The loss of life and property is at present incalcuable. It will require long days of painful search and computation to reach a proper estimate, but it is certain that no such havoc has been recorded before for an American city from such a cause. To add to the sudden horror of the scene, fire came to seize upon the shapeless ruins and consume the helpless wounded and disfigured dead.

To Our Subscribers.

The special announcement which appeared in our columns some time since, announcing a special arrangement with Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., of Enosburg Falls, Vt., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," whereby our subscribers were enabled to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address to B. J. Kendall Co., (and enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) is renewed for a limited period. We trust all will avail themselves of the opportunity of obtaining this valuable work. To every lover of the horse it is indispensable, as it treats in a simple manner all the diseases which affect this noble animal. Its phenomenal sale throughout the United States and Canada, make it the highest authority. Mention this paper and address as above.

EVERY FAMILY

wastes or gives away during the year more less kitchen grease, each pound of which in a few minutes be converted into two pounds of the PUREST SOAP, far better than can be found on sale. The only expense for making ten pounds of this soap, with lye and one-half pounds of grease or oil, is the trifling cost of one can of BANNER LYE, to be found at nearly every grocery store.

Dissolve the contents of one can of Banner Lye in three and one-half pints of cold water and pour slowly into five and one-half pounds of lukewarm grease, stirring from time to time until it thickens into a mushy condition; then pour into any kind of mould to harden, a child can make it, and full directions are found back of each label.

A can of Banner Lye will do the work of twenty-one pounds of washing soda, besides its value for scrubbing purposes, cleansing and disinfecting of Sinks, Closets and Waste Pipes, destroying the Filth and Disease arising therefrom, making it simple as one of the greatest boons the housekeeper has fallen heir to.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo. B. Everman of Dansville, N. Y., arrived in town Monday evening and will make their home for the future among us.

James McGinty and W. J. Penny have been taking a trip through Kentucky. Mr. McGinty was in Louisville the day before the big tornado. He returned home last week. Mr Penny has not yet returned.

Miss Flora Comstock has received from a friend in New Orleans a fine collection of shells, seventy-seven in number, obtained from the Gulf of Mexico, and also specimens of holly, moss and missletoe.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Richardson and Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Willard of Belmont, were in Andover Saturday evening and attended Mr. Burwell's temperance lecture. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson visited Sunday at the home of his brother, J. W. Richardson.

The Indian Creek Well Shot Again.

This morning the Indian Creek Oil well was treated to another dose of nitro-glycerine. The first shot of which the NEWS has made mention, was exploded in the fourth or "stray" sand, at a depth of about 1,220 feet. To-day's shot was in the regular third sand at a depth of 1,050 feet.

A Successful School.

Stannards Corners, N. Y., March 26. —Our teacher, Miss Cassie E. Cunningham of Greenwood, has returned to her home for a short vacation. She has had great success in our school for the past seven months. A fine entertainment was given by her school Tuesday evening. Music was furnished by the Stannards Corners band. At the close of the exercises Miss Cunningham was presented with a beautiful plush Album by her scholars, which shows the respect they have for her. G. A. M.

The Temperance Meetings.

The temperance meetings conducted last week by D. H. Burwell were wonderfully successful. Every evening Harman's hall was crowded by people anxious to do what they could for the temperance cause. Each evening the enthusiasm became greater, and it is safe to say that Mr. Burwell has accomplished more good than was ever accomplished in Andover before in the same length of time. 400 names were signed to the pledge, and they are not all names of persons who have heretofore been abstainers. Many of the names represent persons who have been in the habit of indulging more or less extensively in intoxicating drinks, and we believe those persons have made a start in the right direction with the intention of sticking to it.

The NEWS congratulates Mr. Burwell, the Good Templars, the W. C. T. U., the signers and the people of Andover generally upon the good work done, and we hope and believe the influence of those meetings will be felt in all the years that are yet beforeus.

The L. & P. Reorganization.

A circular letter from President Edward Mahoney announces that the Lackawanna & Southwestern Railroad Company has become the owner of the Lackawanna & Pittsburgh and of the Hornellsville & Lackawanna, and will operate them under the above name and title on and after April 1st. The Central Construction Company, which has been engaged in the reconstruction of the properties, and in the temporary operation of them will, on that date, cease such operation and surrender control. The principal office of the company will be at Angelica. W. H. Badger is appointed general superintendant; Charles H. Hammond, general freight and passenger agent; M. S. Blair, auditor and assistant treasurer. These appointments to take effect April 1st.

Monday's Wreck.

Traffic on the Western division was blocked Monday morning by a wreck at Hinsdale. Train 81 left Hornellsville in four sections and while going down the grade near Hinsdale, the fourth section, in charge of Conductor Lowe, ran into the rear of the third section in charge of Conductor Tracy. The crash was quite severe and wrecked the engine of the fourth section and the caboose and seven cars of the third section. The engine which was wrecked had just been taken out of the shops after receiving a general overhauling. It was one of the heavy moguls, No. 528.

The wrecking train was sent from Hornellsville in charge of Conductor LeRoy. Supt. Maguire accompanied the wreckers to direct the work of clearing the road.

Train No. 3 was first ordered over the Buffalo division, but it was found the damage was not as bad as at first reported; and No. 3 was sent up the Western as usual. No one was hurt as far as we have learned.

The Canisteo Oil Well.

The Canisteo Times says: Since our last issue, notices have been circulated among the stockholders, calling a meeting on Friday of this week for the purpose of electing nine directors, and for the purpose of deciding upon the shooting of the Thomas well, and the drilling of more wells.

For several months past, matters as regards the oil or gas in this vicinity, have been rather dormant, and but very little if anything has been done.

A few days since, however, as stated in a recent issue of this paper, the gas which has been in use all winter by E. Smith from the Thomas well, began to grow less until but enough for the supply of one stove was apparent. The theory was that the well had continued to fill with oil until it had reached the point where the gas came in, shutting it off. This theory it seems was correct, as some of the directors and other citizens went to the well last Friday, measured it and found the oil within three hundred feet of the top of the well, making about eight hundred feet of oil in the well. The quality of oil is well known without any description at this time, further than to say that it is of the best, one barrel being worth more than two of the ordinary crude oil.

A LADY'S PERFECT COMPANION

Our new book by Dr. John H. Dye, one of New York's most skillful physicians, shows that pain is not necessary in childbirth, but results from causes easily understood and overcome. It clearly proves that any woman may become a mother without suffering any pain whatever. It also tells how to overcome and prevent morning sickness, and many other evils attending pregnancy. It is highly endorsed by physicians everywhere as the wife's true private companion. Cut this out; it will save you great pain, and possibly your life. Send two cent stamp for descriptive circulars, testimonials, and confidential letter sent in sealed envelope. Address Frank Thomas & Co., Publishers, Baltimore, Maryland.

INTERESTING NEWS.

The robins, sweet harbingers of spring, have put in an appearance.

A fierce snow storm passed over here Sunday, and the weather was quite cold Sunday night.

Isn't it about time for youngsters to commence hiding eggs for Easter?

Miss Mabel Clark, who is attending the graded school at Andover, was at home over the Sabbath.

Last week Tuesday Misses Vieve Jacobs and Ettie O'Dell went to Alfred Center to visit friends.

Miss Mabel Bassett, who has been very ill of rheumatism for several days past, is reported slightly better.

Though still weak from the effects of his recent illness, Rev. Jared Kenyon is able to do the most of his chores.

Rev. H. D. Clark is nearly sick in bed from the effects of a bad cold and an affection of the throat.

Mrs. Ruel Hamilton is reported worse, and there seems to be very little hopes held out for her recovery.

Miss Anna Crandall, who has suffered from an affection of the eyes for nearly a year past, so much so that she was unable to attend school, went to Alfred Center last week Wednesday to attend the spring term of Alfred University.

A young lady, whose name I fail to learn, who has been at work for Mrs. Ruel Hamilton, is reported to be so ill that it is necessary to have watchers. With the long illness of his wife and the present illness of his help Mr. Hamilton is having a hard time of it, as his farm work requires his attention during the day while he has to be up with his sick wife the most of the time nights.

A SCRAP OF PAPER SAVES HER LIFE

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds.
