We Sell Our $30 and $40 Suits and Overcoats at $30.00 and $40.00

Our $30.00 and $40.00 Suits and Overcoats aren't worth a cent more than $30.00 and $40.00. Probably you're sick of all this talk about stores "giving things away." We are, too.

Stores can't operate without patronage and profit — and one doesn't help much without the other. We, too, get a profit, a rightful profit — no more.

But, try to find any other store that will give you what we will at $30.00 and $40.00.

You'll know yourself when you step in and look at these $30.00 and $40.00 Suits and Overcoats.

Hamilton B. Williams

He was a wise man who affirmed that every question between men is a religious matter — finally. For, it is impossible to hold any relation of any sort, social, cultural, political and religious, that does not cross the bridge of the spiritual.

The world will be enormously illuminated when there is general recognition that there is no religion—only a life. The irreligious man's religion is his failure to conform to standard living. The religious man is simply attempting to gain a certain eminence in life. Life is the only consideration of importance.

It is no more possible for a man to have one set of rules for his religious exercise, and another for his social, business and political exercise than it is to have two minds.

A man's life permeates every expression of his being. The end of fellowship with Jesus is to learn the spirit which made Him what he was. Technic comes from exercise.

Christianity is designed to save the world, not to snatch a few fortunate souls out of the world for some hypothetical heaven. Heaven must only be — harmony. We are not likely going anywhere; there must be growing — which is far better.

If one know that he fulfils the Will of God by failing in with God's program he is equipped for business so the fields, the shops, office, school house, streets become holy places — and the word and deed sacramental by service.

God asks that we fulfil His plan simply what man should give his fellow man. And we have a right to expect of God the fulness of his energy. If we insist that a standard man recognize universal brotherhood and serve and live for the development of all — we insist that God is also under the obligation of His infinite love!

I AM I

I am I. Scalpel Me down to wisp of wind,
The very ghost of my breath declares
Its immortality.
I am I. Pile Himalays upon Me
I shall write out in the Spring —
Though I burrow though the flower-roots.
I am I. I shall emerge from a conflagration
Of all elements, singing.
Plunge Me into abysses of darkness
It will not be darkness where I am I.

I know where God is.
He is at the end of the Trail
Of Hunger and Thirst and Wanting.
There is that is I that dares
To siege all gates that may be Between Me and God's Dream of Me.
If it is not God that calls Me to adventure
I is I playing a God bravely.
Surely there must be Gardens sweet
Along the River Road, or I should not have dreams.

THE U. S. WEEKLY MARKETGRAM

Latest Price Quotations Received From the U. S. Bureau of Markets Covering Produce and Feeds

(Washington, D. C., for the week ending November 14, 1921.)

RICH BANKER BLACKMAILED

Bogus Nobleman Tells How He and a Pretty Woman Lured Millionaire New Yorker Into a Wicked Trap

The bogus "Count" Gregory, who preyed for so many years on American fashionable society, did not bother with any small game. The victims whom he robbed and blackmailed included some of the greatest of the country's millionaires, some of the most prominent of its social leaders.

One of his most notable victims was a great New York banker — many times a millionaire, a man who is a power to-day in the financial world. "Count" Gregory cleverely played on the banker's fondness for pretty women and finally blackmailed him out of a small fortune.

This was only one of the bold exploits which the bogus nobleman accomplished with the aid of a British army officer's charming wife. Into her arms the wicked count delivered victim after victim, and when she had fleeced them, she divided the spoils with him on a fifty-fifty basis.

Just how the wicked trap was set for the rich New York banker, just how beautiful Alma Hayne supplied the alluring bait for it is all told by "Count" Gregory himself in Next Sunday's NEW YORK AMERICAN.

Not in years has any series of newspaper articles created a more profound sensation than these confessions of how a former stable boy passed himself off as a nobleman, worked his way into the innermost circles of fashionable society, and then blackmailed and robbed his admiring patrons.

Don't forget that you get the confessions of this prince of adventurers only in the NEW YORK AMERICAN. A new chapter in the story of his surprising career, told by "Count" Gregory himself, appears every Sunday, and each one is more fascinating than the last.

PEPTO-MANGAN KEEPS BLOOD PURE

Growing Children Need Plenty of Red Cells In Blood

When the young body is growing, children frequently experience weakness. Girls and boys sometimes play too hard and over-tax their systems. They become pale, weak and sickly. They lose their appetites, become languid, and are not able to make progress in school work. "Growing too fast" is often true. It is most important to keep the blood of growing girls and boys in a healthy state.

Pepto-Mangan keeps the blood pure. The red cells in the blood are increased. They carry life-giving oxygen to all parts of the body, and wholesome youthfulness blooms again in clear complexions, bright eyes and buoyant spirits. Sold both in liquid and tablet form by druggists everywhere. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package. Adv.

THANKSGIVING
and we're mighty thankful

It isn't hard to find things to be grateful for this Thanksgiving. Dollars are not quit so plentiful as they were, to be sure, but a dollar will buy almost twice as much as it did a year ago.

High prices are vanishing. Nowhere is there better evidence of that than in the stores of Hornell. Hornell merchants were quick to take their losses and slash high-priced goods down to levels where people could afford to buy. That is why the stores of Hornell are brisk and busy, and to-day filled with clean new stocks bought at the present low wholesale prices.

Thanksgiving means the holidays are near. Kin will gather from far and near—happy home-comings everywhere. The old house will surely need new furnishings, bits of furniture here and there, things to lend cheer for the merry holiday.

All the family will need new things, too. Shoes, wraps and clothing of winter weight must be had now. Can't put off fixing ourselves up if we want to. Hornell stores bid you a very hearty welcome this week. They are loaded with new and interesting things modestly and fairly priced. You will enjoy a day spent in shopping in the bright, modern shops where courteous and helpful sales people will do their best to please you.

A visit to Hornell for a day of shopping will be as much fun as Thanksgiving Day itself.

The next meeting will be held at the Klan Alpine house.

The meeting of the "Agora" Friday night was held in the [illegible] rooms of the library. Prof. [illegible] gave a paper on the drama [illegible] ancient Romans, Miss Anna Cowan a paper on their daily life and [illegible] toms, and Miss Helen Smalley [illegible] selections from "Centuries Dinner." It is hoped that a number of students interested in classical work will come out to the meetings.

The Footlight Club at its Friday night meeting voted into membership Dean Titsworth and [illegible] Bleiman. Plays will be discussed at the meeting this week.
