APRIL 9, 1890.

[illegible] have been issued at [illegible] for the arrest of [illegible] have been implicated in the [illegible] roads last November.

Thomas Hogan, foreman in the Erie shops at Elmira, disappeared last Saturday night, since then nothing has been heard of him. He was in Hornellsville when last seen and had considerable money in his possession.

Superintendant Bell of the Western New York and Pennsylvania was in Angelica last week conferring with officials of the Lackawanna and Southwestern. Arrangements were completed for through freight traffic between the two lines, and as soon as the Lackawanna is in good working order seventy-five cars a day will be run through from Belfast Junction to Wayland.

It is just learned that Harper's Ferry, Henry county, Ky., was almost completely destroyed by the recent tornado. The village, composed of less than two dozen houses, is a considerable distance from any railroad. All the houses were in the path of the tornado. Men, women, and children were buried beneath the ruins. Not a house remained standing, and the surrounding country was covered with the wreckage.

The News has received, in book form, the proceedings of a Council in Plymouth church, Brooklyn, for the installation of the Rev. Lyman Abbott, D.D., as pastor, and ordination and installation of Rev. Harvey S. Bliss as assistant pastor, held January 16, 1890, with a sermon by Lyman Abbott, D. D. on the New Theology. The book contains portraits of the late Henry Ward Beecher, Lyman Abbott and Howard S. Bliss. A large number of eminent divines and delegates were present at the Council, representing many of the principal churches in Brooklyn, New York and other cities. The book contains the complete proceedings of the Council, including supper speeches by many of those present, the whole forming a most interesting and instructive volume.

Philadelphia and New York capitalists have organized the Steel Tubular Car Company, which intends building a town near Bradford, Pa., to exceed in importance, it is said, the town of Pullman, near Chicago. The company is interested in an invention that is expected to revolutionize the present construction of passenger cars, and has bought from 3,000 to 5,000 acres of land near Bradford, where the car works are to be established. The invention provides for a frame work of steel tubing so arranged as to withstand the severest shocks of collision or derailment, the object being to produce a practically indestructible car, secured agains telescoping by a series of rigid longitudinal tubes, and injury from derailment or overturning by a series of tubular hoops, forming a portion of the framework.

Valuable Hints on Macadam Road Building.

James Owen, County Engineer of Essex county, N. J., to whom is due the remarkable good highways around Orange, has the following to say of the construction of macadam roads in Engineering and Building Record.

I obtained my early experience in this station, in the construction of turnpike roads in Brooklyn, which the thickness of pavement was never less than [illegible] inches, laid on a bed of twelve inches of sand, and was undoubtedly a Trustworthy pavement. When, however, I had to follow in New Jersey, I found a more exemplary system. I decided on a supply of 2½ inches eight inches in depth, and then inches of broken stones between 30 and 40 miles were constructed of this depth in the avenues radiating from Newark through the Oranges and Montclair. They have stood the wear and tear for sixteen years admirably, of course with proper repairs, and only in two or three instances did the foundation ever blow up. These roads were country roads, and really main arteries, but when the local committee decided to build their own roads, the divergence of opinion and lack of crystallized sentiment led to the adoption of anything from 4 to 12 inches and the result has been in the same ratio as the thickness. The Oranges, East, West, and the city, have laid their roads 10 to 12 inches in thickness, and the uniformly good condition of the roads is proverbial. Bloomfield and Montclair have been building theirs 6 inches, and the difference is remarkable; ruts quickly appear, holes are common, and they look as they are, cheap roads. In these cases, however there was an attempt at a pavement. In other townships, like Clinton, Milburn, and parts of South Orange, no attempt has been made further than to spread four to six inches of broken stone on the natural soil, and the result shows that it is to a certain extent a waste of money. The only advantage accruing in such a road is to keep the wagons from getting mired, but as a means of travel they do not reach a very high order.

"In the red sandstone formation of New Jersey, in which all the roads mentioned are laid, there are critical periods, especially when the frost is coming out, when it seems absolutely necessary to have a foundation of some sort to keep the roads from breaking up, and only in specially favored localities is it possible to keep a six inch pavement without rutting unless there is a sharp fall to the road. In the latest road built in this section, at Bellville, I adopted a rule of making the thickness of pavement as follows: For grades flatter than 1 per cent., ten inches; between 1 and 4 per cent., eight inches; and over 4 per cent., six inches. This is the thinnest construction advisable in this locality with any certainty of good, permanent results, unless the roads are merely built as a preventive from miring instead of for travel.

"In conclusion, I wish to deprecate as strongly as possible the idea of doing cheap work in road construction as in my experience there is more money wasted in these attempts than is generally realized. A community if educated to a proper standard, will prefer to spend $1 well than 50 cents in make-shifts, and it should be the duty of every engineer to guide them to that end.

Pin Money.

Pin money is a lady's allowance of money for her own personal expenditure. A witty English judge once said that "women were either kissed out of it or kicked out of it." Long after the invention of pins in the Fourteenth century, the maker was allowed to sell them in open shop only on the 1st and 21st of January. It was then that the court ladies and city dames flocked to the depots to buy them, having first been provided with money by their husbands for the purpose. When pins became cheap and common, the ladies spent their allowances on other fancies, but the term "pin money" remained in vogue.—Detroit News.

"Planting" Sponges.

If Professor Oscar Schmidt, of Gratz, in Styria, is to be trusted, the sponge trade is on the eve of new developments. He declares that he has succeeded, by breaking off pieces of the living sponge and planting them in favorable places, in procuring in three years excellent sponges of large dimensions. The experiments have thus proved a financial success. The result of his labors so far have been the production of 4,000 sponges at a cost of £9, including the interest for three years on the capital expended.—New York Telegram.

The latest invention destined to drive people out of employment is a singular automatic contrivance, "a wage paying machine," which facilitates greatly the paying of wages in large business houses, enabling the recipient at the same time to count accurately and promptly the money which is paid to him. The mechanism is very ingenious, making it impossible for any one to receive an utmost speed and to the exclusion of errors.

Let it Pour.

The other day, while the rain was pouring down, a citizen ran to a passer-by to borrow an umbrella. The person thus applied to, who was himself quite wet, lent the umbrella.

"Raining, isn't it?" queried the first.

"Hey?"

"Raining, isn't it?"

"I'd like to see you a moment," was the reply. "Come upstairs."

The two passed up, traversed the dark hall to the darkest corner, and then No. 2 turned to No. 1 with:

"Do you take me for an infernal idiot?"

"Why, no, of course not."

"Do you suppose I carry an umbrella around to keep the sun off, this time of year?"

"No."

"I'm carrying it to keep the rain off, am I not?"

"Of course."

"Well, then, it rains. You know it rains. Everybody in town knows it rains. Now you go on and let people alone."

"But—but"—

"That's all. You let it rain. She knows her business. You just attend to your own affairs and let the weather alone. Good day, sir."

And he went clumping downstairs and left the other to fellow at his leisure.—San Francisco Wasp.

Treatment of Cancer.

A new treatment of cancer advocated by Dr. J. Mortimer Granville consists in very frequent administrations of papain and thallin and their combination in the form of pills. The aim is to get absorption of the drug, not local action on the stomach. In cancer of that organ Dr. Mortimer Granville gives, besides the pills, papain suspended in water with thallin and an alkali. The patient must be fed exclusively on a vegetable diet. The vitality of the morbid growth seems to be depressed by saturation with the thallin and papain, locally, and this is effected by applying a strong paste of the two drugs in combination, or, where practicable, by their inunction.—New York Telegram.

Phonographic Records of Temperature.

A novel method of determining the temperature of the air at great heights has been proposed by a German physicist and is to be adopted by the Berlin Society for ballooning. Small balloons are sent up at night, each provided with a thermometer arranged to give flashes of light by the closing of an electric circuit when certain temperatures are reached. A so called "phototheodolite" is effected by the light and gives a photographic record of the temperatures, while the corresponding altitudes are indicated in a mechanical way. A more accurate idea of the rate of decrease of temperature with height is expected with this method.—New York Telegram.

A Corean Superstition.

The Coreans are extremely fond of animals, and tell endless stories about them. Once upon a time, a courtly lady fell in love with one of the palace officials, a man named Kim. The intrigue was discovered, and she was put to death. But her spirit became an oriole, and this is why to this day the bird is always singing "Kim-pul-lah-go, Kim-pogo-sip-so," which means, "Call Kim; I want to see Kim." And Corean women and children always feel sad when they hear the oriole's plaintive note.—Montreal Star.

IS CONSUMPTION INCURABLE?

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with abscess of lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an incurable consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jesse Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung troubles. I was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at Brainard's drugstore.

A LADY'S PERFECT COMPANION

Our new book by Dr. John H. Dye, one of New York's most skillful physicians, shows that pain is not necessary in childbirth, but results from causes easily understood and overcome. It clearly proves that any woman may become a mother without suffering any pain whatever. It also tells how to overcome and prevent morning sickness, and many other evils attending pregnancy. It is highly endorsed by physicians everywhere as the wife's true friend and companion. Cut this out and you will save you great pain, and possibly your life. Send two cent stamp for descriptive circulars, testimonials and confidential chart sent in sealed envelope. Address Frank Davies & Co., Publishers, Baltimore, Maryland.

I HOLD IT TO HIS LIGHT.

The man who tells you confidentially just what will cure your cold is prescribing Kemp's Balsam this year. In the preparation of this valuable medicine for coughs and colds no expense is spared to combine the best and most approved remedies. Just a bottle of Kemp's Balsam to the light and look through it seems to be bright, clear look that compares with other remedies. Price 50c and $1.

wastes or gives away during the year more or less kitchen grease, each pound of which could in a few minutes be converted into two pounds of the PUREST SOAP, far better than can be found on sale. The only expense for making ten pounds of this soap, with lye and one-half pounds of grease or oil, is the trifling cost of one can of BANNER LYE to be found at nearly every grocery store.

Dissolve the contents of one can of Banner Lye in three and one-half pints of cold water and pour slowly into five and one-half pounds of lukewarm grease, stirring from the start until it thickens into a mushy condition; then pour into any kind of mould to solidify; a child can make it, and full directions are to be found back of each label.

A can of Banner Lye will do the work of twenty-one pounds of washing soda, and besides its value for scrubbing purposes, for cleansing and disinfecting of Sinks, Closets and Waste Pipes, destroying the germs of disease arising therefrom, makes its systematic use one of the greatest boons the housekeeper has fallen heir to.

In fact we don't think it possible for anybody to make better butter. Some time ago we visited Mr. Richardson's creamery and stated at that time that Mr. Richardson, with the facilities at hand and with his knowledge of the business, together with his well-known quality of neatness, should be able to produce an article that would be second to none, and the sample above mentioned proves that he does just that.

Friday's Hornellsville Press says: "Three young Hornellsville men who were in Almond last evening, were obliged to walk home, as all trains had left before they got ready to return. The found the railroad track more desirable than the highway for walking and having secured the right of way proceeded homeward. They had only proceeded a short distance east of the picturesque little town when they discovered a mail pouch lying at the side of the track. They carried it to this city and delivered it to Postmaster Tubbs at his residence about midnight. It was the Almond pouch which the mail carrier had caught and carried for some distance when it dropped."

Where is Lilly Peterson?

Miss Lillian Peterson who disappeared so mysteriously from Jamestown, N. Y., some time ago is still among the missing, not the slightest clue to her whereabouts having been discovered. About a week ago it was rumored that she was in Scio, but investigation proved that she had not been there at all. The papers have been filled with all sorts of theories as to her disappearance and many rumors of clues that seemed to point to the discovery of her whereabouts have been hunted down only to find them valueless. The outlpt to Chautauqua Lake has been dragged and every nook and corner of the surrounding country searched with no result. Pictures and descriptions have been sent broadcast and detectives both amateur and professional have been working every clue. A report reached Jamestown yesterday that Miss Peterson was in Wellsville and The Reporter was telegraphed to investigate. A thorough search of the town revealed nothing of importance that would throw light upon the mystery, although a rumor of her having been here and gone away was found to have been heard.

Deputy Sheriff Jennings, of Chautauqua, came here on train 8 this morning and went to Hornellsville. It is getting to be a remarkable case and the anxiety of the friends of the young woman in such a matter must be terrible.—Friday's Wellsville Reporter.

ELM VALLEY NEWS.

The general health of the people in this vicinity is improving.

Mr. Dell Howland is reported a little better.

Miss Lottie Stratton has returned from Nile, where she has been spending the winter.

Miss Sarah Tucker has returned from Belmont where she has been staying the past winter.

Married, by Elder J. Kenyon at his residence, Sunday, April 6, 1890, Mr. Birney Wilson and Miss Mary Darling, both of Whitesville. They are to be congratulated.

The new cheese factory belonging to C. F. Potter of this place is rapidly being pushed to completion preparatory to commencing the manufacture of cheese for the season of 1890.

I was misinformed regarding the sick woman at Mr. Hamilton's last week. Instead of being a young woman she is old one with a grown up son, and her name is said to be Hungerford.

It is reported that there are several cases of whooping cough in this neighborhood among adults and children.

Mrs. Ruel Hamilton is being treated by Dr. A. J. Remington of Whitesville, our new Supervisor. Her case is a critical one and if the doctor succeeds in restoring her it will be almost a miracle.

SOME GUMPTION.

WISPS FROM WELLSVILLE.

Everything has been very quiet here since town meeting, and, although it is evident there is a strong under current of feeling over the issues of that day, it is kept carefully beneath the surface. But once in a while it will crop out, as for instance, it is rumored that a prominent whiskey dealer, passing on the street a solid deacon of the church talking with a friend, politely lifted his hat and calmly remarked "send up the big jug next time, Deacon, for my time is nearly up, you know." The same dealer in his unique advertisement guarantees his temperance friends the utmost secrecy in their purchases. Nevertheless there is a band of earnest and determined temperance workers, who have brought the question to a point where there is no sitting on the fence in Wellsville any more, and although it has been mighty hard work they have generally tumbled off the right side, though there have been many wry faces and stammering speeches; but they couldn't sit, the pickets were getting too sharp, and now if they only don't try to crawl through any holes! But the "band" means to stop up every hole and crevice, and considerable money has already been collected and signed to that end, or rather to prosecute illegal selling in the future.

Our newly elected President has returned from his Kentucky trip safe and sound, setting at rest the hearts of those who feared he would not be on hand for business.

A little ripple of excitement occurred one day last week when a Jamestown detective appeared on our streets looking for lost Lilly Peterson, whom, it was rumored, had been seen here. But rumor was wrong again, although a strange trio made their appearance here about ten days ago—two masculines and a feminine—ostensibly to canvass the town for Colgate's perfumes; engaging board of a well-known private family, but somehow it was no go, and the climax came when masculine No. 1 slid out taking all the perfume with him, leaving his companions behind with no money, no perfume, and no board bill paid. But No. 2 was equal to the occasion and a few tears judiciously shed down on the farming community, brought from the pockets of a few big-hearted business men the wherewithal to vamoose, which they did, and now Wellsville cannot get any more Colgate's perfume except at the drug stores and other places where they sell it.

Of course it is moving time in Wellsville, but we will never try to tell who are changing their location for we were down on Main street the other day, and came home under the impression that every family intent on change the corporation was moving—but they were not, as found out afterward that a few of the old residents could be found where they had previously lived.

The rooms of the Y. M. C. A. were formally opened Saturday afternoon Rev. Hubbell and others giving addresses in the evening. They are fine
