At a special meeting of the Andover W. C. T. U., held Monday afternoon, Oct. 27, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That, since four-fifths of our teachers are women, we recognize the especial fitness of the nomination of Miss Carrie Rogers and Miss Ruthem Smith for the office of School Commissioner, being assured of their ability to worthily fill the position. That we give them our moral support, regretting our lack of the more potent ballot, and ask every man who believes in the advancement of women, to give them his vote.

There is one thing at least that the tax payers in Allegany county do not pay too much for. That is the printing of the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors in pamphlet form. In Erie county the contract was given to the Buffalo Express last week at $2.40 per page for 2,000 copies. In this county 3,500 copies have been issued, and last year the price was less than $2.00 a page. At the rate paid in Buffalo this county would pay $3.00 or more per page for 3,500 copies, and it is worth that to do the work and do a good job. A "combination" among the publishers in this county who can print the Proceedings would be a legitimate transaction.

The commitee appointed to select a location for the state house of refuge for women have decided that the institution shall be located at Albion. Hornellsville worked hard to get it.

Clerk of Board of Supervisors.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

More and more is the weight of scientific testimony growing against the use of Alcohol as a medicine. At the late annual conference of the British Temperance League, the veteran medical temperance pioneer of Great Britain, Dr. F. R. Lees, read a paper upon 'Science and Alcohol,' in which he said: "General experience, which is the foundation of social science, continues to confirm the great truths of our movement. Life is lengthened, disease is lessened and health is improved by the practice of abstainence, and on the other hand superstitions about drink and its value are dying out, and light is at last finding its way into high and fashionable quarters. Whether in recreations or in ordinary works, whether in cold or warm climates, whether in battle or in peace, whether on sea or land, the folly of drinking alcohol, and the advantages to mind and body of abstainence, are becoming acknowledged more widely."

Mrs. Judge Merrick, of New Orleans, writes in a private letter: Margaret Houghrey, the bread woman of New Orleans fame, otherwise known as Margaret the Good, was loved by everybody for her noble, disinterested, lavish benevolence, which was poured forth like the sunshine regardless of country, race or religion. She could not write her name, but put the sign of the cross on all her documents. "By this sign conquer" might well be said of her, for if ever there was a christian she was one. She never owned a silk dress or wore a glove but went about in her calico gown and old-fashioned sun-bonnet, when we had the awful overflows of our great river, and gave loaves of bread to the hungry. I cannot tell how much money she made or how much she gave away: but she worked hard and was prosperous, all the time giving unceasingly, so that she did not leave a very large fortune—I should think about $160,000. Doubtless she gave away over half a million in her lifetime, as has been somewhere stated. Margaret was first a milk-woman and then a bread woman. She had a large steam manufactory of bread, crackers, &c. She was a Catholic, but at her funeral the leading Presbyterian minister or the city officiated, as well as the priest, something unparalleled in the annals of Protestant and Catholic history.

This world bein' such a big place and so many different sort o' things in it, you can generally find in it the particular sort of game you set out to hunt in the mornin'. If you set out to hunt beauty and goodness—if you take good aim and are perseverin'—if you jist track 'em and foller 'em stiddy from mornin' to night, and don't get led away a-follerin up some other game, such as meannes and selfishness and other such worthless head o'cattle—why, at night you will come in with a sight of good game. You will be a noble and happy hunter. At the same time, if you hunt all day for faults you will come in at night with sights of pelts. You will find what you hunt for.—Josiah Allen's Wife.

Snow fell Monday morning.

Buy Sancuta coffee at Beebe, Williams & Co's.

Friday is your last chance to register. Don't forget it.

Election next Tuesday. The weather is preparing for it.

The Elmira Gazette says "The Dead March!" We don't believe it.

For rent—The Elmer Davis house on Chestnut street. Apply to L. C. Bentley, Andover, N. Y.

The Good Templars cleared $5 at the supper held at the residence of H. E Miner Saturday evening. It ought to have been $25.

Lost, somewhere about the village, a cable chain 16 or 18 feet long. Parties finding and returning to this office will be properly rewarded.

The ladies of the I. O. G. T. will serve a free lunch of coffee, sandwiches, &c. at H. P. Benton's store on Tuesday, Nov. 4.—election day.

The NEWS is not up to its usual standard this week. The demand made by advertising for this issue compels us to leave out considerable reading matter.

The board of registry in district No 1 registered 33 names Satifrday, a total of 281 in this district. In district No 2, 29 names were registered, a total of 265 in this district, and a grand total of 549 in the town.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Presbyterian church will hold a "guessed" social at the residence of Mrs. Phillips, one week from next Friday evening, Nov. 7. This social will be conducted under a new plan, which will be interesting and pleasing to all who attend. A good Presbyterian supper will be served. Everyone is most cordially invited.

The hall over the gas office is being fitted up and will be occupied by Seaman Post, G. A. R, Lincoln Camp, S. O. V., and the Ladies Relief Corps. The interested parties have named it Union Hall, and a subscription has been started to assist in raising funds for furnishing the same, which, we are glad to say, has been generously signed by our townspeople.

We doubt if there is another register in Allegany county containing the name of as old a voter as the one in district No. 1 in the town of Burns, which contains the name of James Lockwood aged 97 years.—Canaseraga Times. Andover as usual beats the record. The name of Gideon Hallowell is on the register in district No. 1 in this town, and he is 101 years old.

W. C. Lever has engagements for a great many auctions this fall. Next week he has three—on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday. The NEWS prints most of the bills. Lever is the best auctioneer, and our bills are the best that can be had anywhere. The two make a great combination. Those intending to have auctions should make a note of this. Bills printed on short notice.

We hardly deem it necessary to call your attention to the big 'ad' on the first page this week. In addition to our regular list, Mr. Burrows sends out five hundred extra copies of this issue. They will be circulated all over this part of the county, and the enterprising merchant "on the corner" is sure to reap a large benefit from the investment. Why shouldn't he? He has the largest stock of goods in this section, and people find that it pays to buy of him. People from other towns can save their railroad fare and more than enough to pay for their time, by coming here to buy their fall and winter goods. Read the ad. again, and read it carefully. It means money in your pocket.

Mrs. Frisbey, questioner.

J. C. Cartwright of this place has just been allowed a pension. He draws over $900 back pay and $14 a month hereafter. The claim has been pending ten years, and although those who were familiar with Mr. Cartwright's case knew that it should have been allowed long ago, yet the difficulty of securing proper evidence has delayed the matter. Mr. Cartwright's many friends here and elsewhere will congratulate him upon the final success of the claim.

For Farmers to Consider.

EDITOR OF ANDOVER NEWS:—As a farmer not counted in the organization known as the Farmer's Alliance, I wish to submit the following question for your consideration and the consideration of the readers of the NEWS. Provided the Farmer's Alliance should succeed in their plan of buying goods, and selling the same within themselves, thereby doing away with all the stores now doing business in Andover, thereby obliging the several merchants and their helpers to go elsewhere to do business and get work, how many of the traveling salesmen, who now number many thousand in this county, would be seen in the village of Andover, how could a public house live, in fact, how can schools, churches, and public institutions of any kind be maintained in a village without any people to patronize them? My observation for the past twenty years in this town has been that over one-half the farm products produced here have passed through the hands of the merchants, who certainly have better facilities for getting market prices than the farmer, thus being a mutual benefit to each other. Now we would ask these same people, how much more or how much less, per acre, would a farm, located 1, 2, or 6 miles from a live village, be worth, with the village itself depopulated, or in other words dried up? If some of your readers will figure this out for me they will greatly oblige
