
When accident taps a worker on the shoulder and calls "Time Out," it may be for a day, a week, a month—or forever!

Every year time runs out for some 16,000 workers, killed in action on their jobs. 80,000 are so severely injured that they may never work again. Two million are injured in greater or lesser degree. The cost to workers and industry—$4,500,000,000 annually. Over eighteen and a half million dollars every working day.

When you're inclined to be a bit careless, a little too tired to be cautious, remember, every 32 minutes some worker gets "tapped for life," every 16 seconds one is injured, temporarily or permanently. Know your job, be alert while on it. Vehicle accidents are the No. 1 killers and cause most permanent disabilities. Machinery is the principal source for partially disabling injuries, while the handling of objects knocks out more workers temporarily. Falls are occurring continuously, in all kinds of work, and cause anything from a slight injury to death.

So watch yourself at work. Think safely—use your head to save your job—maybe your life!

ED BABCOCK'S death this past week leaves a gap in the ranks of the nation's agricultural spokesmen through which you can drive a sizeable herd of the nation's food animals. H. E. Babcock was the most articulate of a diminishing corps of sound farm leaders who appraise the forest and at the same time know one tree from another.

We have heard him say that he would like to see our children fed as well as we feed our cattle, and that upon the diet of the nation, or the world, for that matter, can depend its mental, spiritual as well as its physical health. Best of all, he did things that contributed immensely to realizing these ideals.

Ed Babcock was a man who was able to accomplish many constructive benefits to agriculture. He was able to write of them, clear and convincingly. We feel that because of him and the tools he left for us to use, many men and women will follow the trails he marked, to the lasting good of us all.

WORLD FOOD problems came under scrutiny of the recent International Federation of Agricultural Producers conference in Stockholm, Sweden, recently. J. T. Sanders, legislative counsel of National Grange, represented us and also devoted part of his time as an ECA observer of agricultural work in four Marshall Plan countries. We understand he will have a more extensive report than this can be in the National Grange Monthly.

We agree with Brother Sanders that Herb Hannam, re-elected president of the IFAP, struck a responsive note in his closing remarks: ". . . the welfare of the human race depends upon winning more food from the land and sharing that food effectively and justly . . . this will require a larger measure of determination and cooperation than nations have practiced in peacetime, and perhaps the relinquishment by agreement of some small measure of sovereignty. Why not? — Everything worthwhile in the way of cooperation entails some sacrifice of self-interest. The truth is that there is no other way by which mankind can adjust his affairs to the needs of today . . . . I am not talking about a Utopia, or a super-state, but simply a cooperative approach based upon the elementary principles of living together."

Neither Too Young or Too Old

Have a variety of friends—from nine to ninety—to keep a fresh outlook on life and a broad horizon.

Specialists in family relationships say you do yourself a favor when you know people of all ages Youngsters have a fresh enthusiasm and curiosity about life—refreshing to grown-ups. Mature people often have the kind of understanding that comes with long experience in living which can help younger people over rough spots.

As you lengthen your list of friends, you'll find special benefits from knowing each one.

Getting Down To Facts

"Mother," she began, "what does trans-Atlantic mean?"

"Across the ocean," replied her mother.

Then, "Does 'trans' always mean across?"

"Yes, it does, always." And the mother added sternly, "if you ask me another question tonight, I shall send you to bed!"

The second silence lasted quite three seconds. It was broken at last by a plaintive, small voice which commented, "Then I suppose transparent means a cross parents!"
