ADVOCATE OF STAGE CENSOR.

Theatrical Managers' President Would Close Five Shows In New York.

Charles Burnham, manager of Wallack's theater in New York and president of the Theatrical Managers' Association of New York, who came out the other day with a protest against indecent plays and suggested that it would soon be necessary to have a stage censor, said:

"If I had my way, there are five shows in New York I would close.

"It is a harsh thing to say that there should be a stage censorship, but the events of the day point toward it just the same. If New York managers continue to put on the indecent shows that have drawn the crowds for the last twelve months or more, we will have a stage censor. Archbishop Farley was right. There are shows running on Broadway today to which no right minded man would take his mother, his wife or his sister. It is hard to say who is to blame.

"Suppose the New York Theatrical Managers' association were to resolve tonight that it would not offer any but clean shows. Tomorrow night some merchant or ticket speculator or ex-bookmaker would lease a theater and put on an indecent show.

"And the week after the Managers' association would forget the resolution. The other fellow would be getting all the money, and it isn't human nature to starve long for the sake of a principle."

Marc Klaw of the firm of Klaw & Erlanger said he didn't think a stage censor was at all necessary.

"There are plenty of existing laws to stop indecent shows if these laws were properly enforced," he said.

The Italian authorities at Palmi are so pleased with the assistance given by this American expedition that it has been decided to name a suburb of Palmi "Stati Unit," which means United States.

Heated Auto Steering Wheel.

An Englishman has invented a steering wheel for automobiles which should be of much value in cold weather. The wheel is hollow and holds some electric wires, which heat it so that the hands of the chauffeur may be kept warm.

Enlarging Your Business
If you are in business and you want to make more money you will read every word we have to say. Are you spending your money for advertising in haphazard fashion as if intended for charity, or do you advertise for direct results?
Did you ever stop to think how your advertising can be made a source of profit to you, and how its value can be measured in dollars and cents. If you have not, you are throwing money away.
Advertising is a modern business necessity, but must be conducted on business principles. If you are not satisfied with your advertising you should set aside a certain amount of money to be spent annually, and then carefully note the effect it has in increasing your volume of business; whether a 10, 20 or 30 per cent increase. If you watch this gain from year to you will become intensely interested in your advertising, and how you can make it enlarge your business.
If you try this method we believe you will not want to let a single issue of this paper go to press without something from your store.
We will be pleased to have you call on us, and we will take pleasure in explaining our annual contract for so many inches, and how it can be used in whatever amount that seems necessary to you.

PURE BREED ANGUS BULL

high feeding is concerned, only a few show animals are so treated, and they not to the point of luxury, write an Ohio breeder in the Rural New Yorker. Owing to their rational treatment almost all pure bred stock are constitutionally strong and vigorous and are capable of giving a good account of themselves on the pastures and in the feed lot.

The ultimate object of all pure bred beef cattle breeders is the production of excellent beef, and as soon as all beef producers are convinced that pure bred cattle can make good in competition with grades and scrubs in the feed lot and on our pastures there will then be an unlimited demand for pure bred cattle.

In our county there is a young man who has stocked up with Angus cattle with the object of raising pure bred beef. There are three excellent herds of Angus cattle here, and by watching the local cattle sales this young man was able to secure the foundation of his herd at quite low prices. He is raising these cattle under ordinary farm conditions, but keeps all his females registered, so that there need be no trouble about registration should he get sale for some of his young stock for breeding purposes or sale for some of the steers to feed for the fat stock shows. However, for the most part he has so far made the production of beef his prime object and expects to continue to do so. He recently sold several for beef at 25 cents per hundredweight advance over prices of other cattle at the time these were sold.

Such an example—and experiment, one might say—as described above

cannot help but be a good object lesson for any neighborhood. It will show what such cattle are capable of and that the registration of an animal does not necessarily imply that it is too fine to make profitable beef. High grade cattle are more profitable than the commoner kind, and if one raises his own calves and is not interested in dairying why not raise pure bred cattle for beef? Do not think that they are too fine or too costly for you on your farm, for if you are capable of succeeding with common stuff you really deserve the best, and you will find that pure bred cattle are well suited to your conditions.

Value of Pure Bred Stock.

The purchase of first class pure bred stock is one of the first lines of investment to be considered by the stock farmer who does not already possess such stock. No argument is needed to emphasize the added value of pure bred animals. They may produce no more, but their selling value is far more than their added cost of production. The greater esteem in which they are likely to be held by the owner will usually induce better care, which in turn will bring better returns. So many farmers make the mistake of shifting about from one breed to another, while the few who stand by one and strive to improve their herd seldom fail to attain success. The beginner may well afford to start with a few pure bred animals rather than a larger herd of no particular breeding.

Improving the Herd.

Dairymen who cannot afford to buy pure bred animals should buy a male calf and when raised have their best native cows served. By this method they can improve their herds at the least cost.

Some Dairy Pointers.

Feed is too expensive to use sparingly. You get no returns for the insufficient ration. It's what you feed above that that really makes you money.

The difference between the average farm cow and a really good cow is usually the difference between 150 and 300 pounds of butter fat every year.

No two cows can be fed just alike and still be fed to the best advantage. It's knowing the individuals that pays.

Some say that cows are worth more than breed, but it is well to remember that the cow makes the breed

Many a poor cow bears mute yet eloquent testimony of the high price of feed.

Every dairyman needs more alfalfa. He needs it for hay and hog pasture.

The calves' calf needs special care, but he pays well for it.

BIGGEST OF BANDS.

Leader Henneberg Is Organizing One of 203 Pieces.

Paul Henneberg, leader of the Twenty-second regiment band in New York city, is organizing probably the largest band ever got together. There are to be 203 pieces, as follows:

Fourteen flutes and piccolos, ten oboes, eight bassoons, fifty-three clarinets, twenty cornets, four fluegel horns, eight trumpets, twenty-four French horns, twelve baritones, twenty trombones, twelve tubas, four basso stringes, three bass drums, five snare drums, two sets of tympani and two harps.

Mr. Henneberg is organizing the band simply to satisfy a fancy he has had for some years. It will be extremely difficult to get so many pieces to play in harmony, but he believes it can be done. He will give a public performance at the armory on March 7.

Sculptor's Eagle Chariot Trips.

Supported by a team of trained eagles, Georges Lorin, a sculptor, proposes to make a flight from the summit of the Eiffel tower, in Paris. He says he can train eagles to fly with a man in any required direction and will have no difficulty in schooling the birds to fly with an apparatus that will carry two or three persons. M. Lorin wants twenty-five eagles for this expedition and is anxious to get them soon, so as to begin his eagle chariot trips in the spring.

Humming Bird Banquet.

A game dealer of Tampico, Mexico, has received an order from Harry J. Benson of San Antonio for 500 humming birds, which are to be served at a banquet to be given in that city. Humming birds are plentiful about Tampico, and the order will be filled easily.

To Stay Well

TELLS THE READERS OF THIS PAPER HOW TO PREPARE THE MIXTURE AT HOME AND OTHER ADVICE.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good perscription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vinclnity stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

CHAMPION YORKSHIRE SOW.

water becomes stagnant and foul and is full of disease germs, and the hog, taking this foul water into its stomach, is bound to sooner or later become diseased. Everything that can be done to keep things in first class order, letting nothing go undone, I find to be far better than any medicine that I have ever tried.

The fine champion Yorkshire sow shown in the illustration has never been beaten in the show ring. The owner says this sow was fed from pighood on a combination of shorts, corn, tankage, slops, etc. He thinks tankage a great food, tending toward great smoothness. She has produced several pigs which won blue ribbons at a number of big fairs.

FEEDING THE FLOCK.

Irregularity in This Work Means Loss in Fat and Flesh.

A good observer of sheep and lambs has made the remark that sheep are excellent timekeepers. They have no alarm clocks of their own, but seem to keep the sense of time very clearly in their minds, so clearly, in fact, that if you are disposed to be somewhat irregular in your hours of doing your farm work it would be best for you to invest in an alarm clock for your own use. In such a case you can safely charge the investment which the clock represents up to the flock.

It will pay you back with interest. In other words, there is perhaps no other animal that is more sensitive about being fed on time each day than is your fattening lamb or sheep. Noise, confusion—anything, in fact, which annoys and distresses the flock means the loss of good money making fat and flesh to you. No one should be allowed to have any part in the handling of the flock who is in the habit of losing his temper or who is rough in manner or speech when working about the flock.

As a matter of fact, so important is this matter of sheep feeding that you cannot so much as show a stranger about the shed where the sheep are being fed without the act costing you in good hard money from the loss of flesh which the distraction of the sensitive animal will produce.

Ventilating the Dairy Barn.

Every barn should have a system of flues or, if they are too expensive, cotton windows. More trouble of garget and udder disease results from sudden drafts than from any other causes. In the outgoing flue the area should be in proportion to the number of cows, about one square foot to a cow, and should be opened at the top of the barn. Inside the barn the opening in summer should be up high and in the winter lower down. The incoming flues should have the same area, but there should be more of them, necessarily making them smaller. The air should come in from the outside near the sills and into the barn from under the eaves.—Professor H. E. Cook, Lewis County, N. Y.

Treatment of the Hog.

No animal of the farm will stand as poor treatment as the hog and thrive as well, says a breeder. It can be said with the same degree of truth that no animal will respond more quickly under good treatment. By treatment I refer to good breeding as well as good care.

The Costly Scrub.

It costs no more to support the well bred animal than the scrub, and a well bred animal, be it either for milk or beef, will render better returns for the food consumed than the scrub.

SCHOOL READERS

Pictures of School Life That Will Soon Be Found in America.

The individual garden is one phase of school life that sooner or later must come to every pupil in the land. for the garden movement is growing, and interest is becoming so widespread and acute that this phase of nature study will soon be possible to the public schools of every state in the Union. Every child likes to have something exclusively its own, and at school it should have a separate garden plot just as secure and exclusive as the allotment of seats in the schoolroom.

In the individual school garden each child necessarily goes through all the operations entailed upon the practical soil tiller in preparation, planting and care. If a competent teacher is present every step in gardening operations should be fully explained to the child from the nature of the soil and its supply of plant food on to the harvest of ripe fruits from the annual plants. Each successive step and stake of development in the life history of the plant of a season should be explained.

Such a course in the school garden develops system and lays the foundation for a life study of plant life, which, next to our own, is the most important in the world, for we depend for food and various other purposes upon plant life more than we do upon animal life. Through this study only may we gleam a thorough knowledge and appreciation of the beautiful world in which we live aside from that marked, marked or "improved" by the hand of man. Close acquaintance with plant life gained from this constant contact with plants will lead to the growing of vegetables and ornamentals at home, the embellishment of the home and school premises, the planting of parks and parkways, until successive generations will have so beautified the world that they will allude to our period of occupancy as a darkened age or the period in which, having eyes, we saw not.

The great and growing city beautiful movement will advance just in proportion as we succeed in interesting the coming generation in the beautiful to be found in nature, for in no other way may we so effectually overcome or obscure the glaring artificialities of city life as by the intelligent use of the whole range of plant life from the humble, creeping grass to the lofty, aspiring tree. — Los Angeles Times.

How Women Work For Better Towns.

What are the women doing in the way of municipal housekeeping? In Massachusetts they had nine bills before the last legislature, in Pennsylvania about the same number and at least half a dozen in most of the other states—for child labor, juvenile courts, better conditions for women wage earners, temperance legislation, vacation schools, pure food, school savings banks, civil service reform, better pay for teachers, girls' industrial schools, women factory inspectors, children's playgrounds, women police matrons, anti-expectoration in public places—all for the betterment of the community, not one for "graft," not a "job" of any kind, all clean, wholesome, much needed laws.—Ida Husted Harper in Delineator.

Value of Shade Trees.

Shade trees should be planted in all towns and cities, and enough of the pavement should be removed to let these trees grow. Many old families in New England owe one a little of their longevity to their shade trees. The healthiest folk are in the northwest, where the trees are most plenty. It is well to get away from the erroneous traditional opinion brought to the United States from cloudy northern Europe that sunlight is good for people. In a measure it is; in excess, fatal.

Watchword For Tradesmen.

Organization is the watchword of the day. It is the part of system. It means force and economy. A single twig can be easily bent and broken. A bundle tied together has strength that defies the efforts of a giant. The same in organization. One merchant one tradesman is only one, cannot well bring about needed reforms. It requires united action, and this action can only be had when there is perfect and harmonious organization.

Good Way to Attract Trade.

A merchant to be successful must not depend on his regular trade alone, but must be constantly reaching out after new customers. Make your store so attractive that when a new family comes to town the first place they will want to go will be to your store.

BRINGS SHOPPERS AND TRADE
Value of Attractive and Extensive Advertising as Proved by Successful Ventura of Enterprising Storekeeper. Print Prices, Use Plenty of Space.
Many merchants who pay for space fail to receive desired results because their advertising is so poorly arranged as to attract little attention and not impress those who read it. Sometimes the printer fails to make the right kind of showing, and, while the reading matter of the advertisement may be all right, the display is such as to be unattractive.
It is always well to present prices in your space. Pick out seasonable goods and make a run on a few specialties. It requires only a little thought to fix up a few exceptional bargains in certain lines of goods. These should not be sold at a loss, but at a good profit, the matter be managed so as to get the people to call at the store, and when they call be sure to make good and prove that your advertisement means all that it represented. If you advertise cheap canned goods, cheap anything, and you know the goods are cheap, not up to the standard of such articles, tell the people so and have something just a little better and tell them the difference. There is little use in advertising to attract people to your store and then fall down in the salesmanship part. The fact that one calls at your store and asks to see certain kinds of goods is evidence that that person is in the market to buy, and it is your business to supply his wants.
Not long ago in a western town of some 7,000 population there was had an illustration of what can be done by judicious advertising. The proprietor of a clothing and dry goods store decided that he would add a grocery department. This met with the disapproval of other merchants in the town, particularly the grocers. They combined and commenced an advertising campaign directed chiefly against him. Small space was used. They were greatly surprised one morning to find that the object of their attention had in the daily paper a four page advertisement. They were further surprised when the weeklies of the surrounding towns came out with one and two page advertisements offering wonderful bargains and to pay the railroad fare of those who would purchase a certain amount of goods. For miles around the town large posters announced the great sale.
Other merchants of the town looked upon the venture as foolish and predicted that there was something wrong, a failure or a fire in sight. Nothing happened, but in two weeks' time the enterprising storekeeper, who advertised to sell twenty-six pounds of granulated sugar for a dollar when the jobbing price was more than $5 a hundred, provided the purchaser ordered other goods, did a business amounting to more than $10,000, or as much business as the average small storekeeper does in a year. Not one that but he is still doing the biggest business in the town. He advertised rightly.—Agricultural Southwest.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood
Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and misery. Therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results may follow. Your other organs may stand attention, but your kidneys must. Because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.
If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.
The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine, you should have the best.
Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle and a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.
