AFTER THE GRIPPE

Vinol Restored This Man's Strength

"Several years ago I was attacked by a severe case of grippe, which left me with a hacking cough, soreness in my chest, and bronchitis. I took nearly every kind of cough syrup sold on the market, besides medicine given me by physicians.

I received no permanent relief until my druggist asked me to try Vinol, and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured.

I believe Vinol to be the greatest blessing ever offered to the public, as it does what is claimed for it." R. E. K. Hicks, Mapleville, Ala.

The reason Vinol cures chronic coughs, colds and pulmonary troubles is because it contains tonic iron and all the healing and body building elements of cod liver oil but no oil.

Vinol is also unexcelled as a strength builder for old people, delicate children, weak and run-down persons, and after sickness.

Instructive Object Lesson.

The plan of Oak Park, a Chicago suburb, to have pictures published of unclean back yards recalls the flower show, with its instructive object lesson of the well kept yard and the yard that was used as a dump. The combination would be even more effective than a single series all of one kind. We would increase the feelings of pride and shame, give helpful hints as well as censure. That a good example does much to prevent slovenliness is shown in all parts of Chicago. It is seldom that one well kept yard in complete isolation is found. The influence generally extends to groups of lots and rouses the tin cans and other refuse in the immediate neighborhood.

Near Death In Big Pond.

It was a thrilling experience to Mrs Ida Soper to face death. "For years a severe lung trouble gave me intense suffering," she writes, "and several times nearly caused my death. All remedies failed and doctors said I was incurable. Then Dr. King's New Discovery brought quick relief and cure so permanent that I have not been troubled in twelve years." Mrs. Soper lives in Big Pond, Pa. It works wonders in Coughs and Colds, all Bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00 Sore Lungs, Hemorrhages, LaGrippe, Asthma, Whooping Cough.

School Ground Planting.

If tree planting is done as a part of the school's Arbor day exercises, some one who knows should choose appropriate trees. Persons with slight knowledge of the matter are apt to choose trees but ill suited to the purpose. Such trees are costly in the first instance and will prove costly to maintain. Too many choose trees for their striking appearance or grotesque form, whereas they should be chosen mainly for their use and only somewhat for their general appearance. The school yard is no place for experiment, and only those of approved experience should be allowed to choose the trees or superintend planting on Arbor day or at any other time.

Lumbermen on Strike

The lumbermen on the VanNostrand property near Short Tract have struck and say they will not return to work until they get their back pay. There has been a great deal of dissatisfaction on the part of the men ever since this job started. Both the woods and mill crew have entered the strike. The work is being done for the Friendship Lumber Co.

How Father Looked

Mr. Blakeslee was puttling himself in readiness, clothes wise, to attend an afternoon tea with his wife, when his small daughter appeared on the scene. As he slipped into his frock coat, the child looked up and said, "Father, do you know, when you wear that coat you look just like a minister?" Then noticing the hat-box on the stand near by, she added: "And when you put on that hat that goes with it you look just like a hack-driver."—The April Delineator.

Compete With Mail Order Houses by Advertising.

ADOPT BUSINESS METHODS

Let the People Know Prices of Your Goods—Make Advertisements Personal, Simple, Honest, Definite and Direct—Use Plenty of Printer's Ink.

In this the age of printer's ink there is just one way for home merchants to compete with mail order houses, and that is to advertise. It does no good simply to abuse the mail order houses and avails little to appeal merely to local sentiment. The mail order houses must be met both in prices and publicity. In this competition the home merchant has the natural advantages of time, of freight rates and of the local newspaper. He can deliver goods at once, whereas the order house requires weeks. He can deliver direct without transportation charges. If his home paper he has an avenue for advertising which the order house is lacking. With such factors in his favor it is his own fault if he does not win. People trade with mail order houses because they think they get goods cheaper. Experience shows that our theory this is a mistake. Consider the quality of goods sold, local merchants can and in most cases do sell just as cheaply as the order houses. What they need is to acquaint the public with this fact. They can do so through advertising.

Advertising, however, is a science. It must be done persistently and intelligently if it is to bring results. Advertising copy should be changed every insertion. It should be made simple, honest, definite, direct. It should be personal, the merchant talking to his patron. It should be striking enough to attract attention and with sufficient interest and information to hold the attention attracted. It should not only bring customers to the store, but should bring them looking for some definite article or line of articles. Shopping now is mostly done by women, and the woman shopper eagerly scans the advertising columns.

Customers of mail order houses have learned that many of the goods sold are not durable. This is the disadvantage of buying without inspection. There is another item favoring the home merchant, but in order that it may be telling the home merchant must use it. He must fight the order house with its own weapons—fight publicity with publicity, price with price. The order house makes its campaign by the use of printer's ink. The home merchant must make his campaign by the use of printer's ink. The order house tells in detail what it has to sell without the use of surplus words, but covering all points that the customer wishes to know. The home merchant must adopt the same tactics. The order house is unanimously honest in returning every cent if more than the right amount is sent, or if we have fallen, or if some article ordered is out of stock. The home merchant must show the same scrupulous honesty. The order house is most careful to give even the smallest customer to understand that his wants are being promptly looked after. The merchant must have the same prompt, businesslike way. Indifference never pays. There is nothing so wins business as business methods. Cash follows confidence. Success comes from knowing and doing. Advertising always pays if the advertiser knows how and keeps at it.

The advertiser must put himself in the reader's place. Let him think what would catch the eye of readers and what would hold attention, what would awaken in him a desire to buy and finally what would clinch the matter and take him to the store. There are some ads. one sees by cannot help reading. There are some ads. that convince one of their honesty and sincerity. They do not arouse incredulity by overstatement. They are not like every other ad., but have an individuality of their own. They cover only one article or one line and so do not confuse the reader. They are fresh, not being the same thing that has stood in the paper month after month. The ad. is the merchant's salesman on the road. It works while he sleeps. It brings in customers while he waits on others. It carries abroad his fame. It creates a market, builds a desire for goods, educates the public up to a want. It helps the town, for it brings trade from a distance. I am now talking of real advertisement, not the dead-alive thing that sometimes passes under that name. Good ad. is of the sort that hustles for business just as a commercial traveler does. It will not be denied or overlooked. It compels attention, respect and patronage. One of the most important elements in the education of a business man of today is to know how to write advertising. For such a man the money he puts into printer's ink is an investment. It counts on it as much as he does on cost price or rent or labor.

This is the way to meet the mail order houses. The local merchant has practically all of the natural advantages on his side. Local pride, acquaintance, neighborly feeling, reciprocity in business, quickness of delivery, opportunity to inspect goods, absence of transportation charges, cheaper ground rents and cheaper labor and the presence of the local newspaper, all these factors are his helpers. With these weapons he can win. But he must plan his campaign and fight with energy and intelligence. And, above all, he must use printer's ink.

JAMES A. EDGERTON.

HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE IN VINCINITY HERE WILL WELCOME

THIS ADVICE, SAYS LOCAL DRUGGIST.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, which is said to be a positive remedy for backache or kidney or bladder derangement, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed for rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

BEWARE OF THE CROAKER.

Inconsistent Incumbrance Not to Be Tolerated In Any Town.

May the saints have pity on a town or city with a croaker in it! If it has two, three or half a dozen croakers living in it, it is to be commiserated that much more. The croaker comes in two forms—dead and alive. The croaker has moss on the north side of him, no matter whether the winter be mild or severe. The moss indicates nothing especially, except that he should be removed from the community at once. The croaker always views his own town from a pessimistic point of view. He has no word of praise for any one or anything that tends to assist in the progress of the community. You tell a croaker that much is going to be done toward booming the town and exploiting its superior advantages and he will say: "Well, you go ahead—advertise it, boom it. I'd like to see you do it," with a shrug of the shoulders. "You'll never boom this town."

The croaker is generally too lazy to labor under an impression. He may have made some money in his life, but he does not live—he only exists. If he is in business and is asked to advertise, he says his goods do not need advertising, and besides, he is located on a prominent corner and everybody sees his goods as they pass. Yes, "as they pass," for they rarely go in. The croaker never gives his neighbor or fellow man credit for anything he accomplishes.

If you go to a local merchant and show him a plan or suggest to him an enterprise which is carried out will be of great benefit to all concerned and ask his co-operation and he says, "Well, who is in this? Go and see the other business men, and if they go into it I may do so, too," look out for him. He may not be a croaker, but he has dangerous symptoms. He is vaccinated, and the probabilities are that it will take unless something is done for him. He needs a hypodermic dose from the "enterprise" to cure him of the "follow your leader" habit. He is the first to expect benefits that accrue from the united efforts, energy and enterprise of others, but is the last to lend a hand. The croaker is a pusillanimous, insignificant, inconsistent incumbrance.—Shelton (Conn.) Booster.

Dyspepsia

STOMACH VANISH IN FIVE MINUTES.

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take one tablet after supper tonight. There will be no more sour risings, no belching or undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, beside there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for all stomach misery, because it will take hold of your food and digest it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Actual, prompt relief for all your stomach misery is at your Pharmacist, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure a case of Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

Why Some Trees Die.

Street trees suffer more from lack of air than from any other cause. On one side is cement walk and on the other graveled oiled or paved street. The trees usually die from an insufficient application of water, for if plenty were given the tree the soil would be fairly aerated. When water enters the soil the air is driven out, and as the water recedes fresh air takes its place. The frequent waterings will result in frequent stirings. Another cause of poor growth in street trees is lack of food. The space about the tree is limited, and seldom is fertilizer given or the substitute of soil stirred. Trees are unable to absorb mineral fertilizers except they are taken up by the roots in a solution of soil water. Many fertilizers are "locked" by frequent cultivation. Applications of other fertilizers often hasten the same process. Keeping thrifty street trees by feeding them through the scant area usually allowed in parkways may be likened to keeping a human being in robust health by feeding him through a straw. Cultivate and irrigate street trees thoroughly and fertilize little, but often.
