HEALTH FOR ALL

This column is sponsored, in the interest of better health, by the Allegany Health & Tuberculosis Association, 44 Schuyler St., Belmont, N. Y.

Who Gets TB?

Some people seem to believe that tuberculosis strikes only certain ages or physical types. There are some misinformed individuals who feel that they are too young, or too old, or "too fat and healthy" to get tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis is not discriminating. It attacks young, middle-aged, old, rich, and poor, the thin, the fat, and those with "Hollywood measurements."

Although children get tuberculosis less frequently than adults, the disease annually kills about 1,600 children in this country under 15 years of age. Very young children who get tuberculosis, meningitis, a type almost invariably fatal until recent years when the drug, streptomycin, came into use and has helped save many people with tuberculosis meningitis.

Tuberculosis strikes frequently at teen-agers and young adults and leads all diseases as a cause of death in the age group from 15 to 35.

But tuberculosis is also a serious enemy of the older age groups and more than half the deaths due to tuberculosis are among people 45 years of age and over.

There is no particular physical type which is most likely either to get or escape tuberculosis. Among its victims are tall, slim persons, the short and husky, and those of medium weight and height. By the same token, tuberculosis also attacks people, from all walks of life—students, housewives, laborers, factory workers, and professional men and women.

Since there is no "safe" age or type of person as far as tuberculosis is concerned. doctors recommend that every adult 15 years of age and over have a chest X-ray at least once a year. For the X-ray can detect signs of tuberculosis even in an early symptonless stage, among people who are seemingly healthy.

Tuberculosis is spread by people who have active TB. Most children who get the disease get it from an adult with whom they are in close contact. Parents who form the wise habit of getting regular chest X-rays are keeping a check on the health of their own lungs and at the same time are helping guard their children again TB.

FARM COOPERATIVE tax proposal by Senate Finance Committee is stirring up a hornets' nest among farm organizations such as Grange and Farm Bureau. National Master Newsom has labeled them "iniquitous" and "unsound." It should be understood that these late proposals have nothing to do with the earlier fight on whether Co-ops should be taxed. Taxable co-ops are taxed on the same basis as other corporations today, and have already given up their federal income tax exemption. This new proposal would be a deadly blow at the farmer's best marketing outlet. Granges would do well to get in touch with Deputy State Masters, who have a copy of the new tax proposals, study them, and let their voices be heard by their Congressmen. This may well increase food cost and cripple marketing facilities which benefit farmer and consumer.

GRANGE SUNDAY is a pleasant custom in many communities, where union services sometimes are held in church to bring together, in grateful recognition of harvest time, farm and town people alike. This is definitely the time to make plans for such services, either this month or in October. The Rural Church Institute at Ithaca will cooperate by sending plans for a Harvest Festival Sunday (not to be confused with the earlier 'Rural Sunday') An attractive printed program in color is available, together with suggestions for making this fine occasion one of worship and gratitude. Write the RCI at Barnes Hall, Ithaca, for details.

STATE SESSIONS at Syracuse are in the minds of New York State Grange members everywhere, as election of delegates are being currently held in the 895 Subordinate Granges over the state. This, the 79th to be held since the first provisional organization, also at Syracuse, in November 6, 1873, again brings the membership together to decide many imp utraitsensso to decide many important issues affecting farm and community not only in the state but nationally. Wise deliberation by rural America is ever an efficient and necessary yardstick.
