Angelica Correspondence.

July 18, 1869.

MR. EDITOR:—The time slips away so fast, and my weekly contributions come around so soon, and nothing going on at the "Hub." I know what to write about this week.

Our celebration last week passed off very quietly considering the large crowd, nothing occurring to offend the most fastidious, unless it was the noise and confusion, occasionally, on the several croquet grounds, gotten up for the amusement of those attending Court.

The Hotels were all full and mine host, of the Exchange, had more applications than he could accommodate, and turned away many that would have stayed if he could have given them a place to rest at night, and of course this accounts for the rush of business at the other Hotels, for every one knows "Dan," of the Exchange, to be a host of himself.

An old proverb says, "Go not to a Lawyer for every quarrel, nor for every thirst to the bowl," but I would think from the attendance to our Courts, that all quarrels were settled by Lawyers, and as for the thirsty, well, every body drinks now-a-days most, but the Good Templars of our village are doing good things in the way of reclaiming the fallen, and are trying to make men of those almost lost. Success to them.

A Court boarder at one of our Hotels last week, got up from the breakfast table, with madness depicted on his countenance, and before he could be quieted, he exclaimed in a loud voice, "I won't pay for no such a breakfast as this; no law can compel me; such tough steak it's not legal tender," which puts me in mind of the conundrum, when was beef the highest? Answer: when the cow jumped over the moon; but it could not have been much higher than in this town at the present time, nor much tougher (Send a copy of this number to Chet Eagles.)

Doct. Carver has got his windows in! I mean in the new building for the Post Office.

"Egg" sent up a balloon last Thursday, which was a success; it moved off very majestically in a Northerly direction, and if it had not been for the hard rain soon after, people in Burns, or Dansville, might have been astonished at such a "big thing" in their midst.

No Cuba paper last week, which must account for the repose of "Exit"—or else he may have gone, as his name signifies. TRIX.

DANSVILLE RAILROAD—The following from the Dansville Advertiser:

"We announced last week that our directors had purchased wheelbarrows and shovels with which to commence the work of grading our railroad.

They have since been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Philander J. Dannals of Bath, an experienced railroad man, for some eighteen years in the employ of the Erie Railway on the Corning division.

He has had charge of a large portion of that division for many years, and is thoroughly acquainted with railroad construction in all its branches. It is expected that Mr. Dannals will arrive here this week and be prepared with forty to fifty hands to commence the work of grading in good earnest next Monday.

The directors have caused to be built, this week, at the 'Willows,' a short distance below the residence of Wm D. McNair, Esq., and about three miles northwest of this village, a 'railroad boarding house,' for the accommodation of the laborers. This building is a rough board shanty, 32x16 feet, and, in addition to the commissary department, is provided with bunks and other conveniences for sleeping.

The work of grading the road will be carried on each way from this point for say a mile and a half, when the building can be removed to a more convenient point.

On Monday the railroad commissioners of Dansville subscribed the $100,000 pledged by this town. The town bonds are being filled out, and will soon be in market. These bonds are of the denominations of $500 and $1,000, and will be sold at par. They are perfectly safe, and at this price will prove a profitable investment. The interest (7 per cent.) is payable semi-annually in New York city, on the first day of April and the first day of October.

Of the superior character of these bonds, we shall have more to say hereafter. The Mt. Morris people are making surveys of the other end of the road, and we have no doubt we shall soon come to an understanding with them concerning the junction of the two roads.

Our directors have wisely decided to make this as nearly an air line as possible in view of the probable contingency of its becoming an important through line at no distant day.

The Department of Industrive Mechanics in Alfred University.

In September, 1867, Mrs. Ann M. R. Lyon, donated to the Trustees of Alfred University, ten thousand dollars, upon certain conditions, to found a Professorship, to be known as "The Geo B. Rogers Professorship of Industrial Mechanics." The Trustees having complied with the conditions of the donation, the undersigned was appointed to the chair, thus created, and has spent the past year in preparation for assuming the duties of the department. It will therefore be open for the instruction of students at the commencement of the Fall Term, Wednesday, September 1. The Trustees have adopted the following courses of instruction:

THIRD TERM.—1. Applied mechanics completed. 2. Machine drawing, original designs. 3. Preparation of Thesis.

The examination of new students desiring to enter the department will occur on Monday, September 5. No examination will be required of such as have already passed the required examinations in connection with the University. There will be no extra charge for tuition, beyond the published rates. For more definite information letters should be directed to the undersigned, at Alfred Center, N. Y.

In as much as the donor of the funds to create the Professorship expressed the convictions that theoretical and practical instruction should go hand in hand, a work-shop for elementary practice in the use of tools has been fitted up. The liberality of A. B. Sherman, Esq., proprietor of the Allegany Co. Cheese Box Manufactory, has provided a room 20 by 24 feet, furnished with steam power. The work-shop will be supplied with the following machines and tools, viz:

One engine lathe, 8ft bed, 15inch swing, with geared and independent jawed chucks. One iron planer—planing 4ft by 20 inches, with circular and box chucks. One wood lathe, one hand lathe, one upright drill, boring 24 inches deep by 6 inches radius. Sets of carpenters tools, lathe tools, planer tools, wood turning tools, files, machinists small tools, etc.

On Wednesday of each week it is proposed in the place of class instruction to substitute practice in the work-shops. But students must not suppose that it is the purpose to teach them a trade. It is hoped that in connection with theoretical instruction they may acquire a certain familiarity with the use of tools, and especially a certain ability to apply the principles of mechanics in the construction of models and mechanical apparatives, which will enable them when they shall really learn the trade of their choice, to become master mechanics, architects, superintendents of machine shops; in a word, to be equal to any demand which may be made upon them in the ever progressive art of mechanical construction. No students will be admitted to the privileges of the work-shop who have not been regularly matriculated as members, either of the two or three years. WILLIAM A. ROGERS.

Another Railroad Accident.

SIDNEY STATION, July 17.—The passenger train on the Union Pacific railroad which left Omaha Wednesday morning, met with a serious accident yesterday near Antelope Station, about 450 miles from Omaha, in consequence of the washing away of the embankment. The engine, two baggage cars and three passenger cars were thrown from the track and completely broken up. Two persons were killed—the fireman, Neville Sheare, of Michigan, and a passenger named John Dwyer, of Emmettsburg, Md., the engineer and two passengers, Alex. Wagstaff, of St. Louis, and John Steele, of England, were seriously injured. Workmen are repairing the track. The passengers have been brought back to this station, which is about forty miles east of this point on Tuesday, one man being killed and several injured.
