REST OF ALL OCEAN LINERS.

Huge Ships to Join the Atlantic Fleet

EACH CARRYING 5,000 PEOPLE

Olympic and Titanic Will Be 850 Feet Long, Seventy Feet Longer Than Any Ship Afloat—To Have All the Splendors of a Great Hotel and a Big Salt Water Swimming Bath.

Near the end of the year 1911 there will cross the Atlantic ocean the greatest steamship that ever drove past Sandy Hook on its way to New York—a vessel that exceeds by seventy feet the length of the giant Cuiarders, the Lusitania and Mauretania. When these great vessels came out many of those who looked at the majestic sisters felt sure that in these two the last word in marine construction had been reached.

But the Olympic, now under construction at Belfast, Ireland, for the White Star line, exceeds these two in size by almost as great a margin as the Lusitania and Mauretania exceed the older Lucania and Campania. The newer Cunarders are 790 feet in length. The length of the White Star giantess is 860 feet. The Cunarders have a beam of 88 feet; that of the Olympic is 92 feet. In displacement the new vessel exceeds the older ones by 3,000 tons. She will not be endowed with the high speed of the ocean greyhounds.

Titanic, a sister vessel to the Olympic, is also under construction at Belfast, but the work upon this other vessel is not as far advanced as it is on the Olympic. Each ship will have accommodations for 5,000 passengers and for a crew of 600. Each vessel will have nine steel decks, and on the upper of these there will be a spacious entrance hall, dining saloons, smoking rooms, libraries, women's parlors or drawing rooms, grill-lounge rooms and restaurants as well as a main saloon about ninety feet wide.

Skating Rink on Upper Deck.

One of the upper decks is to be completely inclosed to serve as a ballroom or skating rink. Instead of canvas partitions or awnings to keep out the wind and rain the whole will be inclosed with glass windows similar to those in railway carriages. By day this spacious apartment may be used as a sun parlor or promenade, and it will be large enough to enable several hundred passengers to move about with ease and comfort.

In addition to extended suits of rooms complete flats will be available, thus making it possible to cross the Atlantic in the enjoyment of all the privacy of one's own home. Outgoing flats will comprise bedrooms, sitting rooms, private bathrooms and even a private library, all en suite. Cabins with private shower baths attached, a great salt water swimming bath large enough to permit of diving and a well equipped gymnasium are to be among the features which will be introduced.

Veranda Cafe on Board.

The main dining saloon will be furnished to seat 600 persons at once, and should a guest tire of this grand chamber he can wander from one cafe to another—each day there will be his meals in a different apartment. The veranda cafe will also be a leading feature of these ships. It will be placed on one of the upper decks far astern, fully fifty feet above the sea level, and as it will be constructed with exposed rafters intwined with vines and creeping plants and have latticed sides, it will make the illusion of a cafe at the seaside almost perfect.

Precautions Against Danger.

Each steamer will be divided into upward of thirty steel compartments separated by heavy bulkheads. An automatic device on the bridge will control all these heavy steel doors, making it possible for a single hand to close them all in almost an instant in case of danger. Each of these doors will be electrically connected with a chart on the bridge, where each door will be represented by a small electric light, and when one of these doors closes the light will burn red, but while it remains open the disk will be quite dark. The officer on the bridge will thus be able to see at a glance whether or not all the compartments have been closed.

Yet another set of safety devices will guard against fire in any portion of the vessel. A series of thermostats will be scattered throughout the great framework, so arranged as to indicate a rise in the temperature above a certain point. Should the temperature reach the danger point, the fact will be immediately communicated to the officer on the bridge by the ringing of an electric bell, while an electric light on a great chart on the wall will burn red.

The vessels will be of the triple screw type and are designed for a speed of 21 knots an hour. Each ship will have three propellers, and, like the biz Cunarders, will carry four funnels and two steel pole mast for masts. They will also be fitted with wireless installations and searchlights, as well as the now inevitable daily bulletin newspaper.

The Olympic will be launched next September. The Titanic will go overboard a few months later.

LIBRARY OF BANKING

Valuable Volumes to Be Published by the Monetary Commission.

Information of unique value to the financial world and to all students of economics regarding the monetary and banking systems of all the civilized nations including the United States will be made available during the coming year through a score or more of volumes prepared by the leading authorities in America, England and Europe, to be published under the auspices of the national monetary commission. It will constitute a library of banking without parallel in the literature of any country and will supply what is at present practically an absolute lack of information in the English language regarding the development during recent years of the financial systems of the world.

The commission as soon as practicable will print limited editions of the various volumes and hopes that congress will authorize their general publication and distribution and will provide for their sale at moderate prices through the superintendent of documents. The commission urgently expresses the hope that bankers, business men and financial students of every sort will take advantage of the opportunity thus offered to study the conditions and experiences of other countries as well as our own and will cooperate with the commission in devising a banking system more worthy of America's position in the world and better adapted for the successful utilization of her great resources.

STUDENT THEATER FOR YALE.

Receipts From Dramatic Association's Tour Will Go to Fund.

Yale university is to have a fully equipped theater, to be used for performances given by the students and by professional companies especially invited to appear before the university. Profits from the performances of Dion Boucicault's comedy, "London Assurance," which will be given by the Yale Dramatic association at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, in New York, on Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 3 and 4, will be devoted to the theater fund. The sum raised already amounts to $8,500. It is expected that part of the receipts from annual tours of the Yale Glee, Banjo and Mandolin clubs will be paid into the fund.

Preliminary plans for Yale's theater are for a structure seating 1,400 people, with completely equipped stage, club and library rooms for the Dramatic association, musical clubs and the Yale orchestra. Here the two productions of English plays each year and those of French, Spanish and German plays will be given.

It has been suggested that Yale name its theater after William Dunlap, New York's famous early dramatist and manager and founder of the new Yale Academy of Design.

MONUMENT LAKE BOUNDARIES

International Commission to Mark Line From Duluth to St. Lawrence.

Scores of great monuments are to be erected along the United States and Canadian shores of the great lakes from Duluth to the St. Lawrence as boundary marks. This has been decided upon by the international waterways commission.

The present boundary lines between the United States and Canada are an intangible thing and in many places quite unsettled. The plan which has been outlined by the international waterways commission and is now being worked out contemplates locating at every point where the boundary line makes an angle two monuments directly opposite each other on the two shores of the lakes.

The exact number of monuments which will be necessary will not be known until the boundary line has been definitely agreed upon and approved by the British government and the federal authorities at Washington. It is said, however, that there may be at least fifty. Details for the monuments have not yet been thought out, but it is probable that they will be metal shafts of great height.

Great Trade in Ratskins.

One of the American diplomats reports that a great business is springing up at Calcutta in securing and preparing the skins of brown rats, which are used for book bindings, gloves and purses. Already the trade is said to amount to $250,000 a year.

Jim—Congressman.

When Jim was elected congressman four years ago I vowed My son o' boy was brimmin' full, an' I was mighty proud.
"My Jim 'll make his mark," I said. "The world will know his name.
He'll rise above the common run an' win uncommon fame.
His voice will ring throughout the land,
his words electrify,"
An' then I sat t' wait for him t' catch the speaker's eye.

I bragged about my Jim a lot, my Jim in Washington.
"He'll show em how." I told my friends
"this country should be run.
Jas' wait until he makes a speech an'
then you'll all admit
That when it comes to wisdom my boy
Jim is full of it."
An' so we waited. Weeks an' weeks an'
months an' months went by,
An' Jim down there a-tryin' hard t' catch
the speaker's eye.

Jim's back in Washington again, in congress makin' laws.
Pismb sure that this term he will get a chance t' plead his cause.
He's got on some committees, an' some big men know he's there.
The New York papers quoted him about some trust affair.
An' ma an' I are prayin' now that we won't have to die
Afore Jim's reckoned big enough t' get the speaker's eye.

FINAL HEARING HAS BEEN HELD

No Opposition to Trolley Line From Hornell to Bath—Engineer's Figures Correct—Certificate will Probably be Granted.

The final hearing on the application for a certificate of necessity and for the issuance of stock and bonds of the Hornell-Bath Interurban Railway company was held in Buffalo Saturday before the Public Service Commission for the Second District. This hearing was principally to compare the figures of the engineer of the company with those of the commission. The figures were so close that there was no opportunity for contention the commission's engineer having made practically the same estimate of the cost of construction as that made by the engineer of the company.

There was again no opposition to the application of the company and in view of this fact the officers believe that the certificate will be granted. A favorable decision is expected from the commission in a few days.

Special Stockholder's Meeting

Notice is hereby given that a special meeting of the stockholders of the Home Enterprise Co., of Andover, N. Y., will be held at the Office of the corporation at the Auditorium, in the village of Andover, N. Y., on the 27th day of December, 1909, at 8 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing Directors and the transaction of such other business as shall regularly come before the meeting.

This special meeting is called owing to the fact that the regular annual meeting conflicted in date with an entertainment that was booked for the Auditorium, and was omitted on account thereof, and at this meeting it is desired that all stockholders be present, as at this time a general review of the financial condition of the Company will be given, including the cost of the construction of the building and of first year's income. December 14th being our first anniversary of the opening of our Auditorium.

Dated, this 9th day of December, 1909.

Physical Changes Noted in the Children of Immigrants.

VISIBLE IN FIRST GENERATION.

Descendants of Foreigners Lose Distinctively Ancestral Physical Characteristics, Say Immigration Commission Experts—Change in Formation of the Head Particularly Remarked.

That the physical form and the habits of living and ways of thinking of the descendants of foreigners who immigrate to America are different from those of their ancestors is the conclusion of the immigration commission as embodied in the preliminary report of that body which was recently presented to congress. The discovery is regarded as of importance in anthropological science as indicating the development of a distinct American physical type in persons of European descent.

The investigation which has brought this fact to the surface was conducted in a scientific manner by the comparison of measurements of the bodies of such immigrants and their descendants at different ages and under differing circumstances. The matter was placed in the hands of a committee composed of members of the commission, and Professor Frank Boas of Columbia university was engaged as expert. The inquiry was confined to New York city and so far as the present report shows was restricted to Sicilians and east European Hebrews. A later report will give the details of investigation among Bohemians, Hungarians and Scotch.

First Generation Differs.

The report indicates that the descendants of the European immigrant changes his type even in the first generation almost entirely. Children born even a few years after the arrival of the parents develop in such a way that they differ essentially from the latter. These differences seem to develop during the earliest childhood and persist throughout life. Every part of the body is influenced in this way. Even the form of the head, which always has been considered one of the most permanent hereditary features, undergoes considerable changes.

An official synopsis of the report says:

"This would indicate the conclusion that racial physical characteristics do not survive under the new social and climatic environment of America. The adaptability of the various races coming together on our shores seems—if these indications shall be fully borne out in later study, to be much greater than had been anticipated. If the American environment can bring about an assimilation of the head forms in the first generation, may it not be that other characteristics may be as easily modified, and that there may be a rapid assimilation of widely varying nationalities and races to something that could well be called an American type?

"The investigation is by no means complete, and, moreover, considering the importance of the subject, it should clearly be conducted on a larger scale and in different surroundings in various parts of the country, and perhaps also be checked up by certain investigations made upon the same races elsewhere."

Cranial Transformation.

It is shown that the American born children of the long headed Sicilians and those of the round headed east European Hebrews have very nearly the same intermediate head form. The children of the long headed Sicilians are more round headed, and the children of the round headed Hebrews are more long headed than their parents. Similar changes are traced in the development of the faces. Among individuals born a long time after the arrival of the parents in America the difference is increased, but only slightly as compared with the great difference that develops at once.

Important Fact About Size of Children.

The commission also has made the discovery that, as a rule, there is a falling off in the size of families after arrival in the United States, and coincident with this discovery has come the more important revelation that as the number of children decreases the size of the individuals increases, this being the result of the well to do as well as the poor.

Another result of the investigation is the development of the fact that, while removal from Europe to New York has had a beneficial effect upon the physique of east European Hebrews, the result has been the opposite upon the Sicilians, the conclusion being that the surrounding in New York are a setup for the Jews right in their city homes in the old world, while the cramped

"There is talk of asking Cannon to resign as Speaker," notes the Toledo Blade. "So not alike now, however, that you cannot hear it in Washington."

"The Sugar Trust officials say they do not fear an investigation of Congress," says St. Paul Pioneer Press. Which is not very complimentary to Congress, either.

"The people are growing more honest," avers Collector Leob. The Houston Post prefers the word "honester."

It is suggested in the home circles of Senator Aldrich that he follow the example of King Gustave and disguise himself as an "ultimate Consumer" to see how it seems.

And so the alleged plot to kidnap Mr. Rockfeller was all a false alarm. And Mr. Rockfeller did not even need the advertising.

Minister-to-be Calhoun, of Chicago, has met his first crisis and has emerged victorious. When seen by a reporter at Chicago, he "declined positively to discuss China or any phase of his mission to the Orient"

A bank president and lumberman of Washington, wants to succeed Piles in the Senate. His name is McCormick, and we suspect that he is one of those patriots who want to revise the tariff that way again. Too much "Cannon and Aldrich" is a "plenty" already.

We have no doubt that the Supreme Court of the United States did wisely in granting the writ of certiorari which will bring before it for review the contempt case of Samuel Gompers and others, of the American Federation of Labor.

The European war cloud deserves great credit for keeping off the Balkans circuit this season.

"We are gradually awakening," says the Philadelphia Inquirer. In spite of the old joke, eh?

Senator Clapp, of Minnesota, has come squarely down on Senator La Follette's side of the fence, and delivered a speech in behalf of the Wisconsin Senator, in Milwaukee. Thus the insurgents are waxing stronger.

The present is not the first time an attempt has been made to force the newspaper press to make good the loss incurred by operating the postal service, but President Taft's message appears to be the first that has gone into figures to load the entire burden upon the newspaper mail. Theodore Roosevelt contented himself with a jigow. All the African animals seem determined to get their names in the papers, before the thing is over.

A Georgia man petitions for divorce on the ground that his wife hypnotizes him. Of course, however, he did not object to that in the ante-nuptial days.

President Zelaya seems to be almost as popular with some editors as "Uncle Joe" Cannon is.

He is an optimist indeed, however, who imagines our American heiresses will eventually get the debts of Europe's nobility paid in full.

The House of Lords has been practically abolished by everybody on earth now except the English people. They have the last say, of course.

One Lincoln penny has been coined for every man, woman, and child in the country approximately. And yet the chances are that you have not yours about you anywhere.

It is a significant fact that so far there has been no protest in any important quarter against Secretary Meyer's plan for reorganizing the navy.

Chief Forester Pinchot will not be suspected of yielding to sentimental considerations when he expresses the opinion that the damage done to the forest resources of the land by the annual cut of Christmas trees is infinitesimal.

It is ill news for insurgents that Speaker Cannon has taken to swinging his gavel with his left hand. It tends to a suspicion that he has brass knuckles to slip on the right.
