Enthusiasm Over Baseball.

For about seven months in every year baseball is the most popular American sport. It is unquestionably "the national game." It originated in this country, not born full grown, but gradually developing from "town ball" or perhaps from "three cornered cat" to its present scientific aspect—a thing of joy forever to about nine-tenths of Americans. This includes practically all the men and boys, except Mr. Roosevelt's mollycoddle class, and it includes also an increasing number of women, who in late years have come to know the difference between a foul and a safe hit.

All of us know in a general way of the remarkable popularity of the national game, but in a current magazine article Ralph D. Paine, who writes from intimate knowledge, lays bare an array of facts concerning baseball which are calculated to cause the true "fan" to take off his hat almost anywhere, in the middle of the street or sitting at his breakfast table, and whoop his enthusiasm. We learn that about 5,000 young Americans receive salaries for playing the game in leagues major and minor, scattered from Maine to Texas and from Seattle to Savannah, not forgetting the Florida peninsula. These are the professionals. Then comes a class of semi-professionals, young men who pick up a five dollar bill now and then for pitching a game in a contest between the Boomtown Athletics and the Smithville Beds. Most numerous and probably most enthusiastic is the amateur army, made up of unnumbered thousands of boys and men who play baseball just for the sheer fun of it. Their diamonds are legion. Then comes the mighty multitude of baseball enthusiasts who pay their money to sit in the grand stand or on the bleachers and root one player or rave over another.

No matter whether you play or look on, you get all sorts of exercise, including lung testing, and the outdoor afternoon undoubtedly prevents many a case of tuberculosis and other deadly disease, thus reducing the death rate in addition to making life the happier while it is being lived.

Mr. Paine calls attention to the respectability of baseball as a sport. A generation ago, when the game was in its infancy, boys who showed a predilection for the diamond were looked upon in their towns as loafers and ne'er-do-wells. The game itself was proscribed in most communities, but this probably was due to the fact that it was played almost exclusively on Sunday. As baseball developed and became an amusement industry, with performances on week days, the sport won the favor even of the Sabbatarians, who had tried to kill it off in its boisterous babyhood. Now nobody decries baseball. It is a clean sport—the cleanest we have. It is as innocent as croquet and considerably more exhilarating.

In his enthusiasm Mr. Paine, who used to be a college athlete of note, delivers this eulogy:

> The pallid student with bulging brow may croak that it is a wicked economic waste for thousands of grown men to be paid large salaries for hitting a ball with a stick of wood. On the contrary, these clean built, sunburned, vigorous athletes of the league diamonds are the faculty members of the National University of Baseball Culture, and their pupils are to be found in every other American home.
> The greatest day of the sporting calendar is "the opening of the league season." Then it is worth the price of admission just to see 30,000 cheering Americans banked halfway round the velvet turf in the sparkling April weather; when the heroes in their spick and span uniforms parade grandly across the field behind the band; when the big flag soars to the top of the tall pole; when the mayor or governor tosses the dedicatory horsehide sphere from his box; when the first gladiator strides up to the home plate and the umpire croaks, "Play ball!"
> Poe's "Raven" and Longfellow's "Excelsior" may be recited by school children yet unborn, but it is not a rash prophecy that their claim to immortality is no stronger than the claim of that matchless lyric, "Casey at the Bat."

It is also a significant fact that the Japanese have taken to playing baseball. They have chosen it in preference to the British cricket, which they have had ample opportunity to learn. In view of the remarkable aptitude of the Japanese in picking up the good things in western civilization their choice may be considered highly complimentary to the American national sport.

We may be mistaken, but in the president's speeches of late there seems to have been a studied avoidance of the weather as a subject of reform. He talked of everything else, but he said nothing on the subject uppermost in everybody's mind.

Peace Is What Japan Wants.

By General (Baron) KUROKI, Hero of Liaoyang and Mukden.

IT is the business of soldiers to fight, and FIGHTING MEANS TO KILL. I have been a soldier for forty years. My first experience of bloodshed was in the war of the restoration, thirty-nine years ago. Since that time I have been called in the service of my emperor to many scenes of carnage. I had my hand in the events which the late Secretary John Hay declared moved him more than the slaughters of the American civil war. Yet I feel as he felt, and I agree from the depths of my soul that it was pitiable, pitiable business. I agree that human slaughter is a sight for tears and DEEPEST REGRETS.

The Japanese people love peace and WANT PEACE. They fought for peace, which, without fighting, could not have been. My nation wants peace—peace in which TO DEVELOP. We have no other desire. The profession it is my fate to follow is noble only in that it is sometimes useful in establishing conditions in which peace may be MAINTAINED and the arts of peace may flourish.

The instructions given by the Japanese parliament to our delegates to The Hague look in the direction of disarmament. This, even in my opinion, would be a thing to be highly desired.

* * *

If it were possible—IF ONLY IT WERE POSSIBLE—what could be more highly desirable than that all nations should solemnly agree to lay down arms and solemnly ABIDE BY THEIR AGREEMENTS and give us poor soldiers a rest?

The most important fact about China at this moment is it is INTERNALLY in a strife of civil chaos. Manchuria and Korea are overrun by brigands, and it is the case generally throughout China. Everywhere are marauders, bandits, sometimes scouring the country in mounted troops, sometimes disturbing villages and cities—OVERTURNING GOVERNMENT EVERYWHERE.

* * *

Now, it is of first importance that the Chinese government should be able to maintain order in the territory over which it holds authority. For that purpose it is organizing an army. Japanese officers are taking a prominent part in that organization. We hope an efficient Chinese army may be created, but THE PURPOSE OF IT IS WHOLLY PACIFIC. It is for internal police service. Japan believes that the internal peace of China will make for the peace of the WORLD. In this interest in the training of Chinese soldiers Japan has only the welfare of the world at heart. She wants to see order established and then see China enter into a high plane in the sisterhood of nations.

WHEN SHE MASTERS THE EVIL AND DISORDERLY FORCES WITHIN HER, YOU WILL SEE CHINA LEARN THE LESSONS OF MODERN CIVILIZATION. JAPAN LEARNED THEM FIRST. IS IT NOT NOW HER DUTY TO HELP CHINA LEARN THEM TOO?

Woman's Domination In the United States.

By Dr. EMIL REICH, Lecturer and Philosopher.

SO great is the DOMINATION OF WOMAN in the United States that I have no hesitation in saying that her position, rights, activities—in short, the woman question is the MOST GRAVE of all questions in America. In fact, this is the cardinal difference between Europe and America.

This being so, one may readily imagine whither that powerful sentiment of every American man can eventually drive him. When Thaw's lawyer appealed to that feeling and with fine rhetoric called it Dementia americana he was conscious of playing on the biggest organ of all organs—on the rapturous enthusiasm of a great and generous nation for their NOBLEST ARISTOCRATS. He roused thereby a vendee, a chouan sentiment of fierce loyalty, a real war of the roses, if one may say so.

The Americans individually, almost in every case men of yesterday, have for that very reason a fanatic desire for aristocratic atmosphere. In their women, mostly beautiful, bright, well instructed, good talkers and free and easy companions, they cannot but see THEIR BETTERS, their noble folk, and by a slight extension of terms the betters of the whole world.

An American critic, replying to some of my remarks on the American woman, said, not without a sense of truth: "Right you are. She is no woman. She is an angel." "Angel" is perhaps FAINTLY EXAGGERATED, yet it is true that she is to the American what the grande dame used to be to the heavy burgess.

THIS EXPLAINS WHY THE AMERICAN MAN WILL READILY ENDURE THE DOMINEERING TONE OF HIS WOMEN, WHY HE GLADLY, NAY, PROUDLY, SUBMITS TO ALL THEIR WHIMS, AND EVEN TO THEIR EXTRAVAGANCES.

The Farmer Should Use Denatured Alcohol.

By E. J. HILL, Member From Connecticut of National House of Representatives.

IF the farmers will only take advantage of it, the denatured alcohol law, enacted by congress a year ago and amended this year, will be of IMMENSE PROFIT to them.

I know of no reason why PRIVATE stills should not be eventually in as general use as they are in Germany. In that country last year 90,000,000 bushels of potatoes were used by the farmers for manufacturing 70,000,000 gallons of alcohol. This was used for light, heat and fuel, practical appliances being in a high state of perfection.

IN THIS COUNTRY, WITH THE INTELLIGENCE OF THE FARMERS AND THEIR NATIVE INDUSTRY, I BELIEVE ALCOHOL WILL LARGELY SUPPLANT OIL, AS FAR AS THE FARM IS CONCERNED.

BOOMING HIS TOWN.

How a Young Board of Trade President "Made Good" With the People.

Systematic town boosting is a feature of American business activity which aims at the general good instead of personal profit. One western town had a board of trade which had slept along for years without doing anything in particular, except eating some food once a year at a banquet and listening to some spread eagle oratory, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. The organization became moribund, and its presidency was an honor no longer sought for. The directors met and gave the place to a young man of the type "we like to encourage." The young man took his job seriously and went to work. It wasn't long before he grew an idea of his own.

Every family that moved to town he spotted. Employment was provided for the breadwinners where necessary, and the new people were made to feel at home. When this personal attention had got in its work, a representative of the board of trade interviewed the head of the new family. This interview was incorporated into a letter; mimeograph copies were made, put into stamped envelopes and made ready to mail. Then the letters were taken to the newcomer, and he was asked to address them to his friends "back east." The scheme worked like magic, and the population boomed. Of that idea many new ones were born. The young man has been several times re-elected president of the board of trade, and he can have anything the people of that town can give him.

Frenchmen who have protested violently against the adulteration of French wines will doubtless be rebuked for injuring trade. The same sort of talk greeted the assailants of the Chicago packing houses. Trade, however, is never anywhere or at any time permanently hurt by telling the truth about it.

It is understood that other nations which received excessive indemnity from China on account of the Boxer war are willing to follow the example of the United States and remit the balance awarded them.

The American Medical association is taking steps to instruct the public regularly and systematically in everyday hygiene. Perhaps this movement will forestall the scheme for a national health bureau.

It cannot be denied that many capitalists would be glad of a chance to run railways on a two cent fare basis if the present management should grow discouraged.

Osteopathy in Andover

Beginning Friday, June 7th, I will be at the Swink House, Tuesday and Friday of each week where I will be pleased to meet those who are afflicted. If your case has resisted other methods of treatment you are just the one I want to see.

A word about our treatment:—

Osteopathy treatment is scientific, requiring no faith, no drugs, no surgical operations. It involves no creed or anything supernatural. It is merely a study of mechanism and function together with a system of scientific manipulations so adapted as to remove all obstructions from natural channels so that nature can carry out the many and varied processes of human life unimpeded. Our object is to find the cause and then remove it. We make no charge for examinations and consultation.

Tuesdays and Fridays at Swink House. Hours, 2 to 5 p. m.

Dr. F. W. MILLER,
Osteopathic Physician

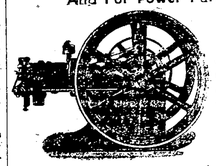
The Engine for the Farmer
And For Power Purposes Generally



Note the Construction of "RUMSEY" Portable Engines

"Rumsey" Stationary Throttle Governed Engines

Are constructed as simple as it is consistent, having as few parts as a Gas Engine can have and be practicable, economical and durable. They are not, however, to be classed with the cheap engines offered on the market which are dear in the end.

A throttle-governed engine built entirely of steel and iron, mounted on springs, a friction-clutch pulley, magneto and battery, mounted on channel irons, water tank in frame, tool box, pole tongue, water circulating pump, engine fitted for both gas and gasoline, automatic fly-ball governor, the most compact engine, the best governed and most economical, speed of engine can be changed while engine is running.
