CROOKED FINGER CUT OFF

Man Submitted to an Operation to Enlist in Army

Some men "lose a finger" to keep out of military service; but not so with Thomas Thoman, Denson, Tex., who had one taken off so he could get in.

Thoman tried to enlist as a stenographer, but examination disclosed the little finger on his right hand was crooked and stiff.

"That finger will have to come off if we take you," he was told.

Without a word Thoman left, half an hour later he returned.

"Well, sergeant, I had her cut off."

He was accepted.

Five thousand American Indians are in Uncle Sam's Army. Their ancestors in their day made America mighty unsafe for civilization, and here are the descendants helping to make the world safe for democracy.

Should the German language be taught and studied in America? Perhaps not just now, but one of these days "kultur," and "spurlos versenkt" and "schreckliehkeit" will be blotted out of it, and it will take its place in the world languages again.

* * *

The Wartime Exposition now being held in Europe is attracting many visitors from this country, especially young men. Do not forget that the Kaiser pressed the button that started the whole show.

LENDING AND GIVING

It will be well for our people to get a correct line on the various calls that are being, and will be, made on their purses before this titanic struggle is fought to a finish.

We must get the distinction between giving and lending.

In the first place, we might state that our Government has not asked, and will not ask, for one cent of gift money. The extent of its call is for loans—and for loans on which it purposes to pay fair rates of interest. The man or woman who buys Government bonds does NOT sacrifice for the cause, in the sense in which we usually employ the word. At the most, his action entails but a temporary inconvenience, in diverting his means to employ them. In the end he has the full worth of his money in the soundest securities on earth—the promises of the U. S. Government to pay.

But there are calls being made that entail direct giving. The activities of the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, Etc., are for money from which there will be no financial return. Yet these calls must be met, and met fully and cheerfully.

Why should we support these great causes? Because they constitute the great humanizing agencies in the grim machinery of war. Their work is to remedy the physical hurt and undo the moral hurt that must inevitably result from war. An army without the Red Cross would be unthinkable in this humanitarian twentieth century. The horrors of war, at its best, are great, but without the ministrations of the Red Cross our armies could not endure.

Likewise without the civilizing influences of the religious and social roganizations the morals of our troops would suffer deeply. Their minds must be diverted from the grim duties of slaughter, and they be brought always to see behind the dark clouds of war, the silver lining embodied in the ideal peace conditions for which they contend.

It doesn't necessarily require great patriotism to buy Government bonds. The support of these companion agencies must come from the great generous hearts of our people.

And thanks be to a God of mercy, it is coming in a never-ending stream.

—WSS—

DANGERS OF OVER-CONFIDENCE

No greater calamity could overtake this country than for our people to become possessed of the erroneous belief that the war is as good as won and that further strenuous exertions are unnecessary.

The war is not won, and unless all indications are misleading, is not likely to be won soon. The forces contending for victory are far too evenly matched for either to obtain any decided victory.

Every man, woman and child in this country should nerve themselves, constantly remind themselves that their utmost exertion and sacrifice is imperatively demanded. Any other attitude must result in a weakening of the will to win, and a consequent slackening of effort—and these at this stage of affairs would be fatal to our cause.

Of course it is barely possible that some fortunate circumstance may befall to throw victory to our arms, but this is extremely unlikely until we have greatly increased our strength on the front.

Let us reach out after four or five million fighting men, put them on the front and then SUSTAIN them. It must not be said that America, a nation that has never yet done things by halves, has now taken up the practice. Kaiserdom with its attendant train of evils must perish from the earth.

And let us not for one moment forget that AMERICA IS THE DECIDING FACTOR IN THE WAR.
