MR. EDITOR.—Your article on Andover was such a smart place, we in our modesty had under estimated on aceives. I know trom personal observation that the people of your village are are a live people, and that they need no other steam ple, and that they need no other steam coopet that of Elvell & Proet's 10 make themronove, but then some of our establishments are so large and you as much through their banks that they ought to be counted three or four. Thinking of husiness, Wellsville is now taking its pince with other cities in its wholesale department, and a large-share of the goods sold in other towns go from himmont cast, west, north and south to supply scores of retail dealers, whilst the gentlemanty Birdsall, Baker, & Co., are building up a trade by their chempness of price and engaging manners, that will "the large in the wholesale experiment, and a large and the still binder recompense, the sold the states of Fannylevania and New York. One of our worthy pastors met with an accident the other day, against which an accument near my, against which he did not take the precaution to be insured. Last Thursday evening he went to prayer neeting as usual, little dreaming what was about to befull him. There were present about the usual me that the singing seemed to be louder than usual, as that the singing seemed to be louder than usual, as that it was bard to close the meeting as half past nine. Another thing that was strange was that as the worshipers came out, they seemed to go the same way as the preacher. As they neared the present the present the present of th number, but one present, remarked to page rounded. In short same average proofs had came which any next atom from the many had been as the proofs of anything they seemed determined to make them selves at home and settle down. It was indeed a gratoful and real surprise, so much so that all-bough the Rey, Gentleman is not generally troubled for a speech, he seemed to be somewhat diddeint in the commond of words at that then. This was not a clurch surprise, although almost every Methods in the place was there. The other charcless were well and worthly represented. You must not let the Aniover people know about this matter, lest you should have an accident there. accident there. Sero.
