Stockholders Banquet.

The directors of the Burrows National Bank gave a fine five-course banquet to the stockholders of that institution, Monday night, at Harmony Hall, the evening of the anniversary of Washington's birthday.

Covers were laid for sixty, and the banquet delightfully served by the ladies of Andover Rebekah Lodge.

The room was prettily decorated with American flags and engravings of George Washington. Especially pleasing were the menu cards, containing on the front cover a cut of "The Father of Our Country," surrounded with a branch of cherries, in water colors, making a beautiful souvenir of the occasion.

After the banquet a toast list was enjoyed with Vice President A. B. Burrows presiding as toastmaster.

Morris Reisman Dead.

Word was received in Andover Wednesday of last week by relatives, of the death of Morris Reisman, in Philadelphia. Officer LeRoy Brundage went to Corning last week and arrested William Dunning, on a charge of stealing an overcoat belonging to Frank Parshall. The prisoner was taken before Justice Carpenter and plead guilty and was sentenced to 120 days in the Erie County Penitentiary.

EPHOMERS THAT HAVE BEEN

"A Texas Ranger" Offers Much to Thinking Men, and Harbors Dramatic Interest.

The sale of seats for the production of "A Texas Ranger" at the Auditorium Tuesday night March 2nd, promises to be very large as the nature of the attraction is such that it has aroused great interest. It is one of those unusual plays that offer much to thinking men, and at the same time harbor enough dramatic interest to prove universal in its appeal. While the management is rather reluctant in revealing the details of the play's story for fear of robbing the audience of some of the pleasure that follows a dramatic surprise, it is given out that the play follows more or less closely episodes that have occurred in life. All the scenery used in the play is carried by the company, thus insuring a complete performance in every respect.

The prices for this engagement will be 25, 35 and 50 cents, the first time in the history of this attraction that it has played at cheap prices.

SOUTH HILL.

After that beautiful sleighing this mud seems very disagreeable.

"Jack" Forness is rig building in this vicinity. The rig has been moved from the Casey farm and is being erected on the Anthony McAndrew place.

Mr. Rice of Wellsville installed a fine new piano in the home of W. F. O'Connell late week.

After a long illness with pneumonia, Anthony McAndrew departed this life, early Saturday morning. He was one of the very few remaining pioneer settlers of the hill. His funeral took place from the Immaculate Conception church in Wellsville, and was largely attended by relatives and friends.

Edward Walsk, who has been visiting relatives in this vicinity for two months, left Tuesday for his home in Wisconsin.

Some f our residents attended the Stockholders Banquet given in Andover Monday evening by the directors of the Burrows National Bank, and report a very enjoyable time.

Anthony McAndrew's four daughters, of New York, two of whom attended him in his last illness, were home at his death, also a son, Martin, of Robinson, Ill.

Miss Ella McLoughlen of Andover was home over Sunday.

Miss Nettie Horan was reported on the sick list last week. Miss Lizzie of Andover spent Saturday at her home.

The Misses Nora and Chestina McAndrew had no school in their respective districts Monday, but attended the funeral of their uncle.

Patrick Riley and Mrs. J. McGrath of Andover spent a few days with Mr and Mrs. W. F. O'Connell this week.

FOR A BROADER EDUCATION

A FEW EDUCATIONAL REMARKS BY PRIN. R. A. BARTLETT.

Much adverse criticism of our public school system is being made. People are demanding that the educational system of this state be made more practical and in this I heartily agree with them.

A British student of American affairs, remarking the great interest taken in the United States in Educational projects, says that while education to an Englishman means a development in character, to an American it means actual equipment for life's battle. We shall not admit that to an American education does not mean character development.

In the march of events the American school has lagged behind. Neither the secondary nor the elementary schools are fairly meeting the requirements of to-day. In the secondary schools the demand for an expanded curriculum suited to the needs of students intending to follow commercial and industrial vocations has been met with some concessions, but they still hold fast to the fundamentals of the traditional course of studies. To meet the demands of hard headed men who insist that boys and girls shall be trained for efficient service as well as for that quality of mind and heart which we call culture

The main fault with our school system to-day seems to me to be this. We practically hold that all boys and girls who go to the high school must have the very best cultural education that can be provided or none at all. It is held that they must pursue such lines of study as experience has shown to be most advantageous in training men for literary pursuits, for the learned professions, for engineering, and for other commanding positions in our political, social and business life. We largely ignore the interests of boys who are to be farmers and wage-earners. Where lies the right to a free secondary education adapted to their needs is just as clear as that of the more fortunate or highly endowed students who seek a liberal education. We seem to forget that the first step toward good citizenship is a good living.

The subject of industrial education is broader than is often appreciated. It means more than merely the establishment of another type of school it suggests a scheme of education which will make it worth while for all children to remain in school and which will provide for the children of the masses and for the great manufacturing and instructive industries; something equivalent to what the state is now doing for the children of the well to do and for the professional and managing activities of the country. "The subject is well worthy of the thought and interest of every teacher who believes that every child must have his chance, a chance which is is work becoming through it accustomed to discipline, to direction and to industry."

The plan of this work I shall attempt to describe in another paper.

Democratic education, as the president of Harvard University has said is a new thing in the world and its attainable objects are not yet fully perceived. We may therefore not hesitate to declare that a national system of education for America is yet to be worked out and established and it may be predicted that when established it will be found to be in substantial agreement with the definition of John Milton, "I call that a complete and generous education" said Milton, "Which fits a man to perform justly, skilfully, and magnanimously all the offices, both public and private, of peace and war."

Song, Society.

The following speech was given by John Casey at the last meeting of the Beta Mu:

"I am a democrat because this great country of ours was founded on democratic principles. Our forefathers were democratic in their ways of life. They threw off the yoke of despotism and took up a belief of their own that all men are created equal and that all would be protected alike under the Constitution of the United States, regardless of race, creed or color, as long as they remained good law-abiding citizens, under the stars and stripes.

"I am a democrat, secondly, because I believe in a sound government, of the people, for the people and by the people, and that they only shall rule, without no special privileges to any and that each shall share the same rights and privileges as the constitution provides for each of us.

"I am a democrat, thirdly, because I disapprove of all illegitimate combinations, one or trusts in violation of the constitution of the United States, and again, I do not believe in coercion or other ways of deceiving the people in their sentiments in regard to their choice in selecting the chief executive of the United States. Always let the people rule. You people of self honor, hands off. Let the sentiments of the people prevail. In so doing there will be no danger in our great free institutions. Now I am near to the time when I will have that great privilege granted to me as a citizen of this great nation. I hope and trust that I will faithfully support the Constitution of the United States either in public office or in private life. But we should be charitable and live happy in this beautiful land of the Stars and Stripes."

A DECISION OF IMPORTANCE

POLICY HOLDERS MUST PAY ASSESSMENT TO MAKE UP FIRE INSURANCE LOSSES.

Justice A. E. Sutherland of Rochester has handed down a decision affirming the report of Referee Peck in the action brought by the Skaneateles Paper Company against the American Underwriter's Fire Insurance Company. The decision is of the utmost importance, and in Onondoga county alone indirectly affects 10,000 policy holders of mutual fire insurance companies. The Skaneateles Paper Company held a policy of insurance in the American Underwriter's Company. There was a fire at the plant of the paper company, but before it was paid the insurance went into the hands of a receiver. The action to recover the amount of the insurance from the policyholders, and the decision of Justice Sutherland is on the report of the referee in this action. Referee Peck found for the plaintiff, but attorneys for the policy holders objected to the report being confirmed. The matter of confirming the report was argued before Justice Sutherland and Attorneys Leonard T. Haight and John P. Nash of this city to-day recieved the opinion of the court.

The decision affects, inderectly, 1,200 policy holders of the company, many of whom reside in Onondaga County. John H. Hicks is receiver for the insurance company, and he is directed by the court to levey an assessment on the policy holders to make up a deficiency of $22,000. The assessment is on the premiums of the policy holders and amounts to on each $1 of premium. There were 2,000 actions against policy holders held up pending the decision in this case.

The case has been hard fought, and there have been many intricate questions of law involved. It is probably the most important case effecting mutual fire insurance companies that findings in Justice Southerland's decision are the following:—

"All persons holding policies at the time of the making of an assessment or the appointment of a receiver and all policy holders whose policies have not been actually cancelled are liable.

A policy holder becomes a member of a co-operative or mutual company by accepting a policy in such company without signing a written application of undertaking.

"The liability of the policy holder accrues when the demand or assessment is made.

"An assessment can be made upon members of the company for debts due and unpaid by way of notes or judgments for two years prior to the making of the assessment.

"The fist-rate premium, if charged by mutual companies, does not relieve the member from liability for his pro-rata share of the debts.

"No legal or effective cancellation of a policy can be made while unpaid debts exist, without payment by the policy holder of his pro-rata share of the debts.

"Where a policy expires by its term before any assessment is made or demand for payment of any pro-rata share of the debts the policy holder is not liable."

THE VILLAGE TICKET NAMED

UNION CAUCUS SATURDAY EVENING, PUTS TICKET IN FIELD FOR VILLAGE OFFICERS THE ENSUING YEAR.

The Union caucus held at Village Hall was called to order by Clerk of the Village, Lewis L. Bullard was elected chairman of the caucus and V. E. Snyder made secretary of the meeting. After the organization was completed the caucus proceeded to nominate a candidate for President of the Village in place of W. F. Snyder, whose term expires, and Benjamin S. Brundage was thereupon unanimously named for that office.

U. W. Stratton was nominated for Village Trustee for the ensuing two years, in place of Benjamin S. Brundage, whose term expires.

Frank S. Clark was named as the choice of the caucus for Village Treasurer, to succeed himself.

Thomas Comstock was nominated for Collector to succeed Calvin Slocum, whose term of office expires.

The name of "Union Party" was chosen as the name by which the candidates nominated, should be known.

Erwin D. Baker, J. Harvey Backus and Leroy Brundage were elected as a committee to fill vacancies in the ticket, should any occur.

The signatures of nearly 150 voters were appended to the certificate of nomination as filed with the clerk Monday evening.
