SERGEANT HERMAN KORTH

(Company D, 121st Machine Gun Battalion, 32nd Division)

"For extraordinary heroism in action near Juvigny, north of Soisson, 31st of August. Under heavy fire from machine guns and artillery, Sergeant Korth crawled to the crest of a hill, setting stakes to line our artillery on enemy machine-gun emplacements. He remained in this perilous position for half an hour, signaling back when our troops were endangered by the fire of the batteries."

Official Citation for Distinguished Service Cross.

Sergeant Korth was born in a little German town on the Rhine, but he was "made in America." And he kept faith with America.

He, and thousands of boys like him, have given us lessons in patriotism that we may not soon forget.

The possibility of Eternal Life on there, but one is the life, depends upon possession of Eternal Life possibilities.

Music would be a meaningless jumble of sounds to a person without musical comprehension it would mean nothing at all to a person born deaf.

The most ravishing sunrise would not exist at all to a blind person.

Eternal Life is the flowering of capacities that already exist in human possibility.

Time and place have nothing to do with Life. It is not, to here that is to say Life is Life, here, there, anywhere, everywhere.

Life is a citizen of the universe. The mechanical division of this world and the next world mean nothing to the soul. There is a Universe over which the soul is master.

The kingdom of heaven is within the consciousness.

When one responds to the qualities that are God's Life he is an Eternal Soul. This is Eternal Life to know, to be in harmony, with God.

OUR NATIONAL CAPITAL

"RUNNING INDUSTRIAL AFFAIRS"

Washington, D. C. April 19. — Those who will stretch their memories back to the winter of 1914-15, when the bread lines were common in the big cities, and when institutions like the Hotel Dutnik were doing a big business in New York, are likely to arrive at the conclusion that there was more unemployment in this country at that time than is represented in the entire total of 4,000,000 men in uniform. There were millions of unemployed people in the country before the war and such lack of labor demand as exists at the present time ought to be only temporary, and should disappear with the resumption of normal activities. A good deal of the apparent lack of employment is doubtless due to the desire for changes which seems to be widespread. Returning soldiers are generally looking for new occupations instead of returning to their old posts. Coupled with this, if the Canadian experience is a criterion, we must look for a certain loss of initiative and lack of willingness to assume responsibility, which military service seems to have fostered. Good judges predict the largest volume of business in our history in the years just before us. All the trade barometers, such as greater strength in the raw material purchasing, increased wholesaling and retail; and an apparent determination on the part of manufacturers and others to develop domestic and foreign trade, are indications of "Better times ahead."

"Running the Telephones"

Postmaster General Burleson started his telephone administration with the promise that he would reduce rates — and he has raised them for local and long distance service. And P. M. G. said he was going to consolidate the lines all over the country. His latest order is to release something like 10,000,000 small companies from Government management; and he evidently has forgotten all about "consolidation." If there is one individual in the United States who should be convinced that Government management of telephones is a failure and an imposition upon the public, that individual is the P. M. G. of the United States.

"Running the Railroads"

Ever since the Government took over the operation of the railroads two important things have been happening, i. e.; wages have been raised time and again, and rates have been advanced. The latest increase in wages brings the total increase up to $1,365,000,000 more than before the war. "Cheaper administration" under the Government has resulted in tremendous deficits for the past year. But Uncle Sam has sprinkled his benefits with a bounteous hand, and railroad stockholders whose coupons have been kept good by the Government, are not complaining a great deal with the accumulation of results. But the public —well, you remember what Commodore Vanderbilt said about the "public," when he was in the railroad business.

"Running the Street Railways"

War boards were created for mostly every imaginable purpose. One of these had the power to raise the wages of street car employees—and it did it. It may have had the power to help rename these utilities, the same as has been done with the steam roads; but instead of doing this sensible thing the aforesaid board "recommended that local bankers accommodate the utilities." This particular war board found the street railways in a predicament as to how to "get by," since they were tied by five-cent fare agreements. So it heaped on a lot of additional burdens, and turned the roads loose. As a result 500 miles of street railway track has been abandoned in the United States during the past year, and the communities that have had to depend upon these transportation facilities have "had to walk or go afoot."

Washington has fairly gurgled with advice to city officials regarding a readjustment of the relations between the municipalities and the street railway companies. But an analysis of actual results from Washington shows that the Federal Government has simply increased the burdens of the utilities, instead of making things better. It costs from fifty to one hundred per cent more to run a street railway now than it did when the companies secured their franchises with the cities. Still the protest against increased fares goes up from newspapers that used to sell for one cent, and now are two cents; and from all classes of business men and citizens who are selling their goods and services at twice as much as they formerly did.

"Running the Labor of the World"

People should learn not to speak lightly of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; director of the war policy with reference to labor; and candidate for the exalted position that will place "running the labor of the world" in his keeping. If the Rockefellers and the Morgans should suddenly have the wealth of Croesus added to their hordes they would not be able to tell the national administration exactly what it must do, as did Mr. Gompers in the case of the threatened railroad strike in the fall of 1916 and as he did in innumerable cases daily, all thru the world war.

Having finished his job in the United States in a way satisfactory to himself, Mr. Gompers has been concerning himself with the world situation, and he went abroad and fixed up international labor legislation," and by means of a committee reported the findings to the peace conference. Upon his return to the United States the committee looked the Gompers report over, and thought it should be amended slightly, whereupon Mr. Gompers exploded as follows: "I cabled President Wilson that I am impelled to protest against any amendments or reopening of the covenant."

It remains to be seen whether Mr. Gompers can dictate as freely in the "democracy of the world," as he has autocratically done in the "democracy of America." One can hardly fail to recognize the fact that he has done good work in the interests of labor and the country, but in these days when kings and one-man power are exciting so much attention, his case ought to be considered.

"Running the Unscrambling Machinery"

When the armistice was signed November 11, the combined armies of the central powers totaled 7,630,000 men, while the allied strength was 16,700,000 men. In February the forces of the central powers had been reduced to 1,125,000, while the allied strength was 13,366,000, or a ratio of about twelve to one. These figures ought to quiet the fears of those who are afraid that it will start up again." The War Department has set a mark for bringing home 310,000 men a month from France. Up to April 5th the releases from the Army had reached 1,624,171 men and officers.

Is Your Blood Starving For Want of Iron?

Iron is Red-Blood Food—Nuxated Iron Helps Put Roses Into the Cheeks of Women and Strength and Energy Into the Veins of Men.

If you were to go without eating until you became weak, thin and emaciated, you could not do a more serious harm to yourself than when you let your blood literally starve for want of iron—that gives it strength and power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. Without plenty of iron in the blood, no matter how much or what you eat, you may not assimilate enough food to do you any good, you may not get the strength out of it and instead of being filled with youthful strength and energy you are weak, nervous and all run-down. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two three grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form. But don't take the old kinds of iron simply to have a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like Nuxated Iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. You can procure Nuxated Iron from your druggist on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction or your money will be refunded.

SPRING FEVER

Following Colds, Grippe, Thin, Watery or Poisoned Blood

(By Dr. Valentine Mott.)

At this time of year most people suffer from what we term "spring fever" because of a stagnant condition of the blood, because of the toxic poisons stored up within the body during the long winter. We are much more with pale or no green vegetables.

Bad effect people, thin, anemic people, those with pale cheeks and lips, who have a poor appetite and feel that tired, worn or feverish condition in the spring time of the year, should try the refreshing blood purifier. Such a tonic as drug-gists have sold for fifty years, is Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a standard remedy that can be obtained in tablet or liquid form. Made without alcohol from wild roots and barks.

Occasionally one should "clean house" with castor oil or tiny pills made up of the Mandrake, leaves of aloe and jalap, and sold by almost all druggists in this country as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Tractor Performance is Governed by Lubrication

The service and power your tractor delivers—its performance—depends largely on lubrication—a gas-tight piston-to-cylinder seal—every bearing and moving part cushioned against wear and running [illegible].

Ordinary motor oils are not suitable because tractors work for hours at full load and develop an extra high operating heat—especially when kerosene is the fuel. They need a special oil.

SoCony Gas Engine Tractor Oil is the oil leading tractor manufacturers recommend. It retains its body and lubricating qualities at high cylinder heat. Coats valve mechanism, shafts and bearings with a protective film of pure lubricant. Cushions cylinders and piston rings against wear and maintains full compression. Gets all the usable power out of the fuel.

Keeps tractors powerful and fit the year round at the smallest cost for oil, fuel and repairs.
