FAIR PLAY.

I heard somebody say, not long ago, "Let's have fair play." Somehow that struck a note of response. That is what is needed. Fair play, in every part and condition of life. More or less we are all subject to the conditions that surround us. The environment. Some men and women are pulling a whole lot behind them, because of hereditary conditions. Don't Crowd them. Give them "fair play." Just a chance to make good; and you'll be surprised.

There is the new Village Board who have just assumed office. Men looking out for your interests, Mr. Taxpayer, and doing it without pay. Looking after the interests of your growing village and trying to make it a place worthy the home of any man. Now, give them a chance, "fair play." It is easy enough to stand on the outside and kick, growl and tell how it might be, but suppose you put yourself in their place, would you do any better? Give them fair play. Let them make good. They are men of ideals and will give the village an administration just as good and even better than some of the non—supporters. The only way to make a village what it should be is to unite, give the "other fellow" credit for what he does and then give your neighbor "fair play".

STOP THAT NAGGING

"Say, Henry, I wish you wouldn't be so uneasy. Why can't you keep still? Never saw a boy like you! Why, when I was a youngster, folks behaved better than they do now-a-days." Words similar to these the writer heard in a home, when a bright boy, full of life and spirit was being "nagged" into a petulant young manhood. He is not the only one, either. Some folks seem to forget that they were once young and wanted to have as good a time as the other fellow. "Say, Henry, don't slam that door. Henry, wipe your feet, handle the book at the mud you brought in. Why can't you be more careful? When I was a child"—what is the use of going any farther, every reader can fill in the remainig part of it. We have heard it again and again. Many a boy and a girl has found their feelings sour because of the harsh way in which things have been said to them. If you want to keep that boy and that girl sweet in disposition, stop that "nagging". If you want your home to be the "little heaven on earth" it should be, stop nagging.

Say, man just a word for you. Don't nag that wife of yours. That's the other side of it. I can't believe men intend to be unkind to their wives. It's simply forgetfulness. He comes in today. Hear him nag. "Dinner ready? No, never is." He might have left the "never is" out. That was the stab of a nagger. She was busy. Perhaps that neighbor kept her. That sick child—might have been one of a hundred things. You can't tell. Quit your nagging. Some of you have mottoes in your homes, "I need The every hour." Sometimes it seems as though it might be displaced by Wesley's "I'd as soon swear as fret" would at least be a reminder. Think it over. "I'd as soon swear as fret". wouldn't you.

Gets Back Money

A fat pension voucher has recently been sent to Charles Hauber of Alma, by the pension bureau. It amounts to $1,047 and consists of a pension at the rate of $2.00 per month from November 6, 1883 to December, 19, 1894, and at a rate of $10 per month from Dec. 19, 1894, to Feb. 23, 1903. Hauber was private in Co. H 65th N. Y. Vol. in the Civil war and his claim for pension was not acted upon until now.

Mr. F. G. Fritts, Oneonta, N. Y., writes: "My little girl was greatly benefitted by taking Foley's Orino Laxative, and I think it is the best remedy for consitpation and liver trouble." Foley's Orino Laxative, is best for women and children, as it is mild, pleasant and effective, and is a splendid spring medicine, as it cleans es the system and clears the complexion. Notes From Albany

Bill Introduced Providing for Direct Primaries.

Bill Would Be Abolished.

Albany, March 31—Hearings have been begun on the Hinman-Green primary bill, in which there is greater interest than any other measure now pending. This is the bill which proposes to substitute the nomination of political candidates by direct vote in place of conventions. If enacted it would mean a complete change in the management of the political affairs of the state and in consequently of what interest to all who are in any wise interested in politics. The discussion, which has thus far taken place has developed very strong opposition to the bill, not so much on the part of those who are active in party politics as from those who may fairly be classed as independents.

Interest has been added to the situation by the introduction of a bill by Assemblyman Phillips of Allegany county which is designed to safeguard the primaries with substantially the laws which govern the general election while retaining the representative or convention form of nominations. This bill proposes to amend the general election law relative to the conduct of primaries and applies to rural localities where no official primaries are now required. It requires notice of such primary to be certified to the custodian of the primary records by the chairman of the general committee at least twenty days before primary day and published not more than ten or less than five days before the primary day in one Republican and one Democratic newspaper in the city or town where the primaries are being held. This notice must specify the day of the primaries, the hours during which it will be held and the location of each polling place, the name of the party or parties whose election will be held and the conventions, committees and offices for which delegates, members or candidates are to be chosen. An official primary day is required which shall not be prior to Aug. 1, except in presidential years.

Changes Under Hinman Bill.

Under the Hinman-Green bill very startling changes would come about. For instance, it provides that each state committeemen in selecting candidates for state offices shall cast one vote for his unit of representation and one additional vote for each 1,000 votes or major fraction thereof cast within that unit of representation. This would give each state committeeman the power to vote for all the counties in his district, whereas under the present convention system each county in the district may speak for itself. In the Twenty-fourth senatorial district, for example, which includes the counties of Delaware, Otsego, Ulster and Schoharie, all these counties would have to be voted for one candidate. At the primaries the people of these three counties might have given majorities against that candidate and have been outvoted by the people of the remaining county. Under this law a county with smaller population might control a county of much larger population. One of the examples cited on this point is the Thirty-fourth senatorial district, made up of the counties of Oswego and Jefferson. At the last election Oswego county gave 10,144 votes for Governor Hughes and Jefferson county gave 11,006 for him. By reason of the large number of wards in the cities of Oswego and Fulton the county of Oswego would have more votes in a senatorial convention under the proposed law than the county of Jefferson—namely, Oswego 131, Jefferson 127.

Great Power of Committemen.

Generally speaking, under the Hinman bill in the cities those who are members of the county committee are also to serve as members of the senatorial and congressional committee, and as nominations are to be presented to the primary by the committeemen this bill would place in the hands of a single group tremendous power in the selection of candidates for all offices.

The Party Council.

Serious objection is made to that portion of the Hinman-Green bill which provides for a party council composed of the candidates for office and the members of the political committee. There are at most to be elected at a given general election seven state candidates, exclusive of judges of the court of appeals. The state committee organized under congressional districts would number thirty-seven. Unless it should develop in practice that the candidates selected by the committee to serve not only personally, but as a policy of state government, in the preparation of the platform in this convention the candidates may either support the platform or stand upon a platform to which they are opposed or the committee charged with the management of the campaign would be in the position of supporting candidates whose principles they did not indorse. The whole situation would be anomalous and, it is feared by those who have given the most serious consideration to it, would inevitably result in such party disruption as has occurred in Wisconsin, Illinois and other states where the direct primary has been tried.

No More State Conventions.

The Hinman-Green primary bill would abolish all state conventions. In this bill should go into effect there would be no general party gathering at which political conditions through out the state may be discussed and the party interests and welfare considered. This, it is argued, is not only breaking up what has been one of the most helpful elements in the political life of the state, but it is contrary to what is considered the necessities wherever any considerable body of men attempt to maintain an organization.

"This cannot be better illustrated," said one speaker, "than in the case of the churches. Nearly if not quite all denominations have their general denominational meeting, such as the general assembly in the Presbyterian church, the council in the Congregational church, etc. At these meetings the general policy to be pursued—questions of doctrine perhaps or of creed which correspond with the party platform in politics—is discussed and adopted or otherwise. As applied to politics such a gathering is of great practical value, particularly in this state, where the interests are so great and so diverse. For example, a considerable section of the state is immediately interested in the canals, an other in the forest preserve. Various localities where state institutions are located are familiar with conditions affecting their management. In short the business of the state, which must be managed by the party in power and in which all citizens of the state are interested, some to a greater and some to a less extent, cannot be discussed intelligently except at a party convention where all these questions and information may be freely disseminated and where what may be determined to be for the general welfare of the people may be embodied in a party platform."

Long Campaign.

The Hinman-Green bill proposes that the state committee shall file its candidates to be voted for at the primary eight weeks before the official primary day. An official primary day is fixed as the seventh Tuesday before the general election. This would bring the time for filing by the state committee early in July and would mean that the political campaign in each year when a state ticket is to be elected must be prosecuted during the entire summer. To those who think the business and commercial world are too much upset by political campaigns under the existing system this doubling the length of campaigns does not appeal.

General Enrollment.

Under the Hinman-Green bill a complete enrollment is required in all communities even with a population of less than 5,000. It provides that this enrollment by parties may be made by the election officer, who shall place on the several party lists those who are known to be affiliated with the respective parties. Personal attendance at the polling place is not required for those whose political affiliations are not known, but the election officers are required to mail a blank to those who are not enrolled on which the voter may designate his party and return it to the election officer, who shall on a given day correct the list by the addition of such names. This system, of course, would obliterate anything like secrecy as to an individual's politics, inasmuch as it requires that before the primary and before the election the voter shall in the open declare his politics, while the sealed envelopes which are used in cities where personal enrollment is required now would not be in use. This may be an advantage or disadvantage, according to the views of individuals, but to those who have been strict advocates of the secret ballot, with all that it implies, this proposition of the Hinman-Green bill seems a step in the wrong direction.

Date of Adjournment.

There is talk in the air of a possible adjournment late in April. The appropriation bills have been pretty thoroughly considered in the Senate and the Assembly is now giving them its attention. Not a single one of the appropriation bills has been introduced, and there seems to be no likelihood of its being in the front.

Mr. Rogers Offers To Compromise

Will Pay His Creditors 30 Cents on the Dollar.

W. M. Rogers, of Troupsburg offers to compromise with his creditors at 30 cents on the dollar.

J. O. Sebring his attorney has sent to each of Mr. Rogers creditors the following statement.

"Mr. Henry M. Rogers informs us that you are one of his creditors. On account of losses resulting from his sickness, he now finds himself unable to pay his obligations in full. He is compelled to adopt one of two Bankruptcy Act of compromise with his creditors. The former he can do at any time without the consent of any one; the latter he can only do with the consent of all his creditors. Experience demonstrates that in Bankruptcy, the assets are always largely consumed in costs, attorney's fees, trustee's fees, etc. etc., leaving little or nothing for the creditors.

Mr. Rogers has agreed to turn over to his creditors every dollar that he has in the world leaving himself penniless. He prefers that his assets go directly to the creditors, rather than have them consumed in Bankruptcy expenses.

He now has the following property: $2100 on deposit in the State Bank at sale of his personal property, and $59 owing him on claims, making in all $4,190. He is owing approximately $14,700. as you can see all of his property now, if divided among the creditors, would only give them about 27 per cent of their debts. He has books and letters to show how he has paid his creditors30 per cent more than could be realized from his property. The difference will be made up by some of his friends.

We for ward you herewith a proposed agreement to be signed by his creditors. If satisfactory to you, please sign and acknowledge it before a Notary Public or Justice of the Peace and return it to us immediately. We enclose you a stamped envelope in which to return the same.

Carnegie Building Review It.

Members of the Peace Society of the City of New York and a large gathering of others interested in international arbitration listened recently to addresses by Andrew Carnegie and Baroness Von Suttner, Chinese statesmen, at the Carnegie hall celebration in New York city of the present condition of world peace.

Mr. Carnegie arraigned the policy of the present British government in regard to building navies, which, he said, had revived the spirit and begun an international race in providing armaments. The steel man, however, expressed his approval of the suggestion made by a London writer for an Anglo-American alliance in the interests of peace in the Atlantic and the Pacific. Speaking of this plan, Mr. Carnegie said in part:

This idea seems to have merits. We would simply announce to the world that we would not permit any power to attack these Commonwealths. On the other hand, Britain would not be committed to engage in any war in which we unfortunately engaged. Any power attacking us would know it could not attack our Pacific possessions without having Britain to contend with.

It would be made a condition that the one would not help the other unless the party involved in dispute with another power should first offer settlement by peaceful arbitration. This being refused by its adversary, the treaty then to become binding.

The suggestion seems well worthy of consideration. It may be a step toward the final solution of the peace of the world by peaceful arbitration. We are not without justification for indulging the hope and belief that the leading nations, furthest advanced in civilization, must come eventually to this conclusion.

In conclusion Mr. Carnegie said:

Be of good cheer. No great cause is making such rapid progress as that of the peaceful arbitration of international disputes. There are those present tonight who will live to see war discarded by civilized nations. Just as in our own generation slavery, man owning, has passed away, so are the youth of today to see man killing no longer disgracing civilization. Be of good cheer. All goes well. Men are soon to beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks and learn war no more.

Wu Ting Fang said that the policy of China must be primarily for peace and that any activity in providing an army and navy was only for protection.

THE LATEST TRIUMPH OF THAT MIGHTY NEWS.

Professor Hans of Munich, Germany, and Dr. Sabouraud of France, share the honor of having discovered the hair microbe.

Baldness is not caused through few weeks' work of these hair microbes, but is the result of ceaseless work by the spirit and begun many moons ago. The hair microbes may not occur until years after the microbes began work, but it is certain to come sooner or later.

The microbes cut off the blood supply. They feed on the fatty matter about the root of the hair, through which the blood is absorbed. The ally the fatty matter is wholly consumed, the food supply of the hair is gone and it starves and finally dies.

Rescorin is one of the most effective germ destroyers; Beta Napthol is both germicidal and antiseptic, Pilocarpin, though not a dye, restores natural color to hair when loss of color was caused by disease. These curatives properly mixed with alcohol as a stimulant, perfect a remedy unequalled for curing scalp and hair troubles.

We want everyone who has any scalp or hair trouble to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, which contains all these ingredients. If it does not grow hair on your bald head, stop your hair from falling out, cure you of dandruff; make your hair thick, silky, luxuriant; if it does not give you complete satisfaction in every particular, return the empty bottle to us, and we shall return every penny you paid us for it, without question or formality.

Of course, you understand that when we say that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will grow hair on bald heads, we do not refer to cases where the roots are entirely dead, the pores of the scalp closed, and the head has the shiny appearance of a billiard ball, in cases like this, there is no hope. In all other cases of baldness Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will positively grow hair, or cost the user nothing. Two sizes 50c. and $1.00.
