OH, BOY!

Talk About Comfort

Can you imagine? It's about 100 in the shade. The perspiration is oozing out in generous quantities. Men all about you are mapping their brows with prodigious energy. Old Sol is sizzling with a vengeance. And yet you stand the heat without a tremor. Cool, and collected. And you're on your way with a certain knowledge that the airy breezy suit you have on will look just as fresh and fit to morrow as it does to-day. It's the kind you have dry-cleaned or sub-washed with no danger to the shape retaining qualities.

GREENWOOD LOCAL BRIEFS

The Germans sank their fleet of warships, anchored off Kiel, rather than surrender them to the Allies. Their value should be added to the indemnity that they are to pay the Allies.

Mrs. Florence Brault, who unintentionally shot herself at her home in Hornell, Thursday, died at the St. James Mercy Hospital Tuesday. She probably thought the gun not loaded and the terrible result is another lesson on the danger of pointing a gun thinking it empty.

The Germans sign the Treaty of Peace evidently with mental reservations and will treat it as a "scrap of paper" whenever they wish as they did their guarantee of the neutrality of the territory of Belgium.

As the matter stands the authorities cannot search private homes for intoxicants. This is a relief as one can now keep a drop or two on hand to prevent sickness without fear of searchers appropriating it to their own use.

Henry W. Young departed this life at his home in this village on Wednesday of last week after a lingering illness of many months.

Mr. Youngs was born 74 years ago in Greenwood, on the Young's homestead farm and on which he resided a large portion of his life.

He was a leading citizen of the place and highly respected by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. He was a prominent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of this place and always active in church work.

Mr. Youngs left him surviving his widow and one daughter, Mrs. William P. Trowbridge, of Hornell; one brother, John S. Young, and one sister, Mrs. L. D. Scribner, of Greenwood.

The funeral services were held at the M. E. Church, Saturday afternoon, Rev. W. Chapman Jones of Hornell and Rev. Guy Overshiro, pastor of the church, officiating.

Interment was at Greenwood Cemetery.

The world says in its editorial columns. "Road-tarring is proving injurious to fish life in England, causing in some instances the death of trout and salmon thru the pollution of streams. An inquiry might be worth while as to this country being exposed to a similar danger.

Traffic needs are important but they should not involve the destruction of any wild life useful for food." Perhaps the state and county roads along the banks of our rivers and creeks may have something to do in causing the death of fish in our streams.

REVEAL WAR SECRETS IN MOTION PICTURES

What General Pershing's Army Did Shown in "The Price of Peace."

Some of the most carefully guarded secrets concerning the military movements of the United States during the great war have been released by the Federal censor. The pictorial record of the war, as shown by official photographs, taken under supervision of the government, is now revealed to the public in the great war film, "THE PRICE OF PEACE."

This is the official motion picture authorized by the Treasury Department for use in the Victory Liberty Loan drive.

There is no phase of the war that is not covered by the pictures shown, from the scene in President Wilson's office when he signed the declaration of war, April 6, 1917, to a remarkable view of the Statue of Liberty in the lower New York Harbor taken when the troops were returning home.

Mobilization of the great National Army, the departure of the boys on the transports from the ports of embarkation, showing such mighty ships as the Leviathan with 10,000 troops aboard, moving silently away from the piers toward France, the bustling movements of the saucy but terrible destroyers, the great battleships steaming out to meet whatever might have been in waiting, the landing in France, the march to the camp and the constant flow of the troops to the other side, convoyed by the great warships so secretly that hardly a breath of the movement reached the enemy's ears, all these are shown.

Then there are pictured also stirring scenes in Belleau Wood, where the Marine Corps checked the German charge; at Chateau Thierry, where the foe was hurled back by American bayonets, and the battle scenes around St. Mihiel, where Pershing's men drew a deadly noose around the German advance. The fighting in the Argonne, with its desperate attacks and counter attacks, is vividly portrayed. More peaceful scenes are also shown in the views of the Americans marching down the Valley of the Rhine after the armistice, their Christmas festivities and the preparations of some of the units for their home-going and finally their arrival home.

One of the most thrilling views is that of the boys, after their months of intensive training, getting ready to go over the top on that eventful morning on July 18, when they deployed out into the wheat fields at 4:45 o'clock in the morning. Other impressive scenes show a fight between airmen, the fall of the enemy and the destruction of a "sausage" balloon.

Not the least interesting are the pictures of the "Big Berthas," which failed to demoralize the French, and of the surrender of the German High Sea Fleet.

The whole comprises a complete pictorial history of the war, and the only appeal made for the loan is a brief one by Secretary Glass. It is a record of gallant deeds superbly performed, impressive and inspiring.

When your country calls
Lend more than your ear.

As the boys come back, more and more now, all the time, let's show them that we welcome them and that we are going to do our share as they did theirs abroad! Let them see our welcoming smiles, and let them feel them in the subscriptions we make to the Victory Loan!—Mary Graham Bonner

Thirty-two thousand members of the Knights of Columbus served the colors during the war, while 1,000 secretaries did welfare work in Europe and 671 in this country, Michael J. Larkin, state deputy, told the state convention at Geneva in a summary of the war service of the order.

The police men's and firemen's pension law in Syracuse will be amended, if possible, at the next session of the legislature to permit the city to retain the services of Chief T. F. Ryan of the fire department, and Deputy Chief of Police William O'Brien, after they reach the age of 65 next year.

Willard McKinstry, aged 60, twice civil service commissioner of the state of New York, former clerk of the ways and means committee of the legislature and for many years managing editor of the Watertown Daily Times, died at his home in Watertown. He was born at Fredonia, Chautauqua county.

Bath business men soon will place in circulation petitions asking for a return of the mail service enjoyed before the government took over the management of the railroads at the outbreak of the war. The return of the midafternoon mail eastward to Elmira and other points, as well as the afternoon mail to Rochester, will be asked.

The state industrial commission reports that the total of wages paid by factories of New York state in April shows no marked changed over the previous month. There was a decline of less than 1 per cent when the number of workers practically stationary, which resulted in an average weekly earning of $21.11, or 9c less than in March.

William Millard, of Wellsville, was reading the Buffalo News last week Thursday and the following article came to his notice: "Physicians are puzzling over the case of a woman about 27 years old who has been in a stupor since Saturday, when she was found in lower Main Street by a detective." A description which followed convinced Mr. Millard that the woman was his sister, who lives in Detroit, Mich. He immediately went to Buffalo and at the hospital learned that the unfortunate woman had died and an autopsy held which convinced the physicians that her death was caused from sunstroke. The remains had been removed to the morgue where Mr. Willard found them and easily recognized her as his sister.

He brought the body to Wellsville where, after a short service, they were taken to Angelica, where her parents are living, for burial.

The dead woman's husband has not been located at this writing nor the reason of her being alone in Buffalo, solved.

WAIT ORDER AMERICAN JUNE 20.

Men's Taste in Dress Far Better Than Women's

"No wife should ever smile at her husband's clothes," says Charles G. Shaw, the distinguished professor of psychology at New York University. The man who is not extremely sensitive about the impression his clothing makes is rare indeed.

And there is good reason for this sensitiveness according to Professor Shaw. In a most interesting and instructive article in the New York Sunday American for June 29th he presents some surprising evidence to prove that men have infinitely better taste in dress than women.

"Women's attire is meaningless and violates all the fundamental laws of aesthetics," says the professor. "Men's clothes on the other hand are the result of natural evolution and not only appeal to our sense of beauty but serve the purpose for which they were intended in a highly efficient way."

Professor Shaw presents with the article some extremely interesting photographs to support his contention.

If you are going to buy something which costs a dollar less at one place than to another, isn't it worth while knowing where to buy at the lower price?

The Boylen resolution to provide service ribbons and honor medals for residents of the state who served in the world war, has passed the assembly. The measure now goes to the governor.

The peace crop is the only one in the great fruit county of Niagara that gives promise of being large this year, according to Prof. L. E. Strickland, inspector of plant industry for the state with orchards in Niagara and Orleans counties under his direction. He told the story of the present condition of the orchards to the Niagara County Farmers' club at Warren's Corners.

Commissioner of Agriculture Wilson announces that 75 county and town agricultural fair associations paid out $298,202.71 at fairs held in 1918 and will receive a pro rata share of $250,000 appropriated by the state for the encouragement of agriculture and of domestic arts. The state's policy is for the promotion of the breeding of cattle, swine, sheep, poultry and horses through awards at fairs.

Dr. James Dearden of New York city has been elected president of the New York State Association of Elks in New York, being the unanimous choice of the delegates. Other officers elected were: William H. Rylandt, Gloversville, first vice president; J. S. Brayton, Rochester, second vice president; James B. Hobert, Staten Island, third vice president; Howard W. Fluhrer, Oneonta, fourth vice president; Jay Farrier, Oneida, treasurer, and A. W. Foot, Utica, secretary.

Baldwins, which are the most widely grown commercial apple in Western New York, are reported to be light and scattered bloom and the same conditions regarding this variety prevail in Genesee county, according to the Genesee county farm bureau. Insects in that county have a heavy bloom, while all varieties in general have a fair bloom. There were excellent conditions for the pollination of the fruit, although the actual set of apples cannot be determined till the June drop has taken place.

New York state's treasury was swelled by $1,111,721 during May as a result of the operation of the stock transfer tax. This is the largest amount netted for a single month since the tax became operative in 1905. The May receipts bring the total from this source for 11 months of the current fiscal year to $5,910,462. This brings the 11 months' total to more than $500,000 in excess of last year's full quota. Comptroller Travis also predicted that estimate of $6,000,000 revenue from this source would be materially increased by the close of the present fiscal year, June 30th.
