IT COSTS TOO MUCH.

These are Anxious days for Thousands of students in our public schools, and too hear the remarks of the students as they discuss the prospects of passing the Exam's; and the looks of anxiety on their faces, one would suppose that their life depended on their passing. Three times within a few weeks has the Press, chronicled the fact of the untimely death of young men or young women who have taken their life by their own hand. Cause? The coroners jury in each case says, "Over study or over work.' The Governors' son recently lay at the point of death and his parents were hastily summoned to his bedside. Cause, the physicians say, overstudy. There are probably hundreds of cases that do not reach the public ear of health undermined by too close an application to the school.

If an education must be secured at the cost of health and life. IT COSTS TOO MUCH. Or else the system is wrong that compels a system of cramming and awards a pupil a diploma only because they have so many points which were mostly gotten by the correct answer to trap questions while the daily average and year's work of the student counts in many cases for naught. A live dog is better than a dead lion. A boy or girl with full health and the fundamental of a practical education is a thousands times bettre than a boy or girl filling a grave in the cemetery.

Oh ye fathers and mothers, when will you awaken to the fact of it all? If your children get their education at the cost of heath. It is too great a cost. Of course this does not refer to the strong ambitous always ready stand- anything sort of a fellow. They can do it, but, there needs to be discriminating judgement used by the parent and a watching for the first signals of danger.

Get your boys and girls out in the open air and keep them there during the pleasant weather and if your son has a taste for athletics let him follow them. Many a time has a game of baseball saved a physicial breakdown, and put new life and ginger into a broken life.

Here is a hint. (It costs too much somebody will say when they read it,) Let the Board of Education, get grounds and reserve them for athletic purposes and keep them in shape too. Have, the same aparatus they have on some of the play grounds in the cities. Horizontal bars, vaulting pole, Swinging rings, and afine diamond. Cost too much. Can't stand the taxes, Well, after all it costs too much not to do it. Such a ground as that would do a work the churches don't do. It would keep the young men off the street, give them a place to go. Teach them to live out in the open and who can tell, it might prevent some from dodging down back alleys and keep them from things they might wish to do unseen. It would be a health-bringer to say the least and when school opened next fall boys and girls with sturdy bodies and vigorous minds would be ready to undertake the year's work. It costs to much to weaken a life. It costs too much to be too parsomonious. Think it over and you will come to the same conclusion we have. If your son and daughter gets a diploma at the cost of health THE COST IS TOO GREAT

The vacation time has come and people are already planning for the rest period Did it ever occur to you that the Devil never rests? He only changes the sphere of his activity, from the closed church to the summer resort That's All

President Taft, recently said that if God Lord would send some hot weather the Senators would get busy and pass the tariff, if hot weather is the only thing that will keep U. S. Senators busy. There is a prospect that some of them will be kept pretty busy, in the hot place when they shake off this mortal coil.

Generosity is a trait of nability. The generous man is a man of broad mind. The mistake is that often we misunderstand the terms used. When we use the word generoke in this sense it does not mean to be free with money and lavish in the expenditure of it. Rather it refers to the side of life that any one can afford to use. What a fine condition of things it would make if Mr. Man was more generous in his opinions and his thoughts about others. If, for instance, he was more generous in the good things he said about his neighbors, and more generous in his kindnesses to everybody he met. Would'nt it make a great stir if just for a day everybody in the village life determined and lived up to the determination to make life full and free for one day of generous kindness and not a criticism, and neither an unkind word, but just a generous living for others. Some men are more generous to their hogs than they are to human kind and the world seems to catch on to the fact.

There was a man once, who was so interested in breeding hogs that he spent most of his time away from his family and gave his attention to the hogs. He wanted them to get the blue ribbon at the County fair. One day a neighbor called and found the little son out in front of the house playing in the road. "Father at home?" the visitor asked. "NO," replied the boy. "Where is he?" "Father" the boy said. "he's down there with the hogs, godown, you'll find him." You can tell father, he has a hat on."

Some folks like the company of hogs and the only way you can tell them is by their wearing apparel. Be generous, that's a llong way from any swinishnes and will make a happy and brighter day for anyone who will follow generosity.

The memory of man runneth not back to the time when the merchants of a certain village had the back bone and dug down in their pockets to pay for band concerts once a week. It paid them in outside trade coming to town in those days and it will again. Who has got public spirit enough to start things going?

A BUSINESS PARABLE.

Once a farmer had 1,800 bushels of wheat which he sold, not to a single grain merchant, but to 1,800 different dealers, a bushel each. A few of them paid in cash, but far the greater number said it was not convenient then they would pay later. A few months passed, and the man' bank account ran low.

"How is this?" he said, "My 1,800 bushels of grain should have kept me in affluence until another crop is raised, but I have parted with the grain and have instead only a vast number of accounts, so small and scattered that I cannot get around and collect fast enough to pay expenses." So he posted up a public notice and asked all those who awed him to pay quickly. But few came. The rest said, "Mine is only a small matter, and I will go and pay some of these days,"' forgetting that, though each account was very small, when all were put together they meant a large sum to the man. Things went on thus. The man got feeling so bad that he fell out of bed and awoke, and, running to his granery found his 1,800 bushels of wheat still safe there. He had only been dreaming. Moral.—The next day the man went to the publisher of his paper and said: "Here, sir, is the pay for your paper, and when next year's subscription is due you can depend on me to pay promptly. I stood in the position of an editor last night, and I know how he feels to have one's honestly earned money scattered all over the country in small amounts."—Ex.

Contentment

Let us learn to be content with what we have. Let us get rid of our false estimates, set up all the higher ideals—a quiet home; vines of our planting; a few books full of inspiration of a genius; a few friends worthy of being loved, and able to love us in return; a hundred innocent pleasures that bring no pain or remorse; a devotion to the right that will never swerve; a simple religion empty of all bigotry, full of trust and hope and love—and to such a philosophy this world will give up all the empty joy it has.

Elmira Man Weds Missionary

In order that they might work together in the missionary field, to which they have been called, Miss Effie Hope Faulkner, of Everett, Mass., and William Folk Baldwin, of Elmira, N. Y., were married at the home of the bride's parents. The young couple left on a wedding trip after the ceremony, which will ultimately bring them to Alaska, where they will remain for at least five years, and longer if necessary, at the Methodist missionary station at Sinuk

Rev. Lucius Bugbee, pastor of St. Mark's Methodist Church of Brookline, with which Miss Faulkner has been connected as deaconess for the past year, officiated.

PAINT

We are agents for the best paints sold and are trying to present the paint question in as clear and concise a manner as possible. We are taking as many "short cuts" as we can and trying to make the subject clear to those who may not be experts in paint.

First—What it is made of. Old Dutch Process White Lead, the best grade of White Zinc, Old Process Cold Pressed Linseed Oil, a litile Dryer and the necessary coloring pigments; contains no adulteration whatever.

Second.—What it will do. It will spread more freely, look better, go farther and wear longer than any other paint sold. It means a satisfactory job and economy in every way, ahead of all other paints, and it does not cost you any more. Come in and let us talk the paint question over with you.
