DON'T KEEP MOONING."

Mooning, Mooning, Mooning, That's what some people do, and then wonder why things are not different. Have you got the habit? Don't know what it is? Well its sitting down in what some folks call a brown study, just thinking, thinking, and doing nothing. Is the Business men's Association mooning? Wonder if they are! Better stop it and get busy. What at? Well, you just walk down Main street one of these bright summer days when the wind is playing tag with the dust, driving it in through open doors and windows, piling itself into every crack and crevice spoiling goods on store shelves. Up the nostrils of the pedestrain until its, sneeze, sneeze, making one think that the whole population had become snuff takers or were suddenly attacked with influenza. Even a camel would want a drink after such an experience as indicated. Now quit mooning, Don't wonder how. Get busy with a SPRINKLER. Consider this, how much would be the outlay if each merchant or property owner paid a trifle to support a sprinkling wagon during the summer months. Think of the comfort of it, Wouldn't that be better than the spasmodic sprinkling done by individuals? Of course it would. Now don't say how nice that would be. Stop mooning, let somebody start the ball rolling or rather the water running, and see how quickly there will be a response from a grateful public. There would surely be enough public spirited citizens to co-operate in such a plan. Moral (as the story books say) STOP MOONING, GET A SPRINKLER.

THE CURSE OF WEALTH.

There is now a case on trial in New York attracting world wide attention which is demonstrating the evils of too much money and too little occupation. The evidence in the case that has been given to the public is anything but savory and indicates that wealth will not bring happiness where there is incompatibility of disposition.

How humiliating it must be to both the plaintiff and the defendant, to have the inner doings of their lives paraded to the public gaze, it indicates the depths of depravity that even wealth wrongfully used will drag men and women into, but why must it be printed for young minds to get its nastiness? No one can read the doing of the pair, (and this has nothing to do with the merits or demerits of the case) but must conclude that they played "high jinks" whether at home or abroad and now the public are asked to wade through the slush of their social misdoings.

A wise man said many years ago, "Better is a dry morsel, and quietness therewith than a house full of good cheer with strife". The words are just as true to-day. Wealth is a curse to anyone if it means the same results that are being brought out in the trial mentioned.

There are skeletons' in other closets. This is only one of the many. This stalks forth for public gaze, what if some morning all the skeletons in family closets should walk the streets. Wouldn't there be a groaning? More than one family would hide its head while the multitude would say "that's the curse of wealth."

BE A PRODUCER.

We read many years ago in "Gullivers travels something like the following sentence. "And he gave it for his opinion that whoever could make two ears of corn, or two blades of grass, grow upon a spot where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind, and do more essential service to his country than the whole race of politicians put together." That opinion of the ancient novelist holds just as good to-day. The man or woman that produces something that didn't exist before is a benefactor of the race. That will be true of the man who produces a laugh, a clean hearty everyday laugh, that produces something. We are too much given to the serious side of things. Humor is a good thing and in its place is essential to the happiness of the people. Any man that can, ought to laugh. So get busy. Don't go down street with that long serious look and anxiety depicted in every line of your face. The world will wag on after you have left it, and go just as good, too. So don't think that you are responsible for everything. Do your part in your place, be a producer. Make somebody else happy and let the world share your good fortune.

You can't tell much about a place by the name. The town of CHILI is one of the hottest places on the glope.

You had better keep from the bottle (Booze), or you will find that the Bottle (Booze) won't keep away from you.

Fireworks and Bargains

Are you going to celebrate the 4th., with a few Fireworks in your own door-yard? Yes? Then let us furnish your Fireworks.

We have a large stock this year displayed in our big show-window, and it will pay you to buy here.

We also have a nice line of flags all sizes mounted on sticks.

Every Saturday we run a Bargain Table upon which from time to time you will find some real bargains in staple goods as well as Specials.

You can save money on many seasonable articles by coming here on Saturdays.

To-morrow among other things we offer a self-filling Fountain Pen for 21c. A regular 25c. Thermometer 19c. etc.

We honestly believe it will pay any one of you to take the trip to Wellsville Saturdays and get in on some of the bargains offered by the Merchants.

Saturday is bargain day and you will find this store—easily the lowest priced drug store in the county on any day—offering some wonderful values for little money. Central Drug store, Teeple-Green Co.. Both Phones, Wellsville, N. Y.

TO CONTINUE BUSINESS.

The Geo. Alger Estate to Continue The H. Alger & Son Shoe Store.

Monday, June 28th the Alger Shoe Store will close for the purpose of inventory and arrangement of stock. On Thursday July 1st the store will open for business and be continued by the Geo. T. Alger estate.

The stock now on hand will be divided into classes. The large surplus stock, lines to be discontinued broken lots and sizes, will be quoted at "Get Out of the Store Prices" and a sweeping clean out sale made to reduce the stock and work the business to a point where it can be settled by the estate, at which time Jesse Ostrander will take it over for the benefit of all concerned. New goods will be bought to hold the custom this store (The Shoe Home of Thousands) has enjoyed for many years.

TIP TOP.

Married

At the home of the bride in Alfred, June 23, 1909; by the Rev. L. C. Randolph, Miss E. Euphemia Green to Milford Crandall, of Independence, N. Y. About forty relatives and friends witnessed the impressive ceremony. The decorations, consisting of ferns and flowers, were very tasty. The bride was modestly arrayed in creamy white. Ample refreshments were served in a pleasing manner. Confetti was generously showered on the newly wedded couple. They received many beautiful and useful presents. At a late hour the guests departed, leaving many good wishes for the bride and groom.

Twenty years ago a man named Sears was a telegraph operator in a little Wisconsin town, and a man named Roebuck was a mail-order dealer in cheap watches. Now they are Sears-Roebuck of a Chicago firm with a capital of forty million—and they made every cent of that forty million by judicious and persistent advertising.

Officer Brundage was obliged to make an arrest at the Pond, Sunday. There have been a number of boys who are climbing "that" hill we hear of, who have been making themselves generally obnoxious to people visiting the pretty little resort, this spring. The sooner they are given to understand that such actions will not be tolerated the better. In this case the party arrested was not an Andover resident.

Base Ball News.

The Andover Stamping Company's base ball team have ordered new suits which are expected here in a week or so.

The baseball diamond has been improved. Base lines scraped and cleande. Arrangements are being made to have a game every Saturday afternoon with teams from near by towns.

A game has been arranged from the A. J. Deer company, of Hornell, for the coming Saturday afternoon, game to be called at 3 p. m. sharp. As this is the first visiting team to come to Andover it is hoped that a good turn out will be present.

The Moon and the Potato Crop

The moon has nothing to do with the growth of potatoes. The statement sounds about as self evident as a commencement oration, yet according to a recent investigation by the Department of Agriculture, seventy-five per cent of our farmers have been planting potatoes and other crops according to the almanac. It is a very general belief that potatoes planted in the dark of the moon produce the best crop while the full moon are likely to "run to tops".

It seems a bit absurd to suppose that a respectable old moon like ours could find nothing better to do than to stay up nights ruining the potato crop. So Uncle Sam, who has an unquenchable curiosity in such matters, began poking into the moon myth and discovered that it deserved respect only because of its age. His Agricultural Department workers found that they could raise just as poor potatoes in the dark of the moon as in the light.—Success Magazine.

Death From a Stone Bruise.

Friday night, Ethel Easton, the ten year-old daughter of Clarence Easton, of West Pike, died at the Galeton Hospital from blood poisoning. About the first of June the girl while playing contracted a stone bruise on the big toe of her right foot. Nothing was thought of the matter at the time. The first of the week the foot began to swell and became very painful. A physician upon examining the foot and limb decided that the girl was suffering from a severe attack of blood poisoning. Everything was done to save the girl but the poison had permeated through the whole system. Friday, as the last resort, she was taken to the Galeton Hospital, where she died Friday night.

Texas Hail Storm

In a letter received by O. E. Vars, his son, Clifford Vars, reports a terrific storm, which swept across a portion of Texas, last week. A cloud burst brought down a deluge of water which drowned a good many cattle, one man lossing seventy-five head. Mr. Vars was more fortunate than some of his neighbors as he only had one calf drowned. Following the rain hail stones fell, which measured eleven inches in circumference.
