HE GOT THERE.

Weston the great walker, a manover the seventy line has just got into San Francisco, after a three thousand mile trudge across the continent. He got there because he stuck to it, he plodded it through. That's a great thing to do, and if some of the folks would get the idea, how much would be accomplished for the betterment of things in local village life, and in fact for the world. If you will stop and think for a few seconds, you will reason it something like this: Weston stuck to the one thing made just common everyday walking a specialty, put grit into it and to-day while its no great shakes to say it, Weston is the walker of the country because he made walking a specialty and put determination and GRIT into the thing he was doing. Made an everyday common thing shine out and brought health to hundreds by inducing them to walk. Just so it is, in everything. Men talk about common occupations, there isn't a common occupation in the world to the man who puts his life into the thing in hand, THE BEST THAT IS IN HIM.

There was a lad worknig on a farm in the central part of the State. Other boys sneeringly said to him. "Oh! going to be a farmer, eh! Why don't you get into the professions?" That set the boy thinking. He farmed it, farmed it well, Found out the easiest way. Put thought into it. Changed conditions and methods. Went experimenting, scientifically. To-day he is a professor in Cornell, telling other men how to make a success of farming. He got out of the soil things other men couldn't see by putting thought into his calling. When he started men said "Oh, he is going to make a sacrifice of his life." Yes he did, like the base ball player that makes a sacrifice hit when a man is on third base, he brought the other fellow home and scored a run.

Men talk about the farm not being worthy of the best there is in a fellow, It is, and there is no better, paying independent life to-day than that of a farmer. We recall another young man who sat at the feet of the professor spoken of and adopted what some of the old foggies called his "FADS" that to-day is getting a salary of $2,200 and his family kept, because he put his best into farming and made it a profession.

Now apply the same principle to anything in life. Suppose for instance that every man and woman who believes in a bigger, better and freer Andover, put their life into booming our village. Result? Ten years and less will tell it. Make it what it ought to be, a community that GETS THERE. If the men and women who read this will stick to the one thing they can do successfully, and work it, even if it is a common, everyday occupation, they will get there, and when old age does come it will be the dawning of the day when the world has taken notice that they GOT THERE.

A GEAT COMBINATION.

A man down in New Jersey has recently invented a lawn mower to which is attached a music box, so that when the machine is in operation instead of the usual clatter, and crack, and whirr, of the lawn mower, which is a familiar sound wherever, people have the pride and ambition to keep their lawns looking nice, there is discoursed sweet strains of some popular air, and of course a corresponding satisfaction, to the worker and the people within sound of the musicial combination.

The writer cannot vouch for the truth of the newspaper report, however there is a lesson that may be taken from it, and perhaps some suggestions which in this hot weather even may help to make life more endurable.

Work and music, that's a great combination. There isn't a man or a woman who reads this but will say that's sound logic, When you get music into your work things go easier, and perhaps there will come a mental picture of a dear old face long since gone from this world, that brings tender memories of a mother with her light step going about the household duties croning some old hymn, humming away while the work is swiftly accomplished by her light fingers, and there is not a man or woman that if it were possible would not rather again get the inspiration from an old tune "that mother used to hum" than all the classics from the highest paid singers the world has ever produced, be they ever so great.

Many a man when things have been going against him, when he has felt like a freight car, running wild down grade, and everything at the end, has pulled himself together and won out, by the tender memory and inspiration of some little music put into his life in the years agone.

Some folks keep working along and somehow all the music seems to have gone out of their lives while there are others, and they are the envy of all, keep life sweet and things going by the music that seems to be a part of their very existence.

You have seen folks sputter and snap until the sparks flew and then go out, like a burnt firecracker. Good folks, but lacking music. Now what is the thoughts? Just this, let some of the music get into the hard things you are trying to bring to pass and if you come up against a hard problem sing it through. You will help somebody also.

Did you ever see an old music grinder come along in the spring time after the long cold days of winter? Just livened up things, didn't he? You felt better and said, Spring has come, and somehow life took a rosier tinge. Thats it, you can get next to the fellow that has got a struggle put a song into his life, help him hum it through and you will find life sweeter for you and all therest. A smile, a word of encouragement just when needed is better than a tonic, and more helpful. TRY IT.

Grunting may do for a soak, but a live man will smile while the other fellow grunts.

You can't keep the bugs off your potatoes by whistling, it takes paris green and work.

Look out for the bottle, it will down you, after you have downed its contents.

Don't spend your time whining, when the other fellow is smiling.

It is much easier to pull than it is to push, be a puller.

Beer enthusiasm is biff, it isn't GRIT.

AVIATOR INJURED

Amateur Tried to Operate Curtiss Aeroplane and came to Grief..

A frightened amateur, sitting like a wooden man, went up at dawn yesterday in Glenn H. Curtiss' aeroplane hovered a moment in midair, then crashed to earth. The beautiful craft in which Curtiss made his remarkable flight yesterday was badly wrecked and the would-be aviator was lifted unconscious from the twisted frame, his left arm broken, his left thumb dislocated, his body bruised and his brain reeling. His injuries, however, are not serious and to-night he is in the Nassau Hospital at Mineola, L. J., while the battered aeroplane rests in its tent awaiting repairs.

The accident occured on Hempstead Plain, Mineola, where Curtiss has been given demonstrations for the New York Aeronautic Society, to which he recently sold his aeroplane. It was a member of the society, Alexander Williams, forty-two years old, who was injured. While Williams has driven many an auto, is familiar with gas engines and is somewhat of a machinist, he seemed to lose complete control of himself as the Curtiss aeroplane soared heavenward and when it had attained a height of ti irty feet the craft careened sharply to the right, swooped toward the earth, and striking on end, turned completely over, then rolled on its back. Williams remained pinned in his seat. He was delirious as a physician bent over him and muttered that some one had collided with him in the air. Fortunately Dr. J. Cocks of Port Washington, L. I., was on the field with an auto and gave Williams immediate medical attention and took him to the hospital in his auto.

Those who witnessed the fiasco say Williams simply had stage fright. His attempted flight followed a successful one made by Edward Foster Willard, of New York City, also a member of the Aeronautic Society.

Willard, who is twenty-eight years old remained in the air for twenty-eight seconds, making a short flight at an average height of twenty feet. He descended without mishap, although it was his first experience in an aeroplane. He alighted nearly a quarter of a mile from the starting point. Curtiss then took teh machine and made a beautiful flight back, cutting several sharp turns and ascending at one time for more than a hundred feet, then shooting swiftly downward until he was only thirty feet above the earth. The witnesses of the bird-like drop, among them A. M. Herring, himself an aeroplanist of note, say that it was extremely spectacular.

Back at the starting point Williams took his seat in the machine and shot away in the morning light. Williams sat apparently motionless and made no effort to manipulate the rudder to keep the craft from rising. Consequently it began shooting upward, turning at the same time toward the right like a ship unsteered when it had attained a height of about thirty feet the dip to the right became dangerous and the aeroplane, reeling began its fall. The descent and the impact was sufficient to shatter a number of ribs, break both the left and right wing tips and the front control. When it rolled over the engine continued to work and the propeller was shattered as it struck the ground. A week's work at least will be required to patch up the flyer and it will probably be necessary to send to Hammondsport, N. Y., where Curtis has his shop for duplicate parts.

The Aeronautic Society paid $5,000 for the aeroplane and Curtiss agreed to instruct the members in it use.
