NEED STATE AID SAYS WICKERSHAM

Law Enforcement Commission Head Says State and Government Both Needed to Enforce Law.

New London, Conn.—George W. Wickersham, head of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission, in a letter read by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York at the Governors' Conference here, wrote that if Federal and State agencies would co-operate in prohibition enforcement the prohibition laws "might be modified so as to become reasonably enforceable."

Characterizing prohibition as "a most serious subject," Mr. Wickersham in his letter to Governor Roosevelt said that it would be one of the chief national problems to be investigated by his commission.

He suggested a division of authority, the Federal Government to prevent importation and transportation in violation of interstate commerce regulations, and the states to handle their own internal enforcement.

"If the National Government," he wrote, "were to attend to preventing importation, manufacture, and shipment in interstate commerce of intoxicants, the States undertaking internal police regulations to prevent sale, saloons, speakeasies, and so forth, the National and State laws might be modified so as to become reasonably enforceable, and one great source of demoralizing and pecuniarily profitable crime removed."

The letter, which was described by Governor Roosevelt as the first public expression of Mr. Wickersham as chairman of the Law Enforcement Commission, also contained a criticism of the American public's attitude toward crime reduction and law enforcement, and cited the "evident disrespect for the Volstead Act," as an example.

"Another subject we are inquiring into," Mr. Wickersham wrote, "is the cost of extra legal protection against crime, by the police, armored cars, burglary, robbery and theft insurance, and a survey of conditions in Boston.

"A survey of conditions in Boston, nearly completed, indicates that crime in that city actually has diminished in the last decade.

"Justice, to be effective, should be speedy. It is freely charged that much of the delay is the result of political influence with the police, the prosecutors, and even the courts. These are difficult to investigate."

Governor Roosevelt, in an address on "co-operation of governors on crime problems," urged the appointment by the conference of a permanent committee to act as a "clearing house" of crime statistics and penal laws in the 48 states. The permanent committee would use statistics, to be compiled by the separate states, as a basis for a national crime survey and would recommend legislation for each state.

"There is no one here or anywhere else who has facts and figures to prove there is a crime problem," Governor Roosevelt said. "Before we can do anything with a problem, we must know all about it and we know nothing about crime in our country because we have no figures or facts. This lack is a stumbling block in crime investigation and crime reduction."

The problem should be dealt with on the basis of states' rights, the New York Governor said. Only "terribly apathetic public opinion," he said, permits the Federal Government to encroach on the police powers of the states.

"It is cowardly for the states to leave such an important matter as this to the Federal Government," he said. "Each must make its own study and work out its own salvation. The Federal Government will encroach on this right only if it is permitted.

Volstead Opposes Wickersham Plan

St. Paul, Minn.—Andrew J. Volstead, author of the prohibition enforcement act, in a statement criticized suggestions by George W. Wickersham, head of President Hoover's law enforcement commission, for strengthening the enforcement of the dry law.

Mr. Volstead said the suggestions which were made public at the governors' conference at New London, Conn., "would in effect, repeal the 18th Amendment in wet localities." Mr. Wickersham declared that some feasible means should be found for dividing the burden of enforcement between states and the national government.

Mr. Volstead asserted that "the suggestions of dividing the responsibility for law enforcement cannot appeal to any one who has had much practical experience.

"Instead of strengthening the law," he added, "it would in effect repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and its enforcement code in wet localities and greatly hamper law enforcement in the dry sections."

TO REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF ALLEGANY COUNTY

I wish to announce my candidacy for the nomination for the office of Member of Assembly on the Republican ticket, subject to the approval of the Republican voters at the Primary Election on September 17, 1929. HARRY E. GOODRICH. 7

International Sunday School Lesson for July 28

The Story of Daniel

Daniel 1:1-4, 19, 20; 2:17-24.

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

This book which will be studied for three weeks is rich in thrills. Youth is particularly fascinated in reading these accounts which help to emphasize the fact that truth is stranger than fiction. Plan to read all twelve chapters in these three weeks. Portions especially indicated for study this time by the Lessons Committee are 1:1-21; 2:13-19; 4:19; 7:28; 8:15-18; 9:20-23; 10:1-19; 12:9.

Daniel did not follow the saying which is an excuse for many extravagances when away from home: "When in Rome do as the Romans do." Had he even observed the example of his own people when back in Palestine he would have followed the base customs of the Babylonians. Here is a lad who was deported as a captive and who held to the ways he had learned in his home back in Judea.

This fine young fellow was soon noted by Aspenaz, the keeper of the eunuchs in the household of Nebuchadnezzar. When the king asked that likely lads be searched out and brought to him for special favor this Jewish boy was chosen, as well as three of his companions. The specifications were a "youth in whom is no blemish, but well-favored and skillful in all wisdom, and endued with knowledge and understanding science, and such as had ability to stand in the king's palace." At once these four, with others in Babylon, were invited to eat the fancy food that was provided at the court table.

Principle asserted itself above the desire to gain a place in the house of the king. There, meats that had been offered to idols would be served. These the Jews must refuse for conscience sake and Daniel does this very thing. He asks that he and his friends may follow a vegetarian diet and drink only water during the coming ten days of preparation. They knew that they will be physically better than those who would eat foods that would not be body-building. When the test came it took only a glance to show that the appearance of those who followed the simpler diet was superior. Then came the mental examination. In this they stood "ten times better" than all the lads of Babylonia whom Aspenaz brought forward. Thus Daniel was well started on the road that led in time to the prime ministry of the country to which he had been carried as a captive.

Birthdays. Rockefeller's Service. Wives and Prohibition. New Size Money.

Which birthdays in human life are most important?

The first starts life going.

The twenty-first begins work and responsibility.

The fiftieth means that old age has started.

The seventieth that active life is over.

Eighty means old age, altho it should not. And ninety is reached by few.

John D. Rockefeller has celebrated his ninetieth birthday.

Those that appreciate a life and a great fortune well spent will wish for him many more years, taking him far beyond 100.

Mr. Rockefeller, employing able scientists to fight disease, with unlimited resources at their disposal, has rendered service to the human race for centuries to come.

He has given hundreds of millions to education and scientific research.

No man in history has given as liberally or more intelligently.

Mrs. Sabin, wife of a well-known banker, will investigate prohibition among wives of working men thruout the nation.

This "survey" will ask the wives heir opinion of prohibition.

Those whose husbands used to drink whiskey and can't afford it now will say they favor prohibition.

If their husbands still drink whiskey, paying bootleggers' prices, they will be against prohibition.

Wives whose husbands used to drink beer or light wine and drink whiskey now, because they can't get beer or wine, will be against prohibition.

Left to a popular vote, prohibition would win in the nation at large, and lose in the big cities.

This week you will get the new small money, bills much smaller than the old size.

The Government will save many millions in paper and ink.

Some citizens will feel that a small dollar isn't quite as good as a big dollar.

When the calendar was corrected and the date pushed several days ahead, there was rioting by those who thought their lives had been made shorter by the same number of days. We have progressed beyond that stage.

Ortho D. Richmond Killed

Ortho D. Richmond of Wellsville was killed last Friday afternoon when struck by an auto driven by Andrew Brainard of Belmont. Mr. Richmond had parked his car on the Wellsville-Scio road and stepped directly in front of the Brainard car. The driver is held blameless in the accident.

Mr. Richmond was born in Independence in 1859, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Wilson. He leaves a widow.

Firemen's Convention

Andover people in attendance at the annual meeting of Allegany County Firemen's Association at Angelica last week were unanimous in declaring it a fire gala day. The parade was all a parade should be. Fillmore fire company was awarded the prize, for the second year, as presenting the best appearance in the parade. The 100-yard dash was won by L. E. Mulconery of Andover, with Robert Brown of Almond second. The convention next year is to be held at Belmont.

Mrs. Erwin Dewey

Flossy Belle Dewey was born February 19, 1882 at Bennetts Creek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Vanderhoff, and died July 12, 1929 at her home near this village. Deceased had been a sufferer from cancers for two years.

Besides her husband, she leaves two daughters and a son, Mrs. Mary Ribble, Keuka, N. Y., Lottie Mae and Charles Dewey at home, also two brothers, Charles Vanderhoff of Jasper and Herman Vanderhoff of Cuba and three sisters, Mary Heckard, Canisteo; Mabel Willard and Effie Bruce of Howard.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist church, Sunday afternoon, Rev. J. H. Seely officiating. Burial was in Valley Brook cemetery.

To teach the child to enjoy the taste of new vegetables this summer, start with very small quantities.

Wins State Scholarship

Job Robert Rogers, Jr., of Bolivar, was awarded a state scholarship at Cornell University, as the result of the competitive examination held June 1st. He was the only winner in Allegany county.

Phoebe Jane Stearns

Phoebe J. Stearns was born in Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 26, 1851, daughter of Fred and Ann Waldon Colman, and came to Andover to live at the age of 14 years. March 20, 1869 she was united in marriage to Homer Stearns whose death occurred August 15, 1925.

Mrs. Stearns passed from life Wednesday afternoon, July 10, 1929 following two weeks illness of heart disease, at her home in East Valley.

A daughter, Emily Stearns Burger and son, William H. Stearns, both of Andover, survive, also two brothers, James and George Colman of South Canisteo and a sister, Mrs. Oliver Lanphear of Canisteo, N. Y.

Deceased was a quiet home-loving mother and a kind friend to all, who will be greatly missed by those with whom she associated. Mrs. Stearns was a member of the Christian church of Greenwood, N. Y.

Funeral services were conducted at her home, Friday afternoon, by Rev. Walter Dynes of the Andover Methodist church, and burial made in East Valley cemetery.

Material for making rope is like hay; there are many kinds gathered and cured under all sorts of conditions.

The best rope material is Philippine Manila, but to get it at its best it must be cut and cured at just the right time and under the correct weather conditions.

The Plymouth Cordage Co. have their buyers right on the ground in the best manila producing sections of the Phillipines; they are experts on quality and rope made under their Ships Brand reflects the knowledge that these men possess.

Look for the ship on the wrappings of a coil of rope and when you find it buy rope from that coil in full confidence that you are getting the best.

A flying rumor never has any trouble in making a landing.

If you have any doubt about paint values; if you think Moore's Pure Linseed Oil Paint isn't worth the price for which we are selling, just look over some of the paint jobs around town and then think again.

We can show you houses in town painted with wall order paint less than three years ago that are in a worse condition than if they had not been painted at all.

A paint job that has cracked and scaled off requires twice the labor of a smooth job to repaint, and even on the average job the labor cost will usually be twice the cost of the paint.

Frame it out for yourself: You will loose money if you use a cheap formula paint in preference to good dependable paint if you should have the cheaper product given you.

Before you go too far with that paint job let us measure up and estimate what you will require; most people who are using Moore's Paint buying the amount it has usually taken for their job, have several gallons to return.
