ACTIVE NEW YORK PRESS ASSOCIATION A DROP OF INK MEMBER ORGANIZED SEPT. 8, 1927

A Patriotic Holy Day

AMERICAN LEGION POSTS thruout the United States are to be congratulated for their unselfish patriotic service in promoting a fitting observance of Armistice Day this year. The organization is living one of its mottoes, "In Peace, as in War, We Serve!"

For it is a real service to emphasize the significance of what occurred on November 11, 1918, when a war-weary world hailed with delight the signing of the armistice which ended the greatest war in all history.

Part of this spirit of joy still clings to the day. Sadness also fills the heart when the presence of loved ones is called back by the association. And with the passage of the years a new significance attaches itself to the day, for it is increasingly evident that a spirit of peace and brotherhood was struggling for life and that it has lived and crowded out much of the war hatred.

Thinking men the world over since the ending of the Great War have been promoting the cause of world peace, as witness the treaties, arms conferences, naval concords, peace pacts, good-will visits.

The American Legion itself, as a national orginization, is planning to make war less likely by sponsoring the Universal Draft Bill, designed to take the profit out of war by drafting capital as well as men should another war occur. The Legion also urges adequate national defense—but only as a peace measure.

Thus Armistice Day is the great day in American history—it commemorates the successful conclusion of the world's greatest war; it keeps green the memory and alive the spirit of those who gave their lives in the struggle; it holds out the promise of a new day of peace and brotherhood.

Let Allegany county citizens keep cadence with her service men and make November 11th a patriotic holy day.

Now is the time of year when a gardener will tell you that it is a big job to keep a good weed down.

A Cake of Soap

PUBLIC sanitation has great victories to its credit in the control and prevention of disease, and strides along these lines have been made in rapid manner within the last few years.

Beliefs in charms and magic have disappeared, and science is producing more wonderful gifts for the modern world. Cleanliness and sanitation is a health program sponsored in our public schools, and the most important tool used in the small, every day piece of soap.

It is just a little more than one hundred years ago that a French chemist evolved the chemistry of soap and made it a practical object of manufacture. Today it is one of the cheapest and most widely used necessities of daily life.

Habits of cleanliness, as taught in our schools today, protect individual health and reduce the spread of disease. In the pre-soap age skin diseases and other forms of sickness prevailed in much larger numbers than today.

Even the most cleanly person must come in contact with his environment, and thru this contact the skin gives lodging to extraneous microscopic living things. This may occur in taking hold of a street car strap or even in shaking hands with a friend. Hand to mouth infections are responsible for the spread of a large proportion of communicable disease, especially of disease transmitted thru the nose and throat. But surrounded as is modern man with the means to cleanliness, it is a simple matter to play safe by washing with soap and water.

It is getting so nowadays that it takes a strong person to stand up under these strenuous week-ends.

A Name In Print

A MERCHANT doesn't spend his money for advertising merely to see his name in print.

He is too much of a business man to part with his dollars unless there is a good prospect of obtaining a legitimate return upon his investment.

He doesn't advertise goods that he can't recommend, because he knows that you can't fool all of the people all of the time, and that such a policy would eventually put him out of business.

He doesn't gauge his customers, because he knows that they would soon go elsewhere and buy for less money, and that would be the end of him.

It is reasonable to presume, then, that when he does advertise an article, that article is worth having and the price is within reason.

When you buy from a local merchant, that merchant's reputation for square dealing is behind the goods you buy.

Keep these common sense facts in mind when you go to buy and make the advertisements your guide, and you will make no mistake.

Children were once told that they were to be seen and not heard. Today most parents don't even see them often enough to be heard.

Fraternal Spirit Essential

CULTIVATING a fraternal spirit has much to do with the success of any community and Andover is no exception.

Where the population is limited, the selfishness or indifference of a single individual exerts a depressing effect upon others and in time permeates the whole community.

Men and women who heartily want to advance the interests of themselves and their neighbors find it difficult to work to advantage when disaffected ones are continually throwing a wet blanket over every new project that is proposed.

Investigation and discussion are both commendable and much to be desired when something for community betterment is proposed, but pulling back in the harness has the same effect as a balking horse.

The load can't be pulled without the combined effort of every one hitched to the program of advancement, and pulling in the opposite direction, or even refusing to pull, renders ineffective the efforts of those who are trying to do something worth while for the benefit of everyone.

And all too often the citizens who are the first to criticise what has been done are the ones who contribute nothing in thought, time or money to the enterprise designed to better the welfare of everyone.

The spirit that wins is the spirit that knows no dissention but causes men to work together in harmony—all pulling together in the same direction.

Damage By Moths

THERE is a prevailing impression that clothes moths are active only in the spring and summer and that in the fall and winter it is not necessary to take precautions in storing summer clothing. The Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture says, however, that while moths may be more prevalent and noticeable as warm weather approaches, they are active thruout the year in apartments or other places where a steady temperature of 70 degrees F. or more is maintained.

Clothing and blankets in constant use are not often attacked. A woolen summer suit left hanging at the back of a closet, however, would exactly meet a parent moth's idea of a good place to lay her eggs. The following year the suit would likely be riddled with holes; and some of the larvae might crawl off and eat other garments, such as the evening suit that is only worn occasionally, or anything else that is not frequently brushed and shaken.

At the end of their season, any garments likely to be attacked should be thoroly cleaned at home, brushed and sunned, or sent to a dry cleaner. Then they should be neatly folded and put away at once in a tight red-cedar chest or other tight container such as a trunk or box which can be sealed. As additional protection in any container except the cedar chest, it is well to put some napthalene flakes or moth balls in the box with the clothing. Cardboard boxes may be used if the clothing is properly prepared beforehand as indicated, and if they have an outer wrapping of heavy paper with the ends turned in such a way that no moths can get in.

Turkeys On Increase

LOVERS of turkey for the Thanksgiving Day dinner will read with pleasure that the turkey crop this year is excellent, and a larger production exists than last year. This word comes from the department of agriculture, which states that the production is increased nine per cent over last year.

The increase is noted in all of the leading states that raise turkeys, but the larger increases are in the eastern and southeastern states.

The bulletin from the department does not make any attempt to estimate the price for Thanksgiving turkeys, but the history of these things usually reveals that the price is not regulated by the production but by the appetite.

Weather conditions were fairly favorable for turkey raising over most of the country this year, and the adoption of better methods of handling turkeys and the commercial hatching and sale of young poults are in large part credited with the increased production. The condition of the young turkeys a few weeks ago as reported by growers was about average for that date, and the reports indicate a disposition in some states to push the finishing of the birds so as to have a larger than usual proportion ready for Thanksgiving. In some areas, a feed shortage and high prices of feeds may also tend to hasten marketing, the bureau says.

Where Is the Blame?

A JUVENILE court judge says that 19 out of every 20 boys who "go wrong" come from homes where the mothers are forced to work.

A leader in the General Federation of Women's Clubs asserts that the blame for the immorality among youth of today belongs on the older generation.

A minister of the gospel declares that "spiritual illiteracy," the disappearance of the family altar, is responsible for young people being on the moral down grade.

Whatever may be the cause, it is not difficult to find people in all walks of life who believe that young people do not have as high moral standards as once prevailed.

If it be true, it is an alarming state of affairs which needs to be corrected, else the United States will in time perish from the earth.

The present generation may not suffer, but it should have enough interest in the tomorrow of its own progeny to make some effort to raise the moral plane of youth.

An airplane flight to London might be quicker, but it is still much safer to ride the waves rather than take a chance to dive in them.

When the law finds a person insane, it puts him in the asylum—providing he isn't driving an automobile.

Statistics are valuable. According to a survey made of dealers selling window glass, more boys played baseball last summer than in any previous year.

It is claimed that freedom of speech is not allowed in this country, but anyway people will be allowed to holler all they want to at the basketball games this winter.

3 Father cracks skin...wishes Aunt Emma back in Peoria

HAVE you an Aunt Emma in your home . . . someone who is always turning off the lights when you want them on?

The saving she makes is so small, and the inconvenience so annoying! Just think . . . you can keep a reading lamp lighted all evening for about 2 cents . . . burn a light in the hall all night for a penny or so. Try as she may, Aunt Emma probably saves no more than a few cents a month.

For never has your electricity been so cheap. While the cost of most necessities has practically doubled since 1914, the price of Niagara Power Service is less today than when ouija boards were in style.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

MANURE DOES NOT WASTE IN FIELD

Fertilizer Value is Lost Unless Spread as Soon as Possible—Add Superphosphate to Double Its Effectiveness.

To double the fertilizing value of farm manure, add 40 or 50 pounds of superphosphate to the ton.

Since manure loses value rapidly when exposed to the weather it should be stored in a watertight pit or a covered manure shed. Where it must be stored out-of-doors, it is best to haul it directly to the field and spread at once.

Winter manure can be spread to good advantage on all old sod to be plowed under for corn, beans or cabbage, and the older the sod the more important it is to manure it. Whether plowed down or applied after plowing, manure should be applied to areas to be used for cultivated crops next year, the one exception being good alfalfa or clover sod.

A poor clover seeding, the thin spots in the alfalfa, and the poor wheat field will all be helped by top dressing. New York pastures have not received enough fertilizer in the past, and manure is suited for all permanent pastures in the state irrespective of the kind of grass.

Heavy applications of from 15 to 20 tons have been shown to be wasteful. Better returns come from frequent and light applications rather than from one heavy one.

PURE-BRED CATTLE BRING MOST CASH

Sales Records Show Tested Dams Boost Prices of Animals in Ring.

Cattle buyers who know that "blood will tell" are paying more for the cow that has records in her pedigree to prove her blood, says Professor H. A. Hopper of Cornell University, who cites the records of the Holstein Friesian Association sales from 1925 to 1928 in warning pure-bred breeders to keep testing their herds.

In these sales, cows with long-time records brought an average of $486 each, untested cows from tested dams sold for $223 each, while untested cows from untested dams brought but $183. Heifers from tested dams sold for $272 and heifers from untested dams sold for $103.

That there is a demand for bulls with good records behind them is shown when the bulls from long-time record dams brought $425 and the bulls from untested dams sold for $121.

While considerations other than records may legitimately enter such as family, physical condition, and age, one cannot avoid the conclusion, says Prof. Hopper, that records are of major importance.

Red raspberries are the hardiest of the brambles, while blackberries are most tender; black raspberries are intermediate. Currants and goose berries are extremely hardy and need no winter protection.

Around Our House

HINTS FOR THE PIE MAKER

Pie, the great American dessert, becomes increasingly popular at holiday seasons and the hostess who knows the secret of delicious pie-making is sure of pleasing her guests. A good recipe for plain pastry for a two-crust pie is one and one-half cups of flour, one-half cup shortening, two-thirds teaspoon salt and about two to three tablespoons of water. To insure flakiness, cut in the shortening to the size of peas with a fork or two knives. Too much handling will toughen the dough as will the addition of too much water. The water should be ice cold; after it has been added, the pastry should be allowed to stand a few minutes so that it will handle easily. If possible, keep the pastry on ice. In rolling out the dough, use a light, quick motion until it is about one-eighth inch in thickness. As soon as the pie has been prepared, bake it in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) unless uncooked fruit is used for filling. In this case the heat should be reduced after the first 15 minutes, and the pie cooked at a moderate temperature. A good pastry is tender, light and flaky, for each particle of fat is surrounded by tiny grains of flour and when baked the melting fat leaves these grains in layers or flakes.

To prevent soggy undercrusts, one way is to chill the crust and cook the filling before the two are put together. A hot oven during the first part of the baking period also helps. Some cooks brush the under crust with egg white and partially bake it before filling.

HIGHLIGHTS ON STATE PRODUCE

From New York State Dept Agriculture and Markets, November 4, 1929.

Apple Market Steady

Supplies of apples on the New York City wholesale market were moderate. The demand was also moderate and the market steady, according to the New York office of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. New York McIntosh U. S. No. 1, 2½ inch sold for $8 per barrel, a few higher. Northwestern Greenings brought $5 and Wealthy $4.75.

Potato Market Dull

Heavy supplies and light trading have resulted in a continued lifeless market for white potatoes. New York up-state round, white potatoes in sacks of 150 pounds peddled out at $4-4.15, while Long Island, Green Mountain potatoes, in bulk, sold at principally $6.10-6.15 per 180 lbs.

Roasting Pigs

Country dressed pigs were in light receipt, and the demand was limited. Roasting pigs from 10 to 15 pounds, were 30c per pound; 16-20 pounds were 25-28c; 21 to 25 pounds, 20-23c.

Butter—Cheese—Eggs

The butter market was steady at unchanged prices. Higher score was 45-45½c per pound, extra 44½ cents.

The cheese market was firm. New York fresh fancy flats were 24½c per pound.

Country Dressed Calves

Receipts of country dressed calves were light and the demand was slow. The market was barely steady. Few extra fancy were at a premium. Choice were 19-20c per pound; fair to good 16-18c; common 13-15c; small to medium 15-16 cents, lightweights 13-14c.

Hogs: Market irregular, (85-130 pounds) $9.75 to $9.90; (130-160 pounds) $10.10; (165-220 pounds) $10; (rough) $7-7.50.

Hay Market

There were fair supplies of hay on hand at all terminal points, and the market was slow and irregular, and the easy, rainy weather interfering with deliveries. No. 1, $25-$26; No. 2, $23-24; No. 3, $21-22.
