In every city of any size in the country, there are various businesses on which the general public are unknowingly dependent, support not only for the necessities we all demand—but dependent in a large measure for health and happiness.

The drug store truly ranks foremost—because without the drug store the family physician would be inconvenienced for his supply of drugs he administers in emergency calls—without the DRUG STORE—he could not prescribe for the speedy recovery of his patients. No business today demands so thorough a knowledge as the filling of prescriptions—no business today calls for more accuracy or precision. One little mistake, one little slip up in the filling of a complicated prescription may cause the death of the patient rather than the recovery.

Hall's Drug Store of Wellsville truly is a drug store that is doing more than its share to maintain the wholesomeness and the health of the people in this section. They are retail druggists whose stocks are complete in every detail. Physicians recommend this store to their patients because they know that here their prescriptions will be filled accurately and without delay. Customers instinctively turn to them for prescription work because they know that in addition to having their prescriptions filled properly and promptly—they will be filled at a minimum of cost.

In addition to handling a most complete line of drugs—this firm also handles sick room supplies at low prices. They also make a specialty of toilet preparations and cosmetics as well as the numerous items needed in every home for any emergency which might occur.

This is a store well and favorably known because of the courtesy accorded to every customer. The men and women who are not only experienced in their business but they serve the people in a painstaking and accommodating manner so that everyone who enters—feels that a warm welcome awaits them.

Low prices are also a determining factor which instinctively guides people to this store. They enjoy the reputation in the community for handling quality drugs and other staple necessities—for lower prices than ordinarily are asked. They never slight quality, but because of their big business and quick turnover—do really offer better quality than most other stores in our section.

In all this place is truly headquarters for the classes and the masses in our section when it comes to drug requirements, toilet preparations and cosmetics of the highest quality and nature. Not only—because of the quality goods handled here—but because of the courteous and accommodating service dispensed as well—has this store come to be regarded as the most reliable, most progressive and most agressive store of its kind in our section. The owner is a public spirited citizen who is sparing no efforts to give the people of this community an establishment that compares in part and parcel most favorably with any food in our most metropolitan centers. We recommend this unhesitatingly to our readers and suggest they make Hall's Drug Store of Wellsville their headquarters for everything along the pharmaceutical line.—Adv.

Of What Use

Muddy Runs and Yards Encourage Parasites and Ills

Get the chicks out of the mud.

Long-continued sloppy, muddy runs and yards, furnish conditions for the parasite which causes the disease coccidiosis, as well as making things unpleasant around the brooder houses for the people who take care of the flocks.

"The brooder houses ought to be moved to green sod," says E. L. Pekan, head of the poultry department of the Ohio State university. "Even if the chicks are moved only 50 feet, from bare, muddy soil to green, they will miss a lot of the infestation of parasites which have made their homes in the old runs where the grass has been destroyed."

Coccidiosis or white diarrhea results from the activities of sporozoite which will infest the soil where chickens have been kept for a year or more. Sanitary measures which include moving the flocks away from the infested soil, have been found more satisfactory control measures than trying to treat the disease with medicine after it has started in a flock. Under the conditions which have existed for a month or more, the parasites have been flourishing.

For late chicks which are showing signs of rickets because it has been impossible on account of weather conditions to get them outdoors as much as they should have been, should have their cod-liver oil ration increased to 2 per cent of their feed, Dakan says, in order to counteract the lack of sunlight.

Quality Eggs Can Be Produced on Any Farm

Eggs unfit for food cost farmers from one to three cents per dozen. Approximately 17 out of every 100 eggs marketed are unfit for human consumption, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. This means a loss of about $4,000,000 annually to farmers. An egg buyer of Clinton county, Indiana, recently reported to Purdue university that one-half of the eggs delivered to him were not good enough to eat.

Two principal causes for the large volume of inedible eggs are as follows: Improper care of eggs at the farm, and neglect in marketing them more frequently, according to E. R. Menefee of Purdue.

Quality eggs can be produced on corn belt farms if producers will follow the suggestions which he makes.

Remove all the males from the flock immediately. Males are not necessary for egg production and fertile eggs will not keep their quality in warm weather.

Remove all bloody hens from the nests promptly. The body temperature of a hen is 106 degrees and will reduce the quality of the egg in a few hours' time. Gather the eggs twice a day in hot weather and place them in a cool room promptly. A basement or cellar if not moldy or containing any peculiar odors furnishes about the best places on the farm for holding eggs.

To Distinguish Sex of Guineas Is Hard

There is no sure way to tell the male guinea fowl from the female by looks. Usually the wattles of the male are a little larger than the female's, but this is not always noticeable—nor is it true in every case.

But their cries are different, and will reveal which is which. The female has a two-syllable cry which sounds like "buckwheat, buckwheat," or to some folks "pot rack, pot rack." Anyhow it's a two-syllable cry. But the male has only a one-syllable sort of shriek. Sometimes too, he makes a chattering noise and often says "quit, quit, quit."

But don't try to tell the two apart when they're frightened or excited. Both the male and female then make the one-syllable cry.

Oats Cause Trouble

The use of ground whole oats containing an abundance of indigestible fiber has caused many losses among young chicks when such material has been included in the home-made starters. A laying mash containing a lot of ground oat hulls has less feeding value than a mash without so much fiber. There should be a good demand for hulless oats for chicken feed if they can be raised as economically and are as good feed as oats which have been hulled.

Remove Litter Daily

Daily removal of soiled litter from the henhouse is important. If the dampened litter is left on the floor, ideal conditions are created for spreading of disease. The soles of those that have come in contact with such litter should be disinfected. Contamination is easy unless every caution is used. This risk can be greatly reduced by wearing a special pair of rubbers and by having a pan of disinfectant outside the brooder house to use when entering and leaving.

Wires and Lightning

The Bureau of standards says that the presence of overhead wires at the usual heights from the ground are not known to affect the severity of a lightning storm, or to alter the point at which a stroke takes place; but such wires may receive a discharge which in their absence would strike some other object in the vicinity.

Mane Puzzled Betty

Little Betty was viewing the various animal exhibits at the zoo with wide-eyed interest. Pausing before the lion's cage she asked her mother: "Does he always wear a fur neckpiece in the summer time?"

Monument Moves

The sway of the Washington monument is rendered perceptible by a copper wire 174 feet long hanging in the center of the structure and carrying a plummet suspended in a vessel of water. At noon in summer the apex of the monument, 550 feet above ground, is shifted by expansion of the stone a few one-hundredths of an inch toward the north.

Making Friends

The art of making friends, says a well-known writer in the American Magazine, consists in doing graciously and quickly and cheerfully the things which will make others happy.

DR. C. J. BETHE

A prominent chiropractor, whose offices are located at 81 West Pearl Street in Wellsville, phone 516.

The world is now realizing the great results achieved in recent years, by Chiropractic. Their results are being recognized everywhere as is shown by the increasing numbers of people found taking chiropractic adjustments to cure their suffering and illness.

The nerve system is one chain of nerves reaching to every distant and remote part of the body. The construction of the human body is such that it is almost impossible for diseases to attach themselves to the body without some cause.

The success of Chiropractic is based on the practice of starting at the root of the disease with immediate steps to remedy the cause. If the will power of the patient has not been weakened by a lengthy duration of illness the patient is assured of satisfactory and prompt results when receiving the adjustments of this modern Chiropractor.

Dr. C. J. Bethe, of Wellsville, is a chiropractor of long experience in whom the patient may place fullest reliance as the knowledge gained by his constant study and application enables him to render service to the profession that meets with the approbation of the patron in each and every instance and whose services extend over this entire section of the state. You owe it to yourself if you have not enjoyed the best of health in recent years to visit the offices of this leading practitioner where he can show you how his adjustments can relieve your suffering and thereby benefit you immeasurably.

We recommend Dr. C. J. Bethe of Wellsville, with highest endorsements and suggest that you pay him a visit at your earliest convenience and allow him to give you a spinal analysis as you will find him thoroughly competent in his methods of adjustments. Through long experience he is able to realize adjustments that are practically painless but at the same time assure you that you will be able after short treatments to go about your daily tasks with the knowledge that you have received relief and improvement with the best assurance that such improvements will be lasting. We urge you to give this practitioner a trial at your earliest convenience and carefully consider his important situation if you are ailing.—Adv.

Comic Tragedy Gives Life to Pittsburgh

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Although the Cleveland clinic explosion brought death to many, it meant life of Emil Simmons, forty-three, of Pittsburgh, former resident here. Through action of Judge George H. Lamont in Superior court, Simmons, declared legally dead four years ago, has been restored to life by the law.

After reading newspaper accounts of the clinic blast Simmons was attracted to the scene. While in Cleveland he met a stranger, and learned that he had been declared dead by court action. His relatives had produced from him for 10 years.

Legal action to declare him dead was taken upon the death of his father to facilitate distribution of the estate.

With action set aside, inheritance has been paid already to his sons of the estate.

H. B. Horn's

AUTO REPAIR SHOP

EXPERT AUTO REPAIRING

Let this shop which was formerly located at 141 North Brooklyn Avenue and is now in their new location at 152 South Main Street in Wellsville, phone 468, take charge of your auto repair work for satisfaction at the right price.

In this modern day and age when three families out of every five are owners of an automobile, there was never a greater need for a reliable garage than today. Because every automobile, sooner or later, is bound to need attention and care at the hands of a competent auto mechanic.

When H. B. Horn started in business he foresaw the big possibilities of this business. He figured that with the steady increasing number of automobiles there would be a big demand for a service garage where the people of this community could take their cars with the feeling that only the best of attention and painstaking care would be given the object of their pride—and the result of their years of frugal savings.

That the owner and manager of this up-to-date firm was right in his convictions is demonstrated by the steadily increasing patronage his firm is enjoying. Being an auto mechanic of the highest possible type he employs men who themselves are veterans in this business and who know how to service a car just as the owner wants it serviced. The result is that when a car is taken into the garage of this well-known firm a mechanic assigned to the job goes about it in very much the same manner as the skilled surgeon goes about a very complicated operation. He analyzes the trouble and then sets about to correct that trouble, be it only trivial or of a major kind. Quick and efficient ways held down to a maximum by the absence of inexperienced workmen who learn their trade at your expense.

This garage does more, however, than repair motor cars. They also supply high quality motor oil to the motorists of this community. Full measure plus purest and highest qualities has made this feature of the firm's service the envy of other competitive firms for miles around.

This publication goes on record as endorsing H. B. Horn to the good citizens of this community. He has made a success of his business only because of his earnest desire to serve in the best possible way. We wish him continued success.—Adv.

The combined furniture manufacturing and repair shop, together with the best of machinery allows this modern concern to repair, refinish and upholster furniture at a great saving to you. Special work is a feature as well as high class refinishing.

They do very high grade work in furniture repairing and refinishing and are experts in the furniture upholstering line who always do their work to the patrons satisfaction. They display all latest samples at all times and their prices are known to be very moderate.

They direct a business we describe by the terms "furniture manufacturers." It is a furniture institution; a truly complete and distinctively superior commercial and manufacturing institution which has merited the prominent position it has attained in the life of this section of the state.

It is a far jump from the crude furniture of ancient times to the priceless products of the upholsterer of furniture manufacturers of today, but this firm has kept thoroughly abreast of the times and has been a liberal contributor, through its products, to the movement for better furnished homes.

The people of this county and vicinity should at all times patronize and boost for local made products. And when local products are of such high quality as the furniture manufactured here you should not only buy the furniture manufactured here but you should also consider it your duty to tell your friends and neighbors to buy here and thus join in the movement for the continued progress and expansion of your own home community.

We are pleased to compliment the Lindsay & Briggs Upholstering Co., of Wellsville and to refer their very modern service to all of our readers.—Adv.
