TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The Advertiser, having been restored to health in a few weeks, by a very simple remedy, after having suffered several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease, Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow-sufferers the means of cure. To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used (free of charge) with the directions for preparing and using the same, which they will find a simple cure for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, etc. The object of the advertiser in sending the prescription is to benefit the afflicted and spread information which he conceives to be valuable; and he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy, as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing. Parties wishing the prescription, will please address—

TWO EAST YOUNG MEN.—On Tuesday afternoon a couple of fast youths from Scio came to Wellsville for the purpose of having a spree, a Mr. Pettis and a Mr. Pierce. Mr. Pierce is one of those whiskey fighting characters, while Mr. Pettis is a young man who has not got so much fight in him. A little girl from Knight's Creek was in Wellsville that day, and was waiting for the evening accommodation West. The young men it seems, had been following the girl around town during the afternoon, and just before train time she was in the ladies' room awaiting the arrival of the train. This young Pettis went into the room and undertook to pull her out, when some ladies there interfered, and a Mr. Phelps from Belmont, was called by the ladies. He came into the room and drove them out and said to them: "You ought to both have a good thrashing and I ought to give it to you." At this Pierce flared up and wanted to know if that was so dared him to try it on, flourishing his fists around, and finally knocked the old man's hat off and then clinched him. In this the old man was too much for the boy, and threw him on the floor where he gave him a few taps. Pick of the Free Press, at the top of his voice followed out, "Give it to him, old man, he deserves it." This seemed to satisfy the young man and he hollered enough, so the old man let him up. As soon as he was on his feet again, he made for the old man and threw him down, proving too much for him this time.—Some one said "take him off. Pettis said "stand back and let him alone," and did some blowing. At this stage of the game, John Castigan of Belmont, who was near by, was sent for. John soon made his appearance in the room in the style of a Henan, and inquired what the matter was. At this Pettis ruffled up some and made a few threats, whereupon John weighed him out one that layed him on the floor trembling. This put an end to one of the characters. John then told Pierce to let the old man alone, when Pierce turned on him and asked if some young man desired to take it up? "That's my style," said John, showing back his coat sleeve and taking a scientific position. At this Pierce made for him, and was met by one of John's muscular blows which laid him on top of one of the settee in the room. As soon as Pierce could gather himself he arose and again made for John, who welcomed him with another one of those strokes which laid him at his feet trembling.—By this time the train was about to leave, and John started asking them to follow, but the young men concluded that they did not care anything about doing any more business with him.—Served them right, John.

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement in another column, of a new work, entitled "The Innocents Abroad or, the new Pilgrims Progress."

This work is not one of an ordinary nature, traveling over paths trodden by hundreds of others and treading with greatest care and caution in their very footsteps, seeing only what they saw, praising only what they praised, and condemning only what they condemned, but the author has here given a new and entirely original view of persons, places and things abroad, describing them as they appeared to him. New and quaint ideas of old yet interesting subjects, humorous and witty delineations of men and character, vivid and sparkling descriptions of scenes and incidents, fresh and amusing anecdotes, and a laughable relation of the adventures, experiences, and ludicrous every occurrences and mishaps of this party, will we are confident, make this volume one of the most enjoyable to be found. While running over with wit and humor, and sharp with satire upon many of the customs and follies of the age, it still seems with glowing descriptions, and with elegant and classical allusions, the scholar will find pleasure in its perusal, as well as others. No one will rise from its reading without having a better and clearer knowledge of the countries it describes than ever before, and more ability to judge between truth and fiction in what he may read respecting them in the future. Sold by Agents only.

THE LOCAL PAPER.—The following tribute to the local paper, from the Chicago Republican, contains so much truth, that we transfer it to our columns and commend it to the careful consideration of our business men and those interested in our town: "What tells us so readily the standard of a town or city as the appearance of its paper? And its youth or its age can as well be determined by the observance of a citizen's notice. The enterprise of its personal notice. The enterprise of its personal notice is depicted by its advertisements, their liberality by the looks of the paper. Some papers show a good solid, healthy foundation, plethoric purpose, and a well-to-do appearance generally; others show a striving to contend with the grasping thousands around them, trying hard to wrench out an existence from the close-fisted community around them. Take your home paper; it gives you more news of immediate interest than New York or other papers; it talks for you when other localities baffle you; it stands up for your rights; you always have a champion in your home paper, and those who stand up for you should certainly be sustained. Your interests are kindred and equal, and you must rise or fall together.—Therefore it is to your interest to support your home paper, not grudgingly, but in a liberal spirit, as a pleasure, not as a disagreeable duty, but as an investment that amply repays the expenditure."

A MAN KILLED AT CENTERVILLE.—Last Wednesday a farmer named Jacob Sarton, living near Centerville, Allegany County, lost his life in a very singular manner. He was engaged in chopping in the woods near his house on a tree that had been blown over, again another tree. In some unaccountable manner he was caught under the stump on its resuming its original position.—He was found by a drover who was searching for him in order to buy some cattle, by discovering a hand protruding from under the stump.—Wyoming Democrat.

Mr. Moses Smith, an old and respectable inhabitant of Pike, died on the 2d inst., 80 years of age. He came from New Hampshire to York, Livingston Co., a few years after the war of 1812, and removed to Pike about the year 1825. He was for many years one of the leading men in community, having held the office of Sheriff of Allegany County and other positions of trust.—Waraco New Yorker.

If you go to Hornellsville, stop in a Ososki's sign of the Square, and you will find the finest Cigar, and the best Cheewing and Smoking Tobacco in Western New York. He also keeps a good glass of Lager and the best and cheapest Oysters in town, sold by the can or keg. Come and see me,
