EDITORIAL

This year we wish to make the Hi Herald a standard school paper which will contain all the real news in and about school. I am sure that this will not be a difficult matter if we all co-operate with one another. I am particularly ambitious to have the Hi Herald run on the same basis of efficiency that the rest of the school is now working so nicely on.

It was a pleasure to see so many out to Hi Herald meeting Monday and if we co-operate with each other we will surely accomplish our purpose, which is to issue a standard school paper every week.

A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRINCIPAL

You have asked me to write a message for your first edition of the 1934-35 Hi Herald and to do so affords me a real pleasure, for I am intensely interested in the project.

The getting of the news for our large daily newspapers has always held a thrill for reporter and managing staff alike. Like the flying of the night mail, reporting has become an institution all over the world. The cub reporter, going out on his first assignment, feels no less a thrill than the aviator who, for the first time steps into his plane in Cheyenne, knowing that the next morning important mail must be unloaded in the grey of dawn in Chicago.

Undaunted reporters are spending sleepless nights and taking risks of limb and even life itself to get the news, and even before the sun rises upon sleeping humanity, linotypes and huge roller presses are putting this news in a tangible form that we, for the mere sum of two or three cents, may sit before our steaming cup of coffee and have the world events of the past 24 hours spread before us.

And you people who at present are reporting and managing staff of the Hi Herald can feel some of that same thrill as you go about gathering news of Andover High School and working it into form. Remember, news is everywhere, but like the proverbial buried treasure, requires much digging and much clear vision to find. Train yourselves, therefore, to be awake to happenings, to learn what things are of human interest, and to develop a keenness of observation that will be a permanent asset thru life.

However, let me caution you to maintain high standards and high ideals for your paper. Do not let the false claims of sensationalism cause your paper to degenerate into a mere tabloid. Plenty of feature news, carefully written editorials, original composition work of a superior grade, humorous incidents of course—all of these will make your Hi Herald a high class paper and will give to the people of Andover a true indication of the standards that Andover High School has set out this year to maintain.

REGISTRATION OF PUPILS BY GRADES

A check-up on the number of pupils registered in Andover High School this year indicates a slightly decreased enrollment over last year, particularly in the high school department. High school enrollment this year is 120 and grade enrollment 239, a total of 359, as compared with last year's registration of 162 in high school and 224 in the grades, a total of 386. This decrease in high school attendance is due largely to the large graduating class last year and a small entering freshman class this year.

The registration by grades is as follows:

Grade	Boys	Girls	Ttl.
First	19	13	32
Second	15	14	29
Third	16	15	31
Fourth	8	16	24
Fifth	24	12	36
Sixth	5	17	22
Seventh	14	13	27
Eighth	19	18	37
Freshmen	14	18	32
Sophomores	26	13	39
Juniors	8	17	25
Seniors	8	8	16
Post Graduates	3	5	8

NEW FEATURE ADDED TO HIGH SCHOOL SCHEDULE

A new feature of this year's class schedule is that all of the regular classes are held in seven 45-minute periods ending at 3:30 in the afternoon. However, school is in session until 4 o'clock, the last half hour being used as a general study and activity period. Orchestra and glee club rehearsals, athletic practice, class meetings, Hi Herald meetings, etc., may be held during that time, but aside from these activities pupils will spend this time in study or getting special help from teachers.

According to an announcement made Tuesday afternoon by Mr. Bretch, pupils will have the opportunity of earning an excuse from this study period by maintaining excellence in scholarship. Pupils who have no marks below the standard set up, for each two weeks period will be excused from this period during the next two weeks. The first excused list will be published next week.

HI HERALD STAFF HOLD FIRST MEETING

The first meeting of the Hi Herald staff was held Monday afternoon at 3:30 in the study hall. An exceptional interest was manifested by the large number of pupils who reported for the meeting. Miss Clifford was in charge of the meeting and discussed plans for the new year.

Mr. Bretch addressed the group briefly, expressing his interest in the Hi Herald and urging the staff to make it a real school paper, aiming to give the public the news of the school written in a correct, interesting manner.

Assignments were given to the various reporters and they have been industriously scurrying about, following up the trail of possible news.

GUESS WHO ? ?

This person I'm about to describe has light hair which is rather wavy. She has blue eyes and wears glasses. This person is tall and quite healthy looking. She is a very quiet sort of a person. She isn't very well acquainted with many of the students but her best pal seems to be Orpha Green. This person has a nice personality and seems to be well liked by the students who know her. Think hard and you will guess who she is.

Answer next week.

THOSE WHO PASSED REGENTS LAST JUNE

The report of the June Regents examinations was received at the school shortly after school started, with the sad news that the State Department had rejected eleven papers that had been sent in last June as passing. The summary of the report shows that of the 272 papers written, 197 or 72.4% were accepted at Albany with a passing mark. This percentage compares favorably with previous years, but according to Mr. Bretch does not represent a desirable record.

MUSICAL NOTES

Again this year, we, the students of Andover High School are anticipating an interesting year in the Music Department. We are looking forward to our musical organizations, orchestra and girls' and boys' glee clubs. The groups will be meeting now for the election of officers so we expect all the participants to be present at the first meeting.

We wish to have the opportunity to present again this year another one of our large musical features, an operetta, for both high school and grade pupils. We are certain that the people of Andover remember how we displayed our musical talent last year. We understand thru Miss Russ that she plans similar programs for this year and a few new added musical attractions.

The orchestra is being reorganized next Tuesday. It will be the first rehearsal with the new members. Another one of the main features in which we wish to participate this year is the music festival held in the Spring. Now is the time for us to work up the orchestra and glee clubs with a good background.

Watch for future musical announcements for plans and dates as to our first public performance.

A new music schedule has been adopted this year which will give more time to individual instrumental instruction. Music is being taught in the grades four days a week instead of three and Friday is set aside for individual or group instruction in instruments. On this day, pupils may take individual instruction from Miss Russ on instruments that can be used in the orchestra.

Pupils desiring to take advantage of this privilege should see Miss Russ at once, including both those who have instruments and those who may be able to procure them. It is hoped by this plan to materially increase the size of the school orchestra and if possible to start a junior orchestra.

HOW, WHAT and WHY?

The Andover News has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State college of agriculture and home economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Peach Tree Suffers

C. H. L., King Ferry, writes: "The leaves on my peach tree are dropping off, and the tree is now nearly bare. I sprayed the tree with a solution of Black Leaf 40, sulphur, and lead arsenate. The tree was set out two years ago. Can you tell me what is wrong?"

Professor H. H. Wetzel of the plant pathology department answers: "It is impossible to tell from your letter what is causing the peach leaves to fall. The chances are that the lead arsenate which you included in the spray is responsible. Lead arsenate is often very injurious to peaches.

"I can tell more accurately if you send me some of the fallen leaves and small twigs which still have some of the leaves on them. Put the leaves and twigs between the folds of a newspaper, roll them up, and send them. Include plenty of material showing different stages in the leaf injury."

Making a Watering Trough

G. W. E., Fort Plain, says: "I wish to build a round concrete trough to water our stock. It is to be out-of-doors and as frost-proof as possible. I wonder, however, if a cheap wooden trough, treated with some substance to keep the wood dry, would be practical?"

Professor A. M. Goodman of the department of agricultural engineering, replies: "We have sent you a copy of the publication "Concrete on the Dairy Farm," which suggests ways to build watering tanks. Diagrams show the size and weight of reinforcing material to use as well as the thickness of the walls.

"The greatest strain on a watering trough comes when ice forms in it. The pressure from freezing and thawing is great enough to crack many tanks. To prevent this, build the tank so that the distance across the top of the tank on the inside is much larger than at the bottom.

"With a tank of this kind, the ice may slip on the side walls and prevent cracking when the ice pressure becomes heavy. For a tank two feet wide, I suggest that it be one foot wider at the top than at the bottom. For a circular tank four or five feet in diameter, I suggest that the tank be a foot and a half greater in diameter at the top than at the bottom.

"If you make a wooden tank, do not try to use a cheap one. A cypress tank, the tub type, is good. If you make a rectangular tank, use two inch material with the ends and bottom cut into the sides and the sides held together by iron rods with half-thru iron plates which extend from top to bottom of the tank. While dry, this tank should be given two or three coats of some good oil paint or a good white lead paint. The wood should be dry before it is painted, and the paint should be allowed to cure about two weeks before water is put into the tank."

URGES STUDY OF PRICE OF FOOD

Dr. Howe, Consumers' Council of Agricultural Adjustment Administration, Warns Against Undue Rises.

Consumers thruout the nation are warned by Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers' counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, against false rumors about the effect of the drought on the food situation, lest they be victimized by unjustified price advances.

Dr. Howe asserts that exaggerated reports are being spread about prospective increases in the price of foods. "Consumers should follow closely official reports on the movement of food supplies and prices," he says. "This will help them to buy wisely and economically and to detect unwarranted price increases."

The present concern is not over increased prices to farmers but, rather, over possible unwarranted spread between prices received by farmers and prices paid by consumers. Dr. Howe says, "Farmers are still getting only a little more than a third of the consumer's food dollar compared to the years from 1924 to 1929 when they received almost half. In getting a fair share of the consumer's dollar to the farmer, part of the problem is keeping marketing costs from rising substantially."

Dr. Howe says that some food prices will undoubtedly rise, partly in line with usual seasonal changes and partly because of drought-reduced supplies, but supplies of so many foods will be normal or above and the rest so near normal that no one need fear a shortage.
