LOW-PRICED HOGS HIGH-PRICED HAMS

sirable cuts sell at very much lower prices than the more expensive cuts. For instance, Mr. Butler uses in his comparison, the price of sliced ham, which he states sells for 50 to 55 cents per pound in his market. He overlooks the fact that only about 30 to 35 per cent of the ham is sold sliced, that this is the choicest part of the ham, and that the ham is one of the highest priced cuts of the hog carcass. The remaining portion of the ham must be sold at considerable discount before housewives will take it. In the case of bacon, about ten per cent is lost in slicing, leaving 90 per cent that can be sold sliced. (The ten per cent, normally, is marketed in some form, altho not as sliced bacon.) Preparing the sliced product of either bacon or ham involves extra labor, especially is this true with respect to ham which must be sliced by hand.

Now There's a Processing Tax

"In comparing the relationship of hog prices to prices of hog products this year and a year ago, one must not overlook the processing tax which is now in effect. During the month of May packers at Chicago paid an average of $3.64 for 100 pounds of good quality bacon hogs. In addition to this price, they paid the Government $2.25 processing tax on 100 pounds of hogs, making the total cost of the hogs $5.89. In May last year the same weight of hogs cost the packer $4.71, or $1.18 less than in May this year.

"The packers sold the principal products out of this weight of hog to the retailer for $1.37 more than was obtained last year and the retailer in turn sold these hog products to the housewife for $1.40 more than last year.

Little Change in Old Margin

"After allowance is made for the processing tax, therefore, it will be seen that neither the packer nor the retailer is getting a margin very much different from that of a year ago. The big difference is that the farmer is receiving increased income in two ways. In the first place thru nearly all of the marketing season, he has received a higher market price. In the second place, if he co-operates in the corn-hog sign-up, he gets his benefit payment in addition to price. Every dollar collected in taxes is paid to the farmers to supplement their income from corn and hogs.

"I can assure you that we are genuinely concerned with the fact that spreads between farm prices and city prices have been large ever since the war. This is a very important problem and one which must be met if we are to bring back and maintain agricultural prosperity.

"Sincerely yours,

"H. A. WALLACE, Secretary."

Corrections in Committees

Thru a misunderstanding of pen corrections on the printed list of committees a wrong report went out to the papers in regard to committee appointments. The correct changes are as follows:

Ray S. Deck, Independence, was made head of the important highway committee, instead of Charles Morton, West Almond, tho Mr. Morton was added to the committee.

Morris Voss, Granger, was named chairman of the town and county expense committee, when E. E. Fenner, Alfred, was moved to the charities committee. Quincey J. Smith, Fillmore, was named chairman of the agricultural committee when Mr. Deck was assigned to the highway committee. Mr. Deck was also named to the place on the finance committee made vacant by Mr. Perkins' resignation.

Fred W. Barber, new board member from Clarkville, was named to places on the town and county expenses and the agricultural committees.

WHAT MRS. R'S "LIGHT" BILL REALLY SAYS:

The cost of electricity has come down

MRS. R now gets more electricity for her money than ever before.
She used to use it only for lighting and ironing. Today electricity does the cooking and refrigeration—the washing, ironing and cleaning—makes the toast and coffee. All in all, Mrs. R uses nearly three times as much current as she formerly did.
Yet Mrs. R now pays but a few cents a day more than before. No wonder she feels electricity is her biggest bargain.

Yes, the cost of electricity here is lower than ever. But don't forget—the more electricity you use, the lower the rate you earn per kilowatt hour.

Inside Paint Jobs

We recommend Moore's Interior Gloss or Utilac Utility Enamel for refinishing all kinds of woodwork, doors and household furniture.

Moore's Interior Gloss is made from the very best and most lasting pigments combined with pure Linseed Oil and high grade liquid dryers and may be obtained in a varnish.

It dries perfectly hard with a high gloss, yet possesses sufficient elasticity to prevent checking or peeling. We are confident in stating that we can recommend Moore's Interior Gloss to be equal in quality to any mixed paint on the market and we urge you to try Moore's Interior Gloss for refinishing your woodwork, doors and pieces of furniture where a high gloss finish is desired.

UTILAC, a Utility Enamel, is a product manufactured to meet the popular demand for an Enamel of useful and bright colors with a satin like finish and quick dry. Utilac attains these results without the drawbacks of offensive odor, difficulty of application, necessity for special expensive thinness or excessive cost. Utilac has a reasonable quick dry without sacrificing durability or ease of brushing. The fire hazard is no more dangerous than in the usual paint or enamel. Loosening or picking up of undercoats or old varnished or painted surfaces need not be feared.

Articles or surfaces painted with Utilac are dry within four hours. We believe it to be the ultimate type of quick drying finish for surfaces of wood, metal, plaster, etc.

It will be found extremely durable for floors.

Utilac is manufactured in 18 popular colors, also black and white. All shades can be easily intermixed, usually in the proportion of equal parts to obtain many additional attractive trimming or body colors. Any soft enamel or varnish brush may be used to apply Utilac successfully.

Try Moore's Interior Gloss or Utilac Utility Enamel for your Inside Paint Finishes, and be convinced that Moore's products are superior paints.

The best way to see divine light is to put out thine own candle.
