Courtesy is perhaps one of the most important qualities that we may possess. Few of us possess enough in our every day lives.

Courtesy is just as important in our home and school lives as it is in our more public lives.

Courtesy is something for which we must work in order to attain. Few people lacking courtesy succeed in making their lives real successes.

Courtesy perhaps deserves the most credit for attaining positions for the people of our country. It not always helps us in the ways that we immediately see, but it helps to develop our minds and makes the opinions of us much improved.

Those of us who are old enough to realize the importance of this quality in our present and future, should try to present ourselves as an example for the younger members of our home, school and community by being courteous at all times.

STOP BOOING

Booing at players, referees and others at our basketball games is all in fun as we of the A. H. S. know, but nevertheless what will outsiders think of our sportsmanship if our games are more or less a booing contest?

Imagine the feelings of the players. It's bad enough for them to lose a game without listening to boos and hisses from the crowd.

Another point to be considered is our cheering section. It's terrible! How can we expect to get a decent cheering section with part of the students at one side of the gym and the rest of them on the other side? In order to have have an organized cheering section let's have all of the students on the A H S side of the gym.

So, at our next home game, with Friendship this Friday, remember to stop booing and have a good organized cheering section. Be sportsmanlike!

Four Christmas scenes with accompanying carols will portray the characters of the Three Wise Men, the Madonna, Joseph and the shepherds.

GUESS WHO?

This girl is a blonde and a Sophomore in high school. She always looks neat and has a charming smile which she wears most of the time. One of her chief delights is teasing the boys.

Studies are the least of her worries for she is very interested in sports and is now a member of the basketball squad.

She is a true friend.

ANDOVER BASKETBALL TEAMS WIN FIRST GAME

The varsity basketball team got off to a flying start Monday night, December 3rd, when Belfast was defeated in a fast game with the score 33 to 26.

As the game started Andover did not look too good. Belfast sank three baskets before the A. H. S. knew what it was all about but Andover soon hit their stride. Owing to the close watch of the referee, A. H. S. lost the ball time and again for "taking steps," but even at that as the quarter ended, Andover was in the lead 12 to 6.

The second quarter was prettily played by the purple and white. They showed good teamwork and fighting spirit. Howard McAndrew and "Ray" Briggs made most of the baskets. At the half Andover was in the lead 20 to 10.

The last half Belfast tightened down, but Andover still sank their baskets. Kemp and McGill played a good defensive game for A. H. S. "Red" McAndrew and "Ray" Briggs came in close for high scoring positions, McAndrew scoring 11 points while Briggs ran up a total of 12 points.

For Belfast, Lang played a beautiful game. He sank some of the prettiest long shots ever witnessed in an A. H. S. game, making a total of seven points for Belfast.

Andover fouled 13 times but Belfast only made two shots good, while A. H. S. made one out of three.

It was a good clean game and the officiating was satisfactory to both teams.

This was not a league game as Belfast is in Class C and Andover is in Class B. The first league game is Friday night at Andover High School with Friendship High School.

"Frosh" Win First Game

The Andover frosh team won the initial game of their season Monday night, Dec. 3, when they defeated the Belfast frosh 30-10. The Belfast team was composed of much larger boys than Andover, but what Andover lacked in size they made up in speed.

The game was fast all the way thru, with good passwork. The final score was Andover 30, Belfast 10.

The high scorers for A. H. S. were George Joyce and Billy Dugan, each making ten points, while Don Oakes played a bang-up game at center. The other members of the team played well and we hope that they do as well in games of the future.

ANDOVER vs. FRIENDSHIP

The Andover High School girls' and boys' basketball teams will play the Friendship High School girls' and boys' teams Friday, Dec. 7th at the high school gym.

Friendship should have a strong team with about the same men they had last year. Not much is known about the girls' team.

Altho the Andover boys defeated Belfast last Monday, they could play much better ball than they showed during the game.

It will be the first game for the Andover girls but they have about the same team they had last year and should win.

It is the first league game of the season and a good crowd can help cheer the Andover team to victory. The girls' game is scheduled to start at 7:15.

The starting line-up for the boys will be picked from the following players: E. Alderson, H. McAndrew, J. Cannon, B. McGill, E. Kemp, R. Briggs and M. Briggs.

The starting line-up for the girls will be picked from: A. Dean, R. Church, R. Slocum, B. Kruger, F. Parker, E. West, B. Sly, F. Mulholland, R. Burns, M. Swartz.

THE SPOTLIGHT ! !

Hello, folks. Here I am.

Deke, I hear that Johnny Cannon, our high school shiek, has been writing Marilla notes. You want to watch out, this is the first time Johnny has ever fallen for any girl here.

I wonder why Leo Fulkerson and Joe McAndrew have taken such an active dislike to small children? It dates back to the afternoon of October 6. Come on boys, tell us what it is all about.

So he wants you to wear his "C" does he, Anna? If I were you I wouldn't. It might go over big in Canisteo, but I'm afraid our Andover boys would feel bad about it.

Monday night was a lovely night to look at the fish, wasn't it Howard? Just a little bit cool around the edges.

It looks as if one of our big P.G.'s and one of our handsome Sophomores are going in for the Freshman in a big way. Edwin and Bruce had better be careful because these little Freshmen know their way around.

Does anyone know how a certain Sophomore got his forehead scratched?

Eddie Kemp played good basketball Monday night. I wonder if Beatrice Kruger was among those present?

Clark Gable is seen around Harry's no more since Helen came back from Hornell.

We want Charlotte to leave the Wellsville drummer alone.

Station AHS signing off. We will be back on the air again next week.

THE YELLOW PANTHER

A loud scream came from the mill pond. Another, but sharper scream followed and then all was quiet, but for the running of feet. I grabbed my rifle and ran in the direction of the pond. About a dozen people had collected on a little knoll beside the pond. Everything was still but for the running of the water. Then without any warning the shrill scream that sounded much like that of a woman, pierced the air. Kenneth and I ran on ahead of the crowd that was fast collecting.

As we neared a clump of trees near the mill, a shodaw moved in the foliage. We knew it too well to run under the trees. It was a panther. Our rifles flew to our shoulders. We fired and fired again. A dark form fell to the ground and it was a panther all right, and deader than a door nail.

It was the biggest one that had been killed in the country for years. Kenneth and I got a bounty of $50 for killing him.

(This composition was written by Quentin West, a Seventh grade pupil. The class was given the topic sentence and asked to develop a story from it.)

PARENTS MAY APPLY FOR FREE MILK

All parents who are finding it difficult to provide their children with the proper amount of milk daily due to financial circumstances may make application for free milk which will be distributed at the local school in accordance with regulations established by the Department of Public Welfare.

Applications will be made on blanks available in all of the grade rooms. This application signed by the parent will indicate the number of glasses of milk which the parent is unable to provide to meet the requirements of membership in the New York State 5-M Club, which indicates a quart of milk or four glasses as the minimum amount that each child should consume.

The purpose of this provision as indicated in a letter received from Mr. I. G. Howe, Commissioner of Public Welfare in Allegany county, is to provide free milk to "pupils who are in need of milk and from families whose financial status is so near the border line that they are unable to provide the extra milk required."

Since the school authorities must certify that milk is being supplied to such pupils only, the school reserves the right to refuse applications where such certification could not be made. On the other hand, parents should feel no hesitancy in making application for free milk in cases where it is not being otherwise supplied.

SCHOOL HAS NEW FLAG

Have you walked by the north side of the school building in the last week or so? If so, you probably noticed a bright new flag waving on high.

The School Board, fulfilling the duty of the former Betsy Ross furnished the school with a new flag in place of the old flag which was "all tattered and torn."

The flag is six by ten feet in size, which is much larger than the old one, but which is the approved size for a 40-foot flagstaff.

LETTER TO HI HERALD

Fort Clayton, C. Z.

Dear Hi Herald:

Another week has rolled around and brought with it several occurrences. Wednesday morning the hills were spotted here and there with faint blue puffs of smoke as we engaged in sham battle. The ammunition was blank of course. The recruit detachment with the support of a battery of artillery and a platoon of machine gunners were given the task of holding positions at the top of a very high hill which commands a splendid view of the canal from Mira Florez locks to the horizon far out on the Pacific. The day before, the recruits had climbed to this point and cut new trails and broadened old ones to facilitate the movements of the defending troops. These trails were wholly unknown to the old timers altho most of them were familiar with the ground.

We moved out early in the morning, and after the party had reached the hill we were broken up into groups of one or two squads and led off by our respective corporals to strategic positions. The seventh and eighth squads were situated in a position on the steep face of a hill covered with the tall grass on either side of the trail when the column of blue jackets appeared thru the scrub growth between our position and the road. They halted opposite us and were about two hundred yards distant at the foot of the hill. A party of about two squads or 16 men started to advance quite boldly up the trail towards us and being in a position to enfilade their single file we opened fire. They were quickly repulsed and dropped back. Then a member of another party on our left and around the curve of the hill burst thru the grass near the place where I was kneeling and stated their need of three more riflemen. I and two others left immediately and under his leadership made our way thru the grass, running low. The fire was quite brisk now and came from all the surrounding hills. As soon as we reached our destination, we opened fire on a little shack at the edge of a garden at the foot of the hill. It was from here evidently that an attacking group were intending to make an advance. It took sharp eyes to see them crawling thru the grass and scrub brush and close to our left. We fired whenever we caught a glimpse of a blue jacket. We seemed to be holding our own when the order was given to retreat back up the hill. The right probably had had to withdraw. It was gruelling work running up the steep muddy, slippery trail. When we rested for an instant it was to fire on our advancing foes, now in plain view. We reloaded as we ran. Down into a gully then up another steep hill. Here we went more slowly and finally halted and took a new stand, sweeping the enemy on the opposite hillside. I had only one clip, or five rounds of ammunition left. I fired it sparingly and then started slowly back up the trail. As I passed several of the men they too were without ammunition. I continued to the top where the company commander and the first sergeant were standing and announced the circumstances. The sergeant left, I thought for ammunition and as I waited, seated on a stone, the bugle sounded and the battle was over and we had held our hill.

It was all very realistic and even as I tramped thru the ankle-deep slime on the return march to barracks, I was thinking of how I would enjoy writing to you all about it.

As tomorrow is Saturday and that means strict inspection to the soldiers, I will close.

Your friend,

CREATED by Nature to feed the young, milk contains practically all of the food-elements necessary to life. You couldn't possibly purchase these substances separately at a chemist's for less than several hundred times the cost per quart of milk. Milk is the one indispensable food. Your body must have the materials that it furnishes if you are to live a long and happy life. At twice its present price or more, milk would still be your cheapest all-round food.
A wise nutritional rule is to spend a fifth of your food-budget for milk. Every child should have a quart a day, adults at least a pint. It will repay you a hundredfold in health. Is milk worth what it costs? Yes, many times over!

Around Our House

PREPARE FOR CHRISTMAS

Christmas presents that are made at home need not be expensive nor take much time from each day's work or play, says the New York State college of home economics.

Barber's linen, which is a heavy rough linen, makes attractive table mats and luncheon sets when decorated only with Italian hemstitching of the same color thread or with thread of contrasting colors. Handkerchief linen of various shades of the rainbow is attractive in fringed finger tip towels and cocktail napkins. Gay ginghams are especially attractive as breakfast sets, made with fringed edges or bound with bias bindings to match one of the colors in the gingham.

To make two-toned linen luncheon sets, overcast the two pieces of contrasting linens together about one-half inch from the edge, and then fringe the material up to the line of sewing. Cross-stitching looks well on rolled edges of the material and a line of featherstitching is pleasing in color on the linen luncheon sets.

The fruit shelf also offers possibilities for gifts. Jars of the nicest jams and jellies, and even canned fruit, wrapped in gay Christmas paper and tied with a big bow, make delicious gifts to go under the Christmas tree. These appeal especially to friends or relatives who cannot make such things for themselves, but who enjoy the taste of home-made jams and jellies with their breakfast toast.

Food Market Advice

Veal Now Attractively Priced

Veal has held at a consistently high price for several months, but is again in the reasonable class. Veal chops, cutlet or roast should be a welcome addition to the menu. Beef, pork and lamb are all somewhat higher. Loins of pork, however, will be an attractive week-end feature. Meat of any kind is never more appreciated than after an orgy of turkey and other holiday fare.

A gradual seasonal decline in the price of eggs is looked for as they become more plentiful, but no sharp decline is expected.

Green Beans Again Plentiful

After weeks of high prices, green beans are again plentiful and attractively priced. Since one pound will serve from four to six persons, it is a truly economical vegetable. Among recent arrivals are French artichokes from California, Cuban okra, and mustard greens, yams, chicory, radishes and green onions grown in the Carolinas. Most of the spinach in market comes from Virginia but many states are contributing to the supply. Florida is shipping most of the tomatoes, Boston lettuce and romaine in market. All of these are reasonable in price—including artichokes and okra, which are usually fairly high.

Citrus Fruits Rule the Market

Citrus fruits are outstanding values at present. Bag oranges, grapefruit and tangerines are cheap because of an unusually large crop. Melons, with the exception of casaba, are practically off the market. Emperor grapes are seasonable. Spanish almerias are arriving but their quality is still none too good. Cranberries are scarce and fairly high. Comice and Bosc pears are moderately priced. Comice pears are very soft, sweet and juicy, while the Bosc are noticeably crisp and sweet, but not juicy. Both are attractive to look at.

Some apples, as the Greening, Stayman Winesap and York, are grown for general cooking purposes, Rome beauties for baking, and McIntosh for both cooking and eating raw; while others, such as Jonathans, Spitz and Delicious, principally grown in the far West, are designed wholly for eating purposes. All of these are seasonable and moderate in cost.

Fish Continues Abundant

Large catches of fish, both salt and fresh water fish are being landed, which results in moderate prices on this food. Pollock is running and according to reports the catch is ten times as great as in other years. This white-meated fish is sold in steaks or filleted.

Below is a menu made up of foods which are plentiful and moderate in cost:

Tomato Juice Cocktail
Roast Pork or Veal Roast Yams
Spinach with Onions
Apple Sauce Bread and Butter
Orange Tapioca Cream
Coffee
