FARMERS' PICNIC

On the 22nd of August at the Island Park, Wellsville, will be the County Wide Picnic, under the auspices of the Dairymen's League, Pomona and Subordinate Granges and the Farm Bureau Association. We have been fortunate in securing two strong speakers for this day. Mr. Milo Campbell, of Chicago, who is president of the Federation of Milk Producers Association, will give an address which will be of interest to all. Prof. Samuel P. Orth, head of the Department of Political Science, Cornell University, will deliver a patriotic address on "Our War." Prof. Orth is recommended as being one of the strongest and ablest speakers up on the faculty of the university. We hope that the people as a whole thruout the county will take advantage of hearing two such strong men, and receive the benefits from a day's outing of this kind. Already the interest seems very strong in all sections of the county where word has been carried that a County Wide Picnic would be held. Band music will be furnished thruout the day. Every person in the county interested in agricultural activities should pack their basket and bring their families out on the 22nd. This will be a clearing house for meeting your friends from all parts of the county. Everybody will be welcome.

THE POTATO CONDITION

The potato crop, both in the state and thruout the United States has looked very promising until the present time, but the yield is about 93 7-10% of that of last year. Condition in the county show a decided decrease in acreage from last year and we are finding quite a little disease in the crop. Blight has attacked the early varieties and weather conditions have been favorable for blight in a good many sections. We are also finding in some sections the vines being destroyed by leaf hoppers, leaf beetles, leaf midge and plant lice. To combat these a spray of either Paris green or arsenate of lead should be used. It is advisable to mix this with bourdeaux mixture and spray it once in order to combat both the insects and to prevent the blight. Conditions in the county last year show that spraying proved to be quite beneficial as on the average we received 66 6-10 bu. increase per acre for spraying. It seems quite probable that equally as good results will be received again this year since conditions are favorable for blight.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson christened the Quistconck, the first ship launched from the Hog Island ship yards. She must have done so with no inner dubitation unless she had been previously informed. "What is a Quistconck?" or where is "Quistconck?"

If you were an American soldier, coming cold and wet and tired from the front line trenches, wouldn't it delight you to find Salvation Army lasses frying fresh doughnuts and making hot coffee for you? When you boost up for the Salvation Army drive you have provided these comforts for the boys in France. No institution comes as near the firing line as the Salvation Army.

Just why there should have been any question as to putting the ball players out of the "work or fight" order until after the season, is incomprehensible to the patriotic American. There is no logical reason why the big base ball leagues should not discontinue for the duration of the war. Base ball is our national game—the game we all love; and being a national game, and a man's game at that, it's soul should be patriotically clean. Base ball will never claim exemption for itself and the arm that throws a ball with a curve that brings down the cheers of the crowd should be the arm to hurl the bomb and bring forth the cheers of the nation.

However this will not apply to freight traffic, which will continue as usual.

Clark Allis of Medina has sold his crop of apples to a fruit buy for about $30,000. It is estimated that his orchards will produce 10,000 barrels of apples. In the deal also are included about 1,000 bushels of Bartlett pears. The growers about this section are contracting their apple crops rapidly, and are receiving from $2.60 to $3 a barrel.

Governor Whitman has asked Adjutant General Sherill to communicate directly with all city and county officials of the state, with a view of enlisting their services in securing the registration of 1,750,000 New York state men eligible for service under the colors, under the proposed new federal statute extending the draft ages from 18 to 45. Governor Whitman's action was prompted by a desire, as he pointed out, to keep New York state in the lead in furnishing prompt and efficient aid to the government in the present crisis. Election machinery of the state was immediately set in motion.

THINK!

A Plain Statement for the Thinking Republican Voters of the 37th Congressional District:—

The Business of Winning the War is the Greatest and Most Important Business in the Entire World Today.

The War Activities of the United States will be on a Greater Scale and call for Greater Expenditures next year alone than all the Federal Expenditures since the adoption of the Constitution—the Birth of the Nation.

The Government is now using and must of necessity use the greatest business brains and business ability in the country to manage this constantly increasing and greatest business of all times.

Congress is the Board of Directors of YOUR Government in the management of winning this war. Its real problems are business problems.

The members of this next Congress must be the pick of successful business men and big thinkers of the country—they will pass upon expenditures of all funds, totalling many billions to win the war.

LIVES—your son's life—and your neighbor's son—and hopes—the highest hopes of the nation and the individual depend upon the individual members of Congress

Your Representative in Congress must be a man of the greatest possible business training and experience—a man who has been tried and known to be able to handle business problems of the greatest magnitude. HE SHOULD BE A MAN WHO HAS MADE A SUCCESS OF HIS OWN BUSINESS. HE MUST NOT BE A GLIB PROMISER—HE MUST BE AN ACTUAL BUILDER AND BUSINESS ACHIEVER WITH A PROVEN RECORD OF YEARS OF SUCCESS.

OUR Uncle Sam is out of politics until the end of the war.

There should be no politics in this election of a Congressman from this district.

President Wilson has drafted the greatest business brains in the country to aid the Government in its war program—Schwab to build the ships—Edison to head the council of defense—Ryan to build aeroplanes—Davidson to raise relief money—and dozens of others.

We must do likewise in this district in naming our choice for Congressman in the primaries on September 3rd. The spirit of patriotism is high—men who ordinarily would not consider the problem must be sent to Congress now.

That is why, after canvassing the entire district, we have asked

A. B. HOUGHTON

OF CORNING, TO BE OUR

CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

His record shows all these necessary qualifications.

Thirty years' active business association with the Corning Glass Works.

For eight years it president—now employing approximately three thousand skilled workmen, eighty-five per cent directly or indirectly employed on government war work.

A plant which has increased its business to a tremendous degree in the last decade and and whose product is known in every quarter of the globe.

His record as a business man, student of economics and philanthropist is international.

Therefore we ask you to think carefully on this matter, to allow no cheap or time-worn political tricks to befog the issue, and to join with us in backing up our nation and our president by making sure that we nominate in the coming September primaries this truly able, experienced and pre-eminently qualified candidate.

Politics and partisanship are plague in war time.

Speeches cannot win the war, but united applied business ability will.

Respectfully submitted.

KEEP THE WHEELS TURNING

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—The War Labor Board is undoubtedly keeping some of the industrial ships off the rocks, since the work of Mr. Taft and Mr. Walsh prevents strikes and the more serious labor troubles. And when they get thru with a dispute the employers and employees simply "have to be satisfied."

"We won't have strikes," the Administration has declared, and President Wilson has backed up this decision with the full power of his office on a number of occasions. The central, or superior control has been sufficient at all times, but, notwithstanding this fact, there has been an effort to force the policies of reconstruction ahead of the close of the war. To do this attempts have been made to envelop many industries in the meshes of Government control. Meanwhile socialistic iconoclasm appears to stalk abroad, for the material expediency has transferred railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, and many other things to the control of the Government, yet there is nothing in the situation that calls for a confiscatory social revolution, such as is being agitated by those who are victims of unrest in the land.

It does not take a very careful observer to satisfy himself that the United States is a going concern, and further study ought to bring the conviction that public ownership is only necessary to our affairs when it is called for by war emergencies. The War Labor Board, in its work, does not hold to the viewpoint that is so frequently pressed upon its members that democracy can be strengthened by hypnotizing industry and putting it to sleep. Quite on the contrary, the Board is proceeding under the assumption that democracy, government, industry, labor and capital need always to hold their balance and proceed along safe and sane lines, for dead hens lay no eggs, and paralyzed industries pay neither wages nor dividends.

Socialism

The general movement that has made itself known in Washington for several years, to extend public ownership, has been accelerated by the railroads and wire line control. A prominent United States Senator asserts the belief that the next step will be to take possession of the mines, and that "unless Congress rises to check the onrushing tide, all the factories in the country engaged in the manufacture of munitions and of war supplies will be laid hold of." The same authority predicts "a fight to the death with national and international socialism when the tides of war shall have rolled away." There is, however, a little comfort in the renunciation of the Socialists by Allen Benson, who was the candidate of that political party for President in the last election. Benson believes with Gustave Herve, the famous French Socialists, that the doctrine has become too pro-German to be tolerated.

Modern Socialism, in its most respectable form, has become persistent in its insidious demands upon the Federal Government, and its champions are constantly advancing their imaginary panacea, which they claim to be based on collective ownership of wealth production. These advocates desire to annex lands, transportation facilities, mines, mills, factories and modern machinery. The wild-eyed boys are telling Washington that they must have everything that science, industry and hard toil has created. At present these Socialists are juggling with the cherished term "Democracy," and they are making the most of the necessities of war, and are laying special emphasis upon the acts of Government that have taken over some of the big industrial and financial resources of the country. Thus they are attempting to demonstrate that the management of industries by the community or Government, for the benefit of those who are laggards in life's big game, would result to the general good. As Archimedes cried "Eureka" when he discovered how to find the amount of alloy in Hierb's crown, so have the Socialists screeched "Utopia" since railroad, wire and mine control has apparently embodied their peculiar philosophies and communistic views.

"Mental, Moral and Physical Manhood"

The conditions existing among our men in uniform proves the truth of the words of President Wilson when he said: "No army and navy ever before assembled have had more conscientious and painstaking thought given to the protection and stimulation of its mental, moral and physical manhood." The plans to which the President referred have been carried thru and the Commissions on Training Camp Activities of the War and Navy Departments are preparing to demonstrate to State Fairs this fall the achievements of a regulated recreation." Photographs, charts and paintings will portray how the commissions are successfully directing theatrical entertainments, athletics, mass singing, club life, educational courses and other forms of recreation within the military camps, and how hospitality has been organized in the outlaying cities for the men on leave.

The saloons and the red-light districts have lost their job. Even as recently as the Mexican brush in 1916 lurid stories of debauches and immorality along the border came back to Washington. The foresight that enlisted the services of the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, the Jewish Welfare Board, the American Library Association and the Training Camp Commissions in stamping out the immoral influences about the camps, have been justified by the fine condition existing among the men in uniform.

"Regulated regulation" has received the stamp of emphatic approval from the soldiers and sailors themselves, and the old horrors that existed in the pitfalls that laid in the pathway of the soldiers off duty have been wiped out, with the result that the moral conditions among the soldiers and sailors are perhaps better than in civil life. The Liberty Theatre and "Smileage" books have been a helpful means of enjoyment in camp life.

The stimulation of "mental, moral and physical manhood" has been one of the biggest and best victories that democracy has won, and that, too, has been among its own soldiers and sailors.

Oil and Coal

Officials of the Fuel Administration are insistent that the war cannot be won without the products of coal mines and petroleum, and the influences of control of the Government are being tightened, and there is a strong probability that these industries will travel the way of the railroads and wire lines in going under Government supervision. Undoubtedly a heavy tax will be imposed on gasoline used for pleasure cars, and the common use of the latter vehicles is likely to be discouraged. Europea countries have long since discarded pleasure riding, and the scarcity of petroleum products is likely to bring about radical changes in the affairs of the United States.
