The white angel of peace has come to bless the a[illegible]

* * *

Virtue may be its own reward but wickedness and cruelty bring their own destruction.

* * *

A large selection of assorted noises evidenced the joy of America over the cessation of hostilities.

* * *

Will our boys like the kaiser menu when they return? Or will we all have to learn to make army stew?

* * *

Being the kaiser and All-Highest may be very interesting and delightful, but who would want to be an Ex-All-Highest?

* * *

The War Lords in their shining armor have had their brief and bloody day. It is followed by the days of the Lord of Peace.

* * *

What a grief it must be to the kaiser to realize that his beloved Fatherland can get on without him and is perfectly reconciled to attempting it.

* * *

For months the German army will have nightmare dreams of running at its topmost speed while dreadful Americans on motor trucks pursue it.

* * *

After the armistice and the shouting [illegible] thanksgiving and rejoicing [illegible] be with us and remain with us for all the days of our lives.

* * *

Some one suggests that the kaiser should be [illegible] oblivion. This will be impossible for quarters have already been reserved for him in the Hall of Infamy.

* * *

We never expected to display in any other flag than the Stars and Stripes. But the white flag under which the German envoys came to Marshall Foch was very welcome.

* * *

And what shall we do with our dollar-a-year men? Our sense of economy and good judgment would impel us to retain them in their places and keep them indefinitely.

* * *

Perhaps swords will soon be beaten into plowshares. During the peace celebration we certainly saw wash boilers and garbage cans beaten into producers of infernal sounds.

* * *

After one stunt of wild rejoicing is over will come the serious nation questions of reconstruction and readjustment. Attention class! Close study and close co-operation will be required of us all.

* * *

Don't let [illegible] any extravagant [illegible] thought that the war is over. Our boys must still be supported abroad they must gradually be brought back; they must be returned to civilian life by degrees. There will be another Liberty Loan. We must be ready for it.

THE HEARTHSTONE

If you have any sense of proportion — of related values — of anything at all — the U. S. A. as a place to live in, looks better to you than any other country in the world.

And if you have the homing — which every good man has—Andover, N. Y., looks to you like one of the best places in the U. S. A.

Christmas is the time when the home spirit is most potent within us. Every block on Main Street should arouse impulses at this time which could not be simulated by the sight of the Capitol dome.

Sentiment need not blind us to the fact that firms engaged in retail business on this street are like the rest of us, prompted in their daily activities by the prospect of commercial profit But it should count for something with us that it is their life work to study the individual needs of Andover people And the material symbol of the Christmas spirit is that eternal emblem, the Christmas gift.

Andover merchants, who know many of us by our first names, are the best judges of our habits, tastes and requirements. They have for some time been making these preparations on the basis of what they know about us, and now is the time to apply to them for advice and service.

A SURE THING, ANYWAY

November the seventh, 1918, will live in history as the day of the premature peace celebration. The tremendous speed of the events which preceded the armistice between Foch and the German delegates is a fair excuse for the jubilations of the celebrants, who were satisfied with unverified rumor.

But there were for more sceptics than the demonstrations in our large towns indicated. In financial institutions the rumor was accepted as rumor and manufacturers who gave their help vacations were in many cases far from being convinced themselves.

It has even developed that many factories that blew their whistles did so merely to escape suspicions of disloyalty. And several people who sincerely desired the triumph of the United States were manhandled by roughs eks for no crime at all beyond a reluctance to participate in the excentric antics of the crowd—for inability to believe what they devoutly wished to be true.

We have demonstrated our [illegible] that it is more than [illegible] prompted by something deeper than the spirit of carnival. How [illegible] we are an [illegible] humane world!

POT AND KETTLE

Excellent is the motive which [illegible] the periodical agitation [illegible] the morals of the members of our fighting force. There is a hardy tradition that soldiers and sailors are licentious and neither novelists, poets nor dramatists would have it otherwise.

Since Virgil sang the sack of Troy the epic and the romance have always depicted victorious soldiers as ravishers, lechers and libertines. War stories would lose half their zip and punch if these elegant characteristics were removed from the legionaries that [illegible] the pages. And more or less [illegible] our ideas from story-books rather than from compiled statistics.

Statistics however have recently shown that disease resulting from immorality is not as prevalent in the army as among men in civil life. It will, therefore, be more logical to start worrying about the morals of the civilians now that [illegible] are [illegible] be seasoned and [illegible] absolute civilians like ourselves and will learn all our bad habits.

Or they might—and quite justifiably—decline to associate with vicious reprobates like us until we promised to reform.

Nothing is more necessary to the effectiveness of our forces than the maintenance of high moral standards and the authorities, aided by the Y. M. C. A. and other stalwart institutions, are devoting ceaseless vigilance to this essential. It is therefore incumbent upon those of us who are not with the colors to keep our own house clean and to avoid the scandal of standing disgraced by comparison with those whom we would presume to edify by pontifical attitudes and apostolic posturing.

WORKING CONDITIONS

Several things are more exhausting than work.

To sit on a chair in the same position for eight hours is more tiring than to dig in a garden for the same length of time. Particularly if you know at the beginning of the first hour what you have ahead of you.

Factory foremen and superintendents have been realizing this. It was known fairly generally some time ago, but the knowledge was not applied. Then came conditions during the last year an a half which gave us a few eye-openers. They taught us that when we know what is wrong we will escape trouble by putting it right.

A short while ago a crew of girls were kept working on gearing systems in speedometers for ordnance department trucks. The wheels were not much larger than those used in watchmaking, and each girl threaded two of them on a small shaft, gave them a tap with a hammer and put them into a box. Then she took two more gears and repeated. She did this all day sitting on a chair at a work-bench, taking the usual interval at noon.

Then one of the girls said she wanted to stand part of the time and work at a higher bench. The foreman kicked, but yielded to a threat of a walkout, and in future the whole crew stood or sat according to inclination. The output nearly doubled.

Then the girl responsible for the reform asked to be put part time on different work. The foreman tried the suggestion and found that the variety acted as a stimulus—also that when one branch of production fell behind he could get level by switching gangs. And the crew turned out each day two thirds of the work they had done under the former conditions plus two-thirds of its equivalent in the new line.

The girls were piece-workers and the factory had been for her [illegible] on its contracts, so everyone was better off.

The obviousness of the lesson [illegible] to us [illegible] the progress of the [illegible] factory superintendents are only beginning to see. Adam Smith [illegible] first lesson to them.

If you don't feel fine and dandy when you work do something about it. Change the conditions, change your loss, quit smoking, start smoking—do whatever is necessary, but don't stay the way you are.

BACK ON THE JOB

With this issue of the News Rev. H. B. Williams, but recently returned from Y. M. C. A. work in the camps, resumes his correspondence for the News.

In the future Mr. Williams will each week contribute to his department such thoughts as he deems will be needed, and expressive of his own opinion on matters literary and civic as well as otherwise. These columns will be his own. His views may differ widely from those of the editor of the News but by mutual consent he and the editor "disclaim all responsibility" for each other's expression of opinion.

As [illegible] in the past, under the [illegible] of the reader, Mr. Williams' contributions will be such as will be of much interest to Andover people and contribute in no small way to the uplift and moral life of this community.

Don't expect the flesh-pots of Egypt again at once. Our Army and our Allies are still to be supplied, and we must continue to conserve and conserve and conserve some more.

DIME CAPITALISTS

In many large banks the bond departments are being reorganized, and among new features contemplated is a greater abundance of bond issues in the lower denominations. The innovations arise from the conviction of the directorates that they will soon have to deal with a new type of investor—the type that has never invested before.

Those of us who have been in the habit of putting their savings into bonds hardly realize how wide-spread an ignorance has existed regarding this class of investment. But any Liberty bond salesman has realized it by this time. He has worked to exhaustion answering questions which he thought anybody could answer. "What's a coupon?" "Can you buy groceries with it?" "Can you sell a bond after you have bought it?" "Must you take it to Washington to sell it?"

These mysteries are now cleared away and most people know that you don't save bond coupons up to a total of eleven hundred and then trade them in for premium coffee-pots or tobacco-humidors. The Liberty bond campaigns have elucidated these things—and a few others.

It has taught that the bond department of a state or national bank is widely different from a fraudulent bucket shop. Banks of standing cannot afford to offer doubtful securities for sale; they prosper or decline in proportion as their customers win or lose. One cheated customer could set up a squeal that would wreck the institution.

The movies have fed us to repletion on Wall St. romances in which some sinister broker always plays a leading part and those who get their ideas from movies felt more inclined than ever to hide their savings in mattresses. But they can do better now.

According to General Du Pont it will take about two years to demobilize the American Army. There will be plenty of work for our soldiers to do in France after peace has been signed, so that there is no fear of a period of unemployment at home. On the contrary, the work of reconstruction will mean a tremendous circulation of money and its distribution into the hands of the masses in America, and the more readily it is invested by them in sound securities the faster will capital be available for expanding reconstructive programs to more ambitious dimensions.

Peace will bring with it a greater stimulus to saving among the wage earners than ever in-pired them before. And here is the keystone of national prosperity.

There is one very effective method of saving coal which apparently has not occurred to the Fuel Administration. Let it restrict the sale of Georgette crepe blouses and watch the result.

* * *

Now that the war is over, what shall we do with our four-minute men? A large proportion of the laity would like to have them retained to deliver the sermons every Sunday in the churches of our land.

* * *

The book lover is never lonely. He is not only sufficient unto himself, but he is perfectly independent of others for entertainment. With his book he can banish loneliness and laugh at dull care.

* * *

This will be the greatest Thanksgiving since the days of the Pilgrim Fathers. One hardly knows how to specify the causes for thankfulness. However, we might mention Peace by Victory, President Wilson, Marshal Foch, General Pershing, the French 75's, the Yanks, the Gobs, the 1918 wheat crop, sugar substitutes, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie, and others to suit our individual taste.

The home of I. O. Marvin, at Almond, was nearly destroyed by fire last Sunday morning. It is believed the fire caught from a lighted match dropped in a clothes closet. The building was a fine one and the loss will be heavy.

—Baptist Ladies' Aid will hold fancy work and food sale Saturday, Nov. 23rd, at C. W. Williams's Store.

—O. E. S. members will meet at Masonic Hall at 10:15 Thursday morning to attend service at Presbyterian Church.

—Mrs. Mary Hall Davis died at her home in Belmont, Nov. 8th, aged 77 years. She had been a resident of Belmont since childhood.

Mrs. Geo. Bloss and daughter, Mrs. Mark Wilson, of Whitesville, went to Sayre, Pa. Tuesday where the two families expect to pass the winter.

—The various civic societies of Andover have been invited to attend the federated Thanksgiving service at the Presbyterian Church Thursday morning at 10:30.

—Miss Veronica Hyland has a position in the War and Navy Departments in the financial section. There are over nine thous and employees in that one building.

—Miss Nellie Diffin has been unable to be at her place as teacher in the A. Primary room this week on account of illness. Mrs. Thorne has been teaching in her place.

—A. R. Brillon is moving his family to Kingston, N. Y., in order that he may be nearer his business. He expects to leave today and his family will follow a few days later.

—Director W. J. Wright has resigned his position at the Alfred Agricultural School to take effect Dec. 1st. He goes to Cornell State College in charge of Rural Project Work in the state.

—Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Slocum are moving from the R. A. Pease farm west of the village, to their own place on the Davis Hill road, which he purchased from the estate of his father, the late David —Mrs. Jesse Baker and Mrs. Geo. Baker are both ill with pneumonia.

—The musical schedule for tonight at the M. E. parsonage has been postponed.

—Miss Anna Detlinger and Chas. L. Conner, of Wellsville, were married last Saturday.

—Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Loughlin entertained Friday night at cards. A pleasant evening was enjoyed.

—Mrs. Frank Emery, who has been critically ill at her home on Chestnut Street, is reported as gaining.

—There is a new hat for you at the lowest possible price at Raufenarth's Millinery Sale. Call and see them.

—Thomas Perkins, of Hallsport, died at Johnsonburg. The body was taken to Hallsport for funeral and interment Friday.

—Miss Viola Courtney has returned from Hornell where she had been for a week while having an operation performed on her foot.

—Wellsville is sending a good delegation up to the Jack Lynn Stock Companies productions at the Auditorium this week. Saturday they put on a matinee.

—The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Vars has been so ill that her life has been despaired of but at this writing her condition is reported as more favorable.

—The News office received the first eggs from a hen coop on an election bet made between S. G. Wright and A. O. Tucker, the former winning with Alfred Smith as his choice.

—Mrs. Chas. Tracy has closed her house on Pleasant Avenue and with her daughter, Miss Strickland are at the Atwood home of which they will have charge for the winter.

—Mrs. Susan VanSickle, one of Andover's pioneer residents, died at her home, corner of Church and Center Streets, Wednesday afternoon following an illness of several months.

—Horan Brothers have advertised an auction, for Monday, Nov. 25th, at which they will offer 5 horses, a quantity of farm implements, 1300 bushels of oats and two automobiles and other articles for sale.

—A very enjoyable farewell surprise visit was tendered Mr. and Mrs. A. B Brillon, Thursday evening of last week. Over fifty of their friends and well-wishers came to bid them adieu, and a very merry evening was enjoyed by all.

—The following men from Wellsville entrained last Saturday for guard duty at the N. Y. aqueduct: John H. Miner, Perry Erskin, A. W. Schrader, Malcolm Lewis, Howard Voorhies, John Wallace, Merle Crittenden, Carnelius Callaghan and Joseph H. McCracken.

ATTENTION I. O. O. F.

Members of I. O. O. F. Lodge No. 786 are summoned to meet at Odd Fellow Hall, at 10:15 Thursday morning to attend Thanksgiving service at the Presbyterian Church in a body. Let every member be in line.

—Dr. M. J. McMahon, formerly of Wellsville, is now in a British hospital. Dr. McMahon was severely gassed October 14th and fears are entertained that he will lose his eye-sight from the effects.

—Wm. McDonough received a copy of the Kane Republican this week telling of the death of a friend, Jerry Galvin of that city, and that another friend, Frank Clark Galvin, had been severely gassed while at the front "over there."

—Alonzo Crandall, of Bolivar, died at the Willard State Hospital Nov. 8th, of Spanish influenza. Deceased was born in Almond in 1838. He was a Civil War veteran, serving with the 136th Regiment, New York Volunteers. Interment was made at Bolivar.

—Ray E. Mead has traded his farm, five miles east of Andover, on the Greenwood Hill road, for a fine farm between Hornell and Howard. He expects to remove to his new home about December 1st. Andover will miss Mr. Mead from this community but we all sincerely expect that he will better himself in his new locality. He is the kind of man that any vicinity can ill afford to lose, and his gain will be good for any place in which he locates.

—Allegany County now has one woman R. F. D. carrier in the person of Mrs. Florence Boedeker of Olba. Mrs. Boedeker passed the requisite examination Sept. 13th, with the highest standing in a class of five. She was assigned to the longest and most difficult route in the district. Her work is pronounced as most satisfactory so far. She is a good driver covering her route in a staunch rig and driving a reliable span of horses.

—An old fashioned Thanksgiving will be observed by the members of Rebekah Lodge and their families at I. O. O. F. Hall, next Thursday. The members will attend service at the Presbyterian Church at 10:30 a. m. in a body. Dinner will be served in the hall at 1 p. m. In the afternoon a Thanksgiving program will be given and a good social visit enjoyed. Supper will be served at 5 p. m and a fraternal party is planned for the evening.

—A very unordinary thing happened in one of our local barber shops Friday morning. It occurred that four of Andover's older men followed each other simultaneously into the barber chair. They were all veterans of the Civil War, and their combined ages was 319 years. The men were Comrades Charles Shelby, aged 85; Charles Lozzard, aged 85; T. N. Bord, aged 74; and John Angell, aged 75 years. This is a thing that not been prearranged, none of them knowing

PEOPLE SHAMEFULLY NEGLECT THEIR EYES

About the last thing the average person decides to attend to is the examination of his or her eyes. They seem to think there is something clever about being able to read without glasses, even when they know that they need them. YOU do differently! If you only THINK that your eyes are not as they should be, let us find out for you.
