WILL DISCONTINUE KNITTING

A careful inventory has recently been made of knitted articles on hand in Red Cross warehouses throughout the entire country. A supply of socks, sweaters, etc., sufficient in the judgment of the Department of Military Relief, to care for the present need of all men now in camps and for those returning from the other side, has been set aside for the use of that Department. The remaining stock will be turned over to the Department of Foreign Relief for immediate shipment to France for the use of our men there and for delivery to our Foreign Commissions for use in civilian relief work.

In order to secure more workers for the refugee garment allotments which are so urgently needed, the Red Cross will suspend knitting as one of its regular production activities after January 1st, 1919.

All those having knitting at their homes are asked to complete the articles and return them to Mrs. Mourhess as soon as possible that she may send them to the chairman for shipment to France. Also all yarn should be returned at once to Mrs. Mourhess to comply with orders from headquarters.

EVERYONE URGED TO WEAR LITTLE BLUE BUTTONS

Thousands of little blue "Go to Church Sunday" buttons were given out for distribution by the pastors of the Protestant churches of Hornell at their morning services Sunday marking the opening of the campaign for the celebration of "Go to Church Sunday," next Sunday, the first Sunday in the new year. If the enthusiasm with which the congregations met the presentations and appeals of their pastors is continued during the week, there is little doubt that the movement will terminate in a splendid success.

This organized effort is confined to the Protestant churches, and it expected that by the end of the week every Hornellian in sympathy with the work of these churches will be wearing one of the little blue buttons as a promise.

IN AS MUCH

The In As Much Society of the Methodist church will meet with Mrs. R. A. Pease, Monday night, January 6th.

LETTERS FROM OUR MEN IN SERVICE

Interesting Letter From Daniel Mulcahy to E. J. Atwood. Also One From Ernest G. Green, Both Written "Over There."

Cholles les Eoux, France.
Dec. 12, 1918.

Dear Ed:

Now that the ban or censorship has been raised I am going to give you a little idea of what I have been doing and where I have been since leaving the States. I will also tell you something about our division (the 82nd.)

We left America on the S. S. Khyber on April 25th, and landed in Liverpool, England, on May 7th. It took fourteen days to cross the ocean. We arrived in Le Havre, France, on May 13th. Our division was the second division of the National Army to arrive in France.

Headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces in France has sent out a letter telling about the different divisions over here, and they class the 82nd division as the first and best division of the National Army and the sixth best division of the American Expeditionary Forces. All during the war we were in the First Army Corps. They also class us as a parade and shock division.

My first experience at the front was on the Australian front at Buire near Amiens. I was one out of about 50 men picked out of our regiment to go to this front and get pointers on how the Australians fight and then come back to our different companies and tell them what we learned. We have the honor of being the very first men of the National Army to go to the front. We went in the lines on June 6th and came out on June 13th.

Our regiment spent two weeks at the front at Reuilly, one week at Leiney and 25 days on Sub Sector Seille. From the reserve position on Sub Sector Seille we could see the city of Metz very plain. We took an active part in the first American offensive at St. Mihiel.

Our division did its real fighting in the Argonne forest. The Argonne forest is one of the largest forests in all Europe. The French told us that it would be impossible to drive the Germans out of the forest. "Uncle Sam's Dough Boys" did the trick. Our division went in these lines on Oct. 6th, and we came out on Oct. 31st. We were under continuel shell fire during the whole 26 days. Our battalion had 17 casulties going into the lines on account of shell fire. Our battalion had 865 men going in the lines and we came out with 180 men and 6 officers. I came out of all these fights without a scratch.

I have been in the city of Amiens. I saw the beautiful cathedral there, the second finest in all Europe. It took fifty-five years to build it. I have been in Verdun and I have been over the Verdun battlefield. The nearest I have been to Paris is the outskirts of the city. I could see the Eifal tower very plain from the train. The Eifal tower is the highest electrical tower in the world. I have also been in Nancy and Foul, two French cities.

I am now on a ten days pass. I am spending my vacation at Aux les Baines, Chambrey and Challes les Eaux. From Aux les Baines you can see Mt. Blanc and the Alps Mountains very plainly. We are less than fifty miles from Italy.

The Y. M. C. A. has a beautiful building in Aux les Baines. It was built and formerly owned by Stanford White of New York.

I have put on some flesh since coming overseas. I now weigh 202 pounds, without my over coat. I got fat driving the Germans. It was great sport to watch them run.

With best wishes I will close, hoping to hear from you in the near future. I am as ever,

Sincerely,
D. H. Mulcahy,
Co. H. 325 Inf.

Bordeaux, France
Dec. 11, 1918.

My dear folks:

Well, here I am at Tolmont. It sure is a big change from Bordeaux and so far I am very well pleased with it. The village itself doesn't number a hundred people. American troop were practically total strangers to these people until Uncle Sam sent down a regiment or two of engineers and started work to make this the biggest supply port in France.

We are located at the mouth of the Garonne river and are almost on the ocean. From our office or quarters we can always see a number of ships going by, altho too distant to be clearly distinguished. We get the famous ocean breeze here not to mention any amount of mud.

One of our boys at Geniart brought me down yesterday. We started at 8 o'clock and reached here about 12:30. We drove thru some of the following towns: St. Andre de Cubzac, Bourg, Bloye, Sifplez, Arsch, Mechers and Semasee, not to mention lots of others. The Major was at dinner in the officers mess and seemed delighted to see me and rave me with him here. After dinner he and the Sergeant-Major took me for a drive showing

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

How Two Andover Men Were Made Happy Wednesday

J. J. Stooks, a cheesmaker living on Greenwood Street, took a couple of old razors to show them to John Horton Wednesday forenoon. One was especially prized as it was a family keepsake. Going home the razors dropped out of his pocket. He went immediately back but could not find them.

Like all sensible folks do he then made a visit to the News Office and advertised the razors as lost, and started back home. When out on Main Street Fred Potter accosted him with: "Say, I wish you would find the fountain pen I lost."

Stooks came back at him with: "I wish you would tell me where my two razors are that I lost this morning."

Potter: "Why, that's easy. They're up in my house, I found them."

So the two started to get the razors. Just as they were about to enter the outside door Stooks stooped over and picked up Fred's fountain pen where he had dropped it, and said: "Well, Potter, here's your pen."

Both entered the Potter residence with one of those "broad grins" peculiar to each.

Mrs. Potter thot a laughing menagerie had blown in on her.

It pays to advertise all right, but when it works so rapidly as this the financial profit to the editor would never keep our kids from the County House, as we had to pay the 20c back again.

S. D. BAPTIST ANNUAL MEETING

The annual social and business meeting of the S. D. Baptist Church was well attended last Sunday, dinner being served at twelve o'clock.

At the meeting following Mrs. Agnes Langworthy was elected secretary, and Miss Alice Clarke treasurer. Reports were given and plans perfected for the coming year. By a unanimous vote Edson Langworthy was chosen to be ordained as a deacon in place of his father, the late Daniel Langworthy.

ONE OF AMERICA'S GREATEST SONS WHOSE DEATH IS WIDELY MOURNED

THE LATE COLONEL THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Theodore Roosevelt, twenty-sixth President of the United States, and for seven years incumbent of that high office, advocate and exponent of an unqualified Americanism, beloved idol of the American people, passed from quiet slumber into the sleep of deaht in his home at Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, L. I., at fifteen minutes past four o'clock Monday morning.

The immediate cause of death as stated by his physicians, was a pulmonary embolism—the formation of a blood clot in one of the arteries of the lungs and its passage thence into the brain. Except for the presence in his bed chamber of James Amos, his faithful Negro valet, who had attended him since his White House days, Colonel Roosevelt was alone at the moment of death, so foreign to the expectations of his family was any thought of his sudden passing.

No pain attended the one-time President's death. The end to the earthly career of the virile soldier, author, statesman, publicist and orator, the man who had made "the strenuous life" a household phrase and who had exemplified that life from his busy youth until he died at sixty-one, came as quickly, as gently as slumber comes to the tired child tucked away by loving mother hands.

JOSEPH CABLE

Joseph Edward, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cable, died at their home Friday morning, after a three week's illness of complications from influenza. The little man had been a severe sufferer. The funeral was held at Blessed Sacrament Church, Monday morning, and the interment was in Sacred Heart Cemetery, Wellsville.

CARNEGIES QUESTION HAS BEEN ANSWERED

Smug in Our Self-Esteem America Looked Over the Brink Before Preparing for War. What We Published in 1913.

Mrs. William Dean brought to the News office recently a copy of the Andover News dated Feb. 14, 1913, in which appeared an article by Andrew Carnegie, sarcastically denouncing the preparations made by the United States for war. We quote a paragraph of the article.

"Our Military and Naval officials fight imaginary foes when they think of possible invasions of enemies. The Republic, having no designs of territorial acquisition nor powerful neighbors, has no enemies to fear. It is the reverse with European lands joined together, each armed against the other as probable invaders. We expect those of our Military and Naval circles to dwell in their dreams upon possible attacks, devising counter measures of attack and defense—"'Tis their vocation." But—to any proposal of increase in Army or Navy we hope our President-elects' response will be—"Pray tell us first against what enemy you need this further protection? Name the power or powers and tell us what object they can have for attacking us, how they can benefit therefrom—what and in view." There are to-day only two navies greater than our own, those of Britain and Germany. We rank third. Does any sensible man, Naval and Military officers excepted, fear war between the two parts of our speaking race? Is not this unthinkable? As we have outgrown the duel so have we outgrown homicidal war. English speaking men are never again to assail each other. That day has past. Has there ever been danger of war between Grmany and ourselves, members of the same Teutonic race? Never has it been even imagined. America, Britain, Germany in China marched their united forces under a German General to Peking, and so will these three powers unite again when danger requires. We are all of the same Teutonic blood and united could ensure world peace. The fourth naval power is our ally of the Revolution, the sister Republic of France. Could even an American admiral or commanding general succeed in believing that war was possible between the two Republics? This would be found beyond even the wildest flights of his vivid imagination. The Taft treaty submitting all questions to arbitration was signed by three of these powers, Britain, France and ourselves. Germany thru her ambassador in Washington, by order of his government, assuring us of her desire to become a party to the treaty.

"Our Republic, soon to number 100,000,000 of free and independent citizens, our men old and young ready with their rifles to do or die for their country if attacked, surely every man even the narrow professional soldier in his sane moments, must realize that no such hairbrained madness as invasion will ever be attempted. Our harbors could easily be torpedoed before the enemy could prepare and arrive.

"Men who refused to-day to walk abroad without lightning rods down their backs with a ground connection, because men have been struck with lightning, would be the counterpart of those who fear invasion."

In the light of the present day the above appears ridiculous but we were in those days all more or less embued with about the same spirit.

"When ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."
