Germany has formed the habit of strife. If she cannot have war she will have riots.

* * *

France, England and the United States will speak in firm and equal voices at the peace conference.

* * *

Full stomachs and settled government evidently go together — else why food to prevent Bolshevism?

* * *

If you are tired, thin and thirty, be patient and have courage. You may be "fair, fat and forty" some day.

* * *

Had you too forgotten the enormous extent of Russia until you looked it up on the map day before yesterday?

* * *

General Foch has deserved well of the world. If he has a fancy for the Rhine or any other river he ought to have it.

* * *

Wanted — Men accustomed to repairing; to re-make one world in bad condition. Quick and skilful workers required.

* * *

America can now gratify to the utmost her love for parades. There are plenty of fifes and drums and khaki at hand.

* * *

Both parties are on the look-out for good presidential timber. It must be good, in order eventually to fit well in a cabinet.

* * *

The boys returning home are claiming an affectionate welcome from their families, and they are also claiming plenty of apple pie and chocolate cake.

* * *

The drys are satisfied, the wets are dissatisfied But how about the class of our citizens who are wetter than dry and dryer than wet—how do they take it?

* * *

The National Drill for the people at home these last two years has been simple.—Take — Pocketbook. Open — Pocketbook. Extract — Dollars. Pay — Taxes.

* * *

It evidently is the opinion of the Senate that James Monroe had better come back and look after his doctrine, which appears to be in some danger of collapse.

* * *

The High Cost of Living has neither been an invited nor a welcome visitor. When it makes its bow of farewell we shall all be ready to speed the parting guest.

* * *

Dr. Liebknecht's death causes us to reflect on the constant hazard attending the life of a revolutionist. The only thing which offsets it is the fact that such a life does not contain a dull moment.

* * *

In securing the "dry" camel the nation is making an interesting addition to its menagerie. It already possessed the Democratic donkey and the G. O. P. elephant, and now only needs a box of monkeys to complete its collection. Perhaps the I. W. W.'s will favor.

NATIONAL PROHIBITION

The necessary number of states have given assent to ratification of the federal prohibition amendment, and on the first of next June the manufacture and sale of liquor are forbidden by law. Social drinking will become an abandoned custom and arranging the appropriate service of wines for a formal dinner will become one of the lost arts.

The United States is the first great nation to make the experiment of nation-wide prohibition. If it proves satisfactory here other nations will doubtless adopt it.

It was decided that the best form of embodying this great change would be in the form of an amendment to the Constitution. This will ensure the most vigorous enforcement of the law, and will enable the effect of it upon the nation to be speedily observed.

The fact that so many of the states have consented to ratification is significant of a great change in public opinion. A few years ago it would have been thought absolutely impossible that the United States should go "bone dry" within the lifetime of the present generation. Even among those who heartily approved of the principle of prohibition, it would have seemed inconceivable that the nation should adopt it. Admitting that the use of alcohol was subject to great abuse, would the public "stand for" its withdrawal?

The fact that the nation entered into war and that prohibition was strictly enforced in the army gave a great impetus to its advance. The practicality of nation-wide prohibition has been more and more confirmed in the minds of people in general. The proof of this is the rapid response which the states have made in ratifying the amendment.

This legislation will undoubtedly banish altogether some existing evils and minimize others. It will be the plain duty of every citizen of the United States to conform to the law both in the letter and the spirit.

BOLSHEVISM VS. FOOD

On first consideration the desire of the Allies to raise $400,000,000 to supply food for starving countries of Europe is accepted at its face value as inspired by a laudable and natural wish to alleviate suffering.

But we are further informed that the ultimate object of this project is to prevent the spread of Bolshevism.

So we learn to supplement the old saying that "the way to a man's heart is thru his stomach" by a conviction that his political opinions are also determined by the condition of his stomach.

And why not? Your well-fed man is a contented man. Everything pertaining in any measure to him, from the fit of his shoes to the edicts of his government, is pleasing and satisfactory. Have not you yourself developed a more encouraging view of the municipal government and a larger tolerance for your opponent's religious doctrines after a good dinner?

On the other hand, the man unable to get enough food is an easy prey to pessimism, coveting and desiring other mens' goods, might-makes-right ideas, anarchy, and in a word, Bolshevism.

Let the United States make haste with its fund for the satisfaction of the hungry and thereby for the establishment of world peace.

What do we expect of our boys as we see them coming back after their months of army discipline—perhaps with one, two or three gold service stripes on the left sleeve?

It is hard to tell. Different natures react to similar environments so differently. But we should prophesy that the army training will render them more exact in every way, that they will think less of the material side of life and more of its real intent, and that they will feel strongly the responsibilities and duties of citizenship.

What will they expect of us, changed by these months of watching and waiting? They will expect us to be more earnest, wider sympathies and greater tolerance. If we have not gained these qualities our experience of war and grief and anxiety and sacrifice has done little for us.

A QUESTION OF WAGES

The American Federation of Labor has approved and made public the recent report of its committee on reconstruction. This report embodies many interesting and more or less practical recommendations.

It ends, however, with the following remarks on the question of unemployment:

"Unemployment is due to under-consumption. Under-consumption is caused by low or insufficient wages. Give the workers just wages and their consuming capacity is correspondingly increased. A man's ability to consume is controlled by the wages received. Just wages will create a market at home which will far surpass any market which may exist elsewhere and will lessen unemployment.

With all due respect to the many excellent suggestions which the report contains, we take exception to the logic of this statement. It reminds us of the small town where the inhabitants "earned a precarious living by taking in each other's washing."

"Just wages," in the diction of the Federation of Labor, naturally means high wages. But it means, or should mean, a proportionate scale of wages applied to all industries. If the scale of wages is increased in any industry, the cost and selling price of the product increases in the same proportion. Hence the man who has had his wages raised to "just" standard looks with amazement on the risen price of the articles which he wishes to buy. Nominally his wages are higher but the purchasing power of them goes no further than before.

We are pleased to see improvement in the condition of the worker, but we think in this one instance the Federation of Labor is reasoning in a circle. Such reasoning ends where it began and arrives nowhere.

PUBLICITY AND THE PEACE CONFERENCE

It is hard for the American people to understand the reserves of European diplomacy. In a country where every male citizen has some share in the government, the processes of governing bodies are public. The American nation knows, day by day, the discussions and decisions of Congress, and only in stress of great emergency is censorship of any kind resorted to. Naturally there was dissatisfaction at the idea that the peace conference, whose actions are of so much importance to us all, should sit behind closed doors. We approve President Wilson's remonstrances and trust that these will have their result and that the deliberations of the conference will have due publicity.

The farmers Institute is on the verge of being grabbed by a political federation that will probably annihilate the institute as it now stands.

It will transfer the power and benefits toward a political axle where politics will ally itself with whatever course its bosses see fit and govern the wheel.

We saw what politics could and would do for the farmer and consumer winters ago when fruits and vegetables lay wasting in the fields, when car loads of potatoes, apples and so on lay until they rotted on the very tracks to stall the market and bring up prices while people starved in the big cities in the poorer districts.

It was not the farmers fault. He sold what he could of his produce and in order to lift up prices it was not offered to the retailer but left to rot while thousands starved. The consumer was led to believe that there was a shortage in the markets and so on but the goods lay unused and wasting away that had enabled the man power that Uncle Sam had spared to the farmer while it was urgently needed in Europe to produce. That is what politics will do to the crops from our land.

The farmer should put his heel on the heads of these fakers and bush-beaters who now seek to control their affairs. If the farmer is wise he will never let politics rise above his own head and interests in any form.

A dollar is a man's best friend. It ought to be because man makes it. Yes, but oh how often does the dollar make the man.

The question whether the American girl or the French girl is more delightful continues to be a question which the American girl in the world and let it go at that!

* * *

The Government is requesting us to figure up our 1918 income, so that there will be no delay in turning in our income tax schedules at the proper time. It is also delicately hinting at the probability of a Victory Liberty Loan in the spring.

* * *

Conservation of dress material was urged upon women and they adopted narrow skirts. Now the railroads are finding fault because, owing to the narrow skirts, the trains are delayed an average of seventeen additional seconds at each stopping place. What is to be done? Will the women of America set in a breadth or must the timetables continue to suffer?

* * *

Some of us who are familiar with the autobiography of Theodore Roosevelt will now take the occasion to Reread it. The book gives an interesting account of his boyhood and early years, and in his own vigorous words tells us of his political life, his principles, and the policies to which he gave the best of his strength and his abilities. No one could describe and explain these things to us as he did, and the book presents to us the living reality of this fearless, manly, wonderful American citizen.

Among Our Churches

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST

Rev. W. L. Greene, Pastor.

Sabbath worship at 2:30 o'clock Sermon by the pastor.

Sabbath School following the church service.

Prayer Meeting Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock; leader, Miss Alice Clarke.

The Ordination Committee of the Western Association has called a council for the ordination of Edson Langworthy as deacon of this church, to meet Feb. 8th.

Services in this church Sunday evening, Feb. 2nd, at 7:30 o'clock. The public cordially invited. A timely and vital subject will be discussed.

PRESBYTERIAN

Hamilton B. Williams, Minister.

Sunday Morning, Feb. 2.—

Worship and sermon at 10:30. Every sermon is specially prepared in reference to the great world-event of to-day.

The Men's Class—

A good attendance and fine discussion last Sunday of after-war problems, promises well for the future.

Young Peoples' Meeting, 6:30—

Miss Mary Boyd will be the leader. The meetings are worth while.

Sunday School 11:45.—

Federated Meeting.

At the Seventh-day Baptist Church, at 7:30; Mr. Green, preacher.

Plan to Increase Work—

The Presbyterian Church is planning a great work thru its Boards. In a short time we hope to send the largest offering in the history of this church.

The New Social Order—

This will come when the churches equate belief in it and hope for it by the means of every sort which are necessary to make it a fact.

METHODIST

Rev. Chas. Collins, Pastor.

Sunday morning service at 10:30 The pastor will preach, and there will be attractive music including violin selections by Mr. W. G Lloyd. The pastor's theme will be of especial interest at this time. Let us look for a service of holy enthusiasm and inspiration. Service will be in main body of the church. Everybody welcome.

Sunday School 11:45.

Epworth League at 6:30.

Evening federated service in S. D Baptist Church, at 7:30. Mr. Green will preach and the evening hour should find us in the house of God. "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is."

Important announcements concerning organization, special prayer meetings and plans in connection with carrying out of the Centenary Drive in the local church will be made Sunday.

The pastor has to thank a group of his able "minute men" consisting of C. L Earley, C. A. Robinson, Harry Smith, H. Thorne and H. E. Robinson for so acceptably "carrying on" last Sunday's service in his absence. Such splendid helpers are an inspiration to any pastor. The pastor has also heard much praise of the fine anthem sung by the choir at that same service and wishes to express appreciation to them to their leader.

BAPTIST

Rev. George A. Orton, Pastor.

The W. W. G. girls had a very pleasant social meeting at the home of Mrs. John Dodge, last Monday evening.

Judging from the hearty invitation we received from the pastor and the male quartette from the Wellsville Baptist Church, all who attend the meeting of the Baptist Laymen at Wellsville Wednesday afternoon and evening Feb. 6th, will receive a hearty welcome. And any meeting where Dr. F. A. Agar and Dr. John M. Moore together with two women from the Women's Societies are to speak, will be full of interest is a known fact by all who know the speakers. All who can ought to plan to attend this meeting as it is seldom that we are privileged to hear those men.

Last Sunday the pastor said to the mothers: "Do not be afraid to bring the babies to church as I would prefer to have the babies in service and cry a little than for the mothers to stay away." So come to all of our services next Sunday; morning service, Bible School and evening meeting

Owing to a special program meeting in honor of the E. E. day our young people's meeting will open at 6:15 p. m. Last Sunday we had to bring in more chairs for the people and we hope that we will have to go to the class rooms for chairs again.

A Roll Call has been planned for Wednesday, Feb 5th, beginning at 2:30, and in the evening at 7 p. m. we are to have a social hour and at 8 p. m. the annual meeting of the church and society will be held. These meetings are for the good of all the church and we hope that all will try to be present at both sessions.

—U. S. Marine Paul Kinger, of Friendship, came home last week from Quantico, Va., for thirty day's furlough. He was with the Marines at Chateau Thierry. His company went into the engagement with 250 men of which only ten were left. They fought here for thirteen days, five of them without food or water. Later he was wounded and testifies to the care given him by the Red Cross—when a nurse sat by his cot every night and all night for nearly a month. Private Kinger enlisted May, 1917 for four years and after his furlough will return to Quantico.

METHODISTS ENTERTAIN SOLDIERS

The largest crowd ever dined in the church parlors was there last Wednesday evening to welcome our returned boys. The room was tastefully decorated. Roses and carnations graced the tables prepared for the soldier guests, and twenty khaki clad boys were seated together. A short program was opened by singing "America." Words of welcome were given by Rev. Chas. Collins followed by an original solo for the occasion by C. A. Robinson. Lieutenant Uriah Davis sang and cheerfully responded to the second encore.
