FARM AND HOME WEEK AT ALFRED

Large Attendance and Interesting Program Enjoyed. The Various Farmer's Organizations Hold Meeting in Conjunction

The Farm and Home Week program at Alfred the past week proved to be full of interest and all sessions had a large attendance. Other than the general meetings, the different county organizations held special sessions and had speakers present.

The Allegany County Ayrshire Club

Had a most unusual annual meeting and a large amount of important work accomplished. The officers for 1918 were re-elected for the ensuing year. The matters regarding Fair exhibits, field day, boys and girls club work, etc., were discussed. Mr. M. W. Davidson of Canisteo, offered as awards 1st and 2nd prizes for an essay on "The Ayrshire" to be written and read before the next meeting of the Club by any boy or girl under 15 years of age. Committees were appointed or various activities and in general the meeting proved to be very profitable to all in attendance.

The Allegany Holstein-Freisian Club

Held meeting in regular session and discussed club advertising, advertising by members, work of fair exhibits and Boy's and Girls' Club Work. Committee was appointed to make arrangements for securing heifer calves for boys and girls interested in raising a pure bred Holstein.

County Poultry Association

Prof James E. Rice from the Poultry Department, Cornell University was present for the meeting of the Poultry Association and gave three very interesting talks. Prof. Rice predicts that the future of the poultry industry will be good for one or two years yet, but does not advise beginners to build and equip at present prices of supplies and material. Officers for the ensuing year were elected and in order to extend the work thruout the county it was voted that a vice-chairman be elected in each township. The field for the Poultry Association is large and good work will be done by the organization the coming year. Poultrymen should back up the activities of the organization and derive the benefits which can be received from it.

Bee-Keepers Association

Bee-keepers organization was organized with Mr. Watson of Alfred, as chairman, Mr. H. R. Smith, of Houghton, as secretary. Many problems confronting different bee-keepers were discussed after the adoption of the Constitution and By-Laws which had previously been prepared by a special committee. Due to the prevalence of disease and other bee troubles and with the increase in interest by different ones keeping bees it was planned to hold some demonstrations and field meetings during the summer. Any person interested in matters pertaining to bee culture should get in touch with the secretary of the Farm Bureau Office.

PROPOSED AUTOMOBILE LEGISLATION

Hearing on all Changes in Law Will Be Held Tuesday, March 4th. Automobile Association Buffer for Motorists.

Albany, N. Y.—The most important meetings of the year affecting automobile owners and operators in New York State will take place at Albany, Tuesday, March 4th. The first meeting will be that of the directors from 121 local automobile clubs, composing the New York State Automobile Association to be held in the ball room of the Ten Eyck Hotel, for the purpose of discussing the large number of automobile bills which have been introduced and which will be given a hearing before the joint Senate and Assembly Committee at 2.00 o'clock in the afternoon.

There are a number of bills requiring automobile owners to give indemnity bonds or carry a like amount of insurance; license of all operators; increase in automobile fees; equipment of illuminated number plates; equipment of mirrors; truck and trailer plates to show tonnage; owners liable for damage for injuries to persons or property due to negligence of operator; magistrates and J. P.'s compelled to report convictions to Secretary of State and a large number of other bills of vital interest to the automobile owners of the state.

Recently a high state official attended a meeting of the Executive Committee of the New York State Automobile Association and requested that the Association favor an increase in automobile license fees in order to assist the administration in making up a large deficit in state road funds.

The Executive Committee of the New York State Automobile Association replied that they could not recommend to its clubs any increase in license fees on pleasure cars until all other users of the highways were called upon and required to pay their proportionate share of the cost of maintaining the state highways and until "All Fees Collected from Automobile Owners Were Applied in the Maintenance of Highways," as was originally agreed with the state legislature.

While it is the unanimous desire of law-abiding motorists, police magistrates and J. P's to license every automobile operator in the state and such a regulation would prove of the greatest value to the state troopers in the enforcement of the Motor Vehicle and Highway Laws, there is objection to such regulation upon the part of some members of the legislature and it is likely a fight will develop to force such legislation and place the responsibility squarely on the legislature.

It is practically impossible to enforce the law at present, in view of the fact that any one 18 years of age or older may operate an automobile without restraint.

Playing Politics

A group of farmers in an Eastern state had bought several large pieces of machinery. Each man owned one piece, but the plan was for each to use the others as needed. The plan had not been put into effect, when along came a local election, and feeling between the Republicans and Democrats was more bitter than it had ever been in the history of the country. The farmers could hardly bear to use the machine of a member of the other party. Finally, however, some of the more influential men in both parties got together and said that crops were too important to lose for any political reason, and the various machines needed in planting season were shared by farmers. Party bitterness, however, did not cease, but in fact increased. The Republican farmers felt that the Democrats had got more benefit out of the machines than they had, and by harvesting time most conversation was profane. As a result the big crops which had been planned with the idea of using the new machinery could not be reaped. The little farmers and the few larger owners who had not been in on the co-operative plan were both amused and delighted at the turn of affairs. Their crops were sold at enormous profits because there was so much less competition than in other years. The majority of the farmers lost what they had invested in the machinery as well as in the planting.

This very thing is about to happen on a perfectly huge scale. The Republicans and Democrats all over the states seem to be no more sensible about a much more serious matter. The parties postpone politics for the period of the war, which is very much like postponing politics until the crop is grown. The crop is grown now, victory has been reached, but the fruits of victory have not begun to be harvested. Yet the Republicans and Democrats have begun again their old party struggles. They will not co-operate even tho it means losing the fruits of victory. Peace is as hard to win as war, and peace is not won yet. For the sake of carrying on local struggles are the Republicans and Democrats have begun again their oly willing to lose the fruit for which they planted their armies in France? The crops of world organization, of permanent peace, and of a League of Nations are ready to be harvested. Shall they rot in the ground while the workers quarrel?

FRIENDSHIP BOYS INJURED WHEN TRAIN HITS WAGON

One Lad Walks a Mile After Help for His Brothers, Also Injured Himself.

Have you noticed that the young soldier just home from the army never sits down if he can help it? He argues with you towering up above you in a position of vantage, or he tells his adventures while striding up and down the room. It will be ruinous to the chair manufactories if this keeps on. But we now understand for the first time why it is called a "standing army."

Harold Emery, whose picture we present in this issue, enlisted in the National Guard of New York State, Co. K., April 5, 1916. In 1917 he was transferred to the U. S. National Guards and was in the Mexican border campaign In the spring of 1918 he was sent to Camp Wadsworth for training and sailed for France May 17, arriving at Brest May 30. After some preliminary training in France he was sent to the front, participating in the battles of Ypres and St. Quentin and was wounded in the latter battle Sept. 29th.

As proof of his having seen service he has four scars from bullet wounds and one from schrapnell. The latter scar is on the shin and resulted in a broken leg when hit.

From the time of being wounded up to Dec. 3rd he was in the hospital in England, sailing from there on the last named date for the U. S. A. The homeward voyage was made on the Leviathan, the largest passenger ship afloat, and arrived in New York harbor December 16.

He was honorably discharged January 21, 1919.

SUNDAY EVENING

At the federated Sunday evening service Andover people were given a rare treat. Pastor Williams patriotic service was more patriotic then he had even planned. A number of the returned soldiers surprised him by marching in in a body, in uniform and Rev. V. L. Eggleston, home on a furlough, was present and gave a very interesting account of his work as a Y. M. C. A. Secretary in France, after the patriotic sermon by Rev. H. B. Williams.

The meeting was one of most intense interest to all.

CONVENTION ASKS TO FREE IRELAND

While Other Small Nations are Getting Liberty, Why Not Make a Clean Sweep and Settle This 700 Year Scrap Right.

Philadelphia, Feb. 23.—A resolution presented by Cardinal Gibbons urging the Peace Conference to apply in Ireland the principle of national self-determination and a declaration of principles demanding that, if any League of Nations be created, all features which may infringe on the traditional American policy, including the Monroe Doctrine, shall be eliminated, were adopted unanimously today at the closing session of the convention of the Irish race in America.

The declaration says a state of war exists between England and Ireland "which in the interests of the peace of the world, the Peace Conference cannot ignore."

In support of the movement to bring freedom to Ireland, the convention pledged to raise within six months $1,000,000, but before Justice Daniel F. Cohalan of the New York Supreme Court, chairman of the convention, completed the calling of a list of states and cities, more than $1,250,000 had been pledged to the cause.

Delegates from many states, representing a large number of Irish organizations, crowded the Academy of Music when Cardinal Gibbons arose at the afternoon session and in a few words presented the resolution calling for the right of Ireland to select its term of Government. Applause swept the crowd as the Cardinal slowly read the paper, and the enthusiasm aroused by the prelate continued as numerous speakers seconded the resolution.

Among those who spoke in support of Ireland's freedom were the Rev. Norman Thomas, a Presbyterian minister, of New York; Archbishop Messmer, of Milwaukee, Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf of Philadelphia; the Rev. James G. Miller, a Protestant Episcopal clergyman of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Mary McWhorter of Chicago, head of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians; Henry Goddard Leach of New York; Thomas J. Mathews of Providence, R. I. National Secretary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, Mo.

Rabbi's Address is Cheered

The convention rose to its feet and cheered several minutes when Rabbi Krauskopf said that President Wilson's declaration that small nations shall have the right of self-government "will not die down, and not even President Wilson himself can recall it."

In introducing the resolution Cardinal Gibbons said:

"I hold in my hands a resolution on behalf of Ireland which
