WARNS AGAINST W. S. S. SCALPERS

Secretary of U. S. Treasury States That Government Securities Are Not Transferable.

Patriotic American citizens are warned by Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, against unscrupulous persons who offer through advertisement or otherwise to buy War Savings Stamps, thus causing holders of these popular securities to dispose of their for sums much below their actual value.

Mr. Glass reminds owners of W. S. S. that all they need do, if they find it necessary to obtain cash by disposing of their stamps, is to go to the post office, give ten days' notice, and then cash them. At the same time, Mr. Glass urges holders to keep their stamps until they mature, if possible.

War Savings Stamps belong only to the individual who first purchased them. They are not transferable. Persons who offer to buy stamps at less figures are violating the letter of the law in so doing. Those disposing of the stamps are not only losing money which rightfully belongs to them, but are aiding the unscrupulous to real profits.

RESOLVED

That peace will find us backing Uncle Sam as strongly as we backed him in war.

That between now and April we will lay every possible stone of the groundwork for the Victory Loan and leave no act undone which will tend to keep alive and if possible quicken the consciousness of the nation that Saving and Thrift are Peace essentials as well as War essentials.

That we will exert our every effort to stop trafficking in bonds of the first four loans and will keep our War Savings Stamps.

That we will carry out our War Savings pledges if that is unfulfilled and make and keep new Savings pledges this year.

That we will work tooth and nail from now till the last day of the April drive to oversubscribe the Victory Loan.

That we will FINISH our job.

Dansville may again have a creamery.

Bath is going to have a $50,000 postoffice.

The Lehigh will build a big dam at Burdette.

"OVER THERE" AND "OVER HERE"

A Brief History of the Headquarters Company, 68th Artillery C. A. C., Here and in the A. E. F.

(Concluded from last week)

The "Leicestershire" failed to break records for speed and after being aboard sixteen days, land was sighted. It was England and deck hands told us it was the quiet little city of Folkstone, well up into the English Channel, not far from Dover and the famous chalk cliffs.

Pulling into the Straits of Dover we found ourselves in the narrowest neck of the Channel, land being in sight on both sides, France of course being barely discernible in the distance. Strange to say we were ordered to ditch life preservers, the Straits being protected by mines and steel netting. As we struck the mouth of the Thames we were reminded of the bloody war by rumblings that the wind carried from the battle fields — they were reports from the gigantic guns that were taking part in the big push in Northern France, approximately fifty miles away.

The trip up the Thames was made mostly after dark and we were robbed of the opportunity of seeing the beautiful scenery along its banks.

It was nine o'clock Saturday night when we pulled into the Tilbury docks, just on the outskirts of London. The populace ashore made known our arrival by turning loose whistles, shrieking sirens, bells and every conceivable means of racket. Occasionally a powerful searchlight flashed across the skies in order t keep tab on Fritz's airmen.

After our reception had quieted down and all was peaceful once more, then came some real excitement. Air raid alarms were sounded and London was preparing for the arrival of Fritz's murderous visitors. Signals were flashed while dock employees ran for cover. Others dashed by with machine guns, hurriedly preparing for the raid. For a while we figured on seeing something but it was not long until the "all clear" signal was given. The German aviators had been driven back and it may be interesting to know that this was the last time the kaiser ever attempted to reach London via the air.

Bright and early the next morning we unloaded, marching to the station but a few hundred feet away. Here we had our first glimpse of English railroads and their dinky cars. Before noon we were on our way to Romsey, an American rest camp, a trip of about 125 miles. We arrived in a stream of rain and before night-fall had formed our own opinions about rest-camps. From that day to this we could never figure why they called them rest camps. The boys all put in a great Sunday evening.

Sticking around Romsey until Wednesday, we pulled out th morning on a refreshing ten-mile hike to South Hampton. It was a weary gang that landed just at noon in time to partake of refreshments handed out by American Red Cross ladies. After lunch we completed the hike to the docks, three or four miles farther on, the people giving us a great welcome as we filed thru the streets. Several of England's patriotic young ladies showed their appreciation by a gentle hug, much to the satisfaction of the Sammies.

It was the U. S. Steamer "Narragansett" that took us across the Channel that night. It was a treat to mingle with American sailors after associating with the English and their Hindoo assistants who manned the "Leicestershire" on the way across. After the dangerous trip of 104 miles to Havre, France, we unloaded the next morning and right there began to get in closer touch with war conditions. On the way

MARGUERITE SNOW

Marguerite Snow, the well known screen favorite, has the honor of being George M. Cohan's leading lady in his firt Artcraft photoplay, "Broadway Jones," in which she portrays the role of Josie Richards, the pretty stenographer at the Jones' gum factory, who shows the wild youth the right path. Born in Savannah, Ga., and educated in Denver, Colo., Miss Snow became a actress at an early age. Following a notable stage career she achieved wide prominence in motion pictures, her characterization of the Countess Zudora in "The Million Dollar Mystery" being well remembered. Miss Snow makes an ideal "Josie" in "Broadway Jones," which is about to be released by Artcraft Pictures and it is felt that her portrayal in this subject will prove one of the features of the photoplay.

Will be shown at the Auditorium, Wednesday evening, April 2nd.

ORGANIZE PAST GRANDS ASSOCIATION

Allegany-County Perfects a New Branch of Odd Fellowship, E. A. Gamble is the President. Steuben County May Join.

Nearly fifty Past Grands of the Allegany District, I. O. O. F., met at Wellsville Sunday afternoon, at Odd Fellow's Hall, and organized a Past Grand's Association, which will be known at present as the Past Grand's Association of Allegany County.

The meeting was characterized by good cheer and harmony thru out its entire session every one present seeming enthusiastic for the welfare of the fraternity in the county and the' success of its new branch.

The organization was perfected by authority conferred by action of the District Grand Committee of Allegany County at their annual session held in Wellsville last April, when they appointed a committee composed of Past Grands H. W. Evans, of Cuba, E. A. Gamble of Alfred, and J. Harvey Backus, of Andover, to take into consideration the possibility of such an association and organize the same if in their judgment it would be for the interest of the fraternity so to do.

Last fall a hearing was held at Whitesville before the committee and the whole matter was discussed by a good representation of Allegany County Past Grands. It was decided by the committee to organize.

The meeting at Wellsville Sunday afternoon was in response to the invitation sent out by the committee to meet for organization. Forty-six Past Grands enrolled as members, coming from seven lodges in the county. By-laws for the association were adopted and the following officers chosen to guide the new organization thru the first term:

President, E. A. Gamble, of Alfred

Vice President, J. F. Cure, of Bolivar

Secretary, A. E. Champlin, of Alfred

Treasurer, U. A. Wilcox, of Wellsville

A Board of Directors of five members were named to act with the officers of the association as an Executive Committee.

A committee was appointed to invite the Past Grands of Steuben County to join the association, in which event the name of the association would undoubtedly be changed to the Southern Tier Association instead of the Allegany County Association."

A committee was also appointed to arrange a ritual for the association which will report at the next meeting.

Wellsville was chosen as a permanent meeting place. The association will hold four regular meetings a year. The next one will be on June 8, 1919, at 2:30 p. m.

The Third French Republic

By Rev. V. L. Eggleston

Part II.

This article is the second in the series on The Third French Republic.

The spirit of this opposition was once well expressed to me in Paris by a French lady of whom I asked which party she favored. She replied: "Any party that will destroy this wretched republic." Up to a very recent time three distinct royalist parties have been plotting against the present government and have always been ready to combine against their common enemy, but this opposition is dying out, even the Catholic party, which has always been royalistic, abandoning its opposition and accepting the republic as a finality.

III.

The first president, and by far the most capable man of the new republic (excluding President Poincare) was M. Thiers—thru whose efforts the conditions of peace with Germany were made more favorable than at first stipulated. France had to pay five thousand billion francs or one billion dollars to Germany as a war indemnity and certain portions of French territory were to be occupied by German troops until the money was paid. Thiers succeeded in having this occupation terminated two years earlier than at first stipulated and a portion of the territory ceded to Germany (Alsac and Lorrainee) was recovered. But in 1873, being defeated by a union of several factions against his administration Thiers was compelled to resign the presidency.

The next president was Marshall Mac Mahon, chosen in 1875 for seven years, this being the constitutional term of the office, but he was compelled by a combination of factions against him to resign a year before the expiration of his term, being succeeded in 1879 by M. Jules Grevy, who served the full term of seven years, and was re-elected, but was compelled to resign a year later, on account of the scandal arising from the dishonest transactions of his son-in-law, M. Wilson, whom he endeavored to shield. To Grevy succeeded M. S. Carnot who was assasinated in the city of Lyons on the 24th of June, 1894.

The next president of the republic was M. Casimre-Perier, who resigned at the end of six months and was succeeded on the 17th of January by M. Felix Faure.

The government of France, under the third republic, very closely resembles the English monarchy, where a parliament consisting of the lords and commons corresponds to the French senate and chamber of deputies. England as in France the ministry resigns when it no longer has a working majority in Parliament.

When France has changed from monarchy to republic or vice versa, the administration has gone on with no material change monarchy differs from a constitutional republic less than we Americans are apt to think. In each case the people rule. The difference is chiefly in name.

In France the Parliament rules, even to the election of the president, which is by a vote of the two houses combined and this election is not held in Paris but at the ancient palace at Versailles.

The French, when once aroused to revolutionary madness are incredibly fierce and cruel, but under ordinary circumstances an election is as quiet as to be scarcely observed. Elections take place always on Sunday and the voting places are back from the street, within some enclosed court, and no crowds are permitted to gather and no processions are held. All the appeals to the people are in print. The walls of the city are profusely plaarded with the announcements and addresses of candidates, but this is all, and the morning after the election all these placards are carefully removed, for no such bills are permitted on the walls, except just before the elections. The elections are without the least excitement or noise, and the victories are not celebrated by any demonstrations upon the streets. It is only when maddened by a great revolution that the polite Frenchman is transformed into a tiger. The greatest evil in French politics is the multiplicity of parties which sometimes blocks all business. Unless several parties can unite upon a measure no bill can pass, for it is rare that any party has an absolute majority over all. These are royalistists of several kinds, with republicans, socialists and anarchists of vrajous shades.

COUNTY LEAGUE TO ENFORCE PEACE

A meeting of the Allegany County Committee of the League to Enforce Peace was held in the surrogate's office, Belmont, March 21st.

President B. C. Davis, of Alfred University, was unanimously chosen chairman. Mrs. R. B. Burrows, of Andover, was elected secretary.

Following is a list of the members of the committee, appointed by the state chairman.

Booth C. Davis, Alfred
J. Harvey Backus, Andover
Hon. Elisa Reynolds, Belmont
Hon Charles H. Brown, Belmont
Frank R. Utter, Friendship
Mrs. Roxanna Burrows, Andover
Dr. J. Nelson Norwood, Alfred

J. Harvey Backus, of Andover, was made director of newspaper publicity for the county. The matter of director of speakers was left with the chairman.

The meeting adjourned subject to the call of the president.

EASTERN STAR ENTERTAIN

The Eastern Star entertained the Wellsville Chapter Monday evening to a 6 o'clock dinner. The regular work was exemplified and Right Worthy District Deputy Grand Matron, Mrs. Mayme Darcey, of Wellsville, gave a very interesting talk on the work. Several other speeches were made by visiting members. Over 200 were present.

MEMORIAL DAY FOR STATE DEAD

Governor Smith has designated Sunday, April 27, 1919 for the purpose of holding memorial services by the military forces in honor of the men and women from this state who joined the federal forces during the world war and who died in that service for the cause of liberty and justice.

The action was made at the request of a number of organization commanders of the New York Guard, and is issued as an order to regimental and separate units of the state by Adjutant-General Charles W. Berry.

VILLAGE BOARD ORGANIZE

The Board of Trustees of the Village of Andover met as per law for organization Monday evening last. Owing to the fact that Trustee E. C. Langworthy was ill and unable to attend the meeting the only business attempted was the appointment of J. Harvey Backus for Village Clerk, and Attorney C. L. Earley as Village Attorney, and choosing the second Wednesday evening of each month for regular meetings.

If you have the business chance to offer and will condense your story into a classified ad, you'll find the backing you require.

Tid Bits from Our School

School Doings

Regents returns are in. Some are happy while some are sad.

Government seeds have been received by Prin. Clark and are being distributed among the students for "war gardens."

Doughnuts are the rage now in the High School.

A squad of the Boy Scouts has been formed to drill with the Cadet Corps. By doing this platoon drill can be used.

Miss Winifred Prechtl of the state department, conducted the physical training conference at the Andover High School, Friday. Teachers of Mr. Ward's supervisory district attended.

Kappa Zeta meeting was held at Mary Boyd's Tuesday evening. About fifteen members were present and a good time was enjoyed by all.

Personals

Miss Elizabeth Davis of Alfred, visited the school Monday.

Miss Florence Adams accompanied Louise Earley to school Wednesday.

Athletics

A series of basket-ball games has been started between the Cadet Corps, Town and Cutlery Teams. Two of the best games ever witnessed on the Andover court have been played. The first game was won by the Cadet Corps from the Cutlery with a score of 22 to 20. The second was played between the Town Team and the Cadets, resulting in a victory for the Town Team, the final score being 18 to 11.

The people of the town are surely missing something by not attending. If they want to see some good teams play they had better wake up and come before the season is ended.

The Andover High School Basket Ball Team did very well this year. This was their first year and they have been playing experienced teams, yet out of ten games they have won five.

SEED SPECIAL WILL STOP HERE

Demonstration Train, With Seed Experts and Materials Will Pass Thru Allegany County Monday and Tuesday Next.

The Farm Bureau manager, Ralph Q. Smith announces that a "Better Seeds Special" will be run into Allegany County over the Erie Railroad on Monday and Tuesday next week.

There are two cars on the train, one filled with seeds and demonstrating material and another car to be used for lecturing purposes.

Stops will be made in Allegany County as follows:

Monday morning, March 31st, in Wellsville, at Erie Station, from 9:08 a. m. until 2:08 p. m.

Monday afternoon, after 2.30 at Alfred Station.

Monday evening at Andover.

Tuesday morning, April 1st, at Cuba.

Tuesday afternoon after 2 o'clock at Belmont.

At each of these stops Dr. Charles Chupp, of the State Department of Plant Pathology, will give a talk on "Diseases of Crops, Methods of Eradicating and Control."

A representative of the Department of Farm Crops will also be present and talk on the subject of "Good Seeds and Sources of Same."

These will be important demonstrations and farmers can do no better than to devote a few hours to a visit to the exhibition and hear the talks of seeds specialists sent out by the Government.

EDWARD KINNEY

After an illness extending over many months, Edward Kinney died at his home on Baker Street, Sunday morning, March 23, aged 53 yrs. Mr. Kinney was the first R. F. D. carrier in Andover. When route one was organized nearly twenty years ago he succeeded in passing the examination and received the appointment. He has held that position since with the exception of the months he has been ill.

Besides being a most efficient mail carrier Mr. Kinney has been a Justice of the Peace for the Town of Andover for over twenty years.

Mr. Kinney was a member of the Knights of Columbus of Wellsville and the Elks of Hornell.

Deceased had been in a helpless condition for nearly a year and the last seven months has been cared for by his brother, W. H. Kinney, who came from his home in Rochester for that purpose.

Funeral services were conducted at Blessed Sacrmaent Church Wednesday morning, Rev. J. J. Sheehy officiating.

The remains were taken to Bath for interment.
