Soon it will be no longer the "high cost of living." It will be the agony of longing.

* * *

This continual reading of the high cost of living is becoming about as painful as paying the bills.

* * *

It is easier to catch a chick than a full grown roaster. Bolshevism should be skotched in its inepiency.

* * *

Te profiteer swats the consumer and he takes it out on the fly. Some comparison, but true—distressingly true.

* * *

Politics is politics and never will be anything but politics until we acquire the habit of filling our offices with some one besides politicians

No, the advance in the cost has not affected the demand for automobiles. It is still possible to mortgage a home.

* * *

Don't let the shrinkage of the dollar prevent you paying up that debt you owe. The other fellow will undoubtedly take it at par.

* * *

We might, however, circumvent the $30 shoes by staving winter off a year or two. Our happiest days were when we toddled around in our bare feet.

* * *

Government by the majority is rapidly approaching the point of domination by the minority. It is time for thinking men to do something besides dream.

* * *

In the good old days we used t say that "money comes easy and goes easier." But now it takes a log chain to drag it in and a shoostring to jerk it out again.

* * *

Must be that the high cost of living has invaded the sacred precincts of our National Capitol. Else why this sudden and terrible blaze of protest from Washington.

* * *

We read much in the press about America saving Europe and feeding the world. But can you recall a single instance in which the rest of the world came to aid America.

* * *

In time, of course, we will be able to jump out of bed in the morning, hop into our aircraft, shoot over to London and say, "Good morning, King!" and then skip back home in time for breakfast. Yep, moving some, these dull days.

THE SILVER TONGUE

A threat is generally a warning, and the threatened party gets ready to resist. Between 1894 and 1914—twenty years the Kaiser talked everlastingly on public occasions about his army and what he could do with it. Finally, the world came to believe him and look at him now.

Ed. Carson announces what he will do to America. Messrs. Dunne and Ryan announce what they will do to England. But Japan never threatens to do anything to anybody. Least of all to China. Japan has always talked about being kind to China. She is talking that way now.

And Japan is about the only world power at present that is not wearing a black eye. Japan is the only nation that professes a consistent affecion for everybody—and gets more, without paying for it than anybody else.

Most of us are or claim to be Christions, and talk rough, and get bloody noses. Japan is a heathen, talks kindly and washes in.

Even when you want to be dishonest you may as well talk kindly. It may save you a black eye, even if you don't want to pick a pocket. You may as well act like a Christian, since you say you are one.

Politeness pays, even when you are a heathen, ask Japan—she knows.

Just to keep on the maw, why can't we scare up a presidential bee or tar in this bug? It will be a free race for all with modesty toddling along several laps to the rear.

IN PLAYTIME

Most children in Andover, who are about the age of six years have gained quest of their impressions in the last four years. And the majority of those impressions came during the last two years.

The same is true of European children. When French children play, they pretend that they are shooting spies, digging trenches or working machine guns. Their sense impressions have all been gained from what they have observed in the past four years

It has not been a particularly healthy environment for children to form their ideas in. It is not particularly healthy now. Many of the daily occurences in France are not of the kind that we would want our growing children to witness. We would not select these scenes and sounds as a fertile breeding ground for the instincts which we want our children to cultivate. It has been a land of blood and tears—of torture and rapine. It is today a land of poverty and smoldering hatreds—of social and industrial unrest.

Here is a fairly sound reason—if we can think of no other—for preserving in this country such conditions as will not twist the pliable minds of the rising generation the wrong way. There is tendency just now for everybody to declare that he is being robbed by somebody else—or everybody else. And no doubt there are many who have real grievances. But in a sane country few of these grievances are incapable of ordinary adjustments. Settlements by violence automatically creates tyranny—and that is what the Constitution of this country was formed to prevent.

Bookkeepers will show what murderers cannot demonstrate—what the gross profits of all enterprises are—what the net profits—how much revenue can be devoted to wages and still leave enough to provide against mercial hazards, to offset losses, to expand into new fields. It is a matter of arithmetic—not assassination.

LOCAL CUSTOMS

A certain American citizen, 33 years of age got into the world war without waiting to be drafted. He served three years with the Canadian army in France, was wounded and was also badly gassed, like many who were there in the early days before the masks were dependable.

He was lately discharged, and went to visit relatives in a town in the northern states. while passing thrh the central part of the city he was attacked by a gang of toughs, hammered into unconsciousness and left on the sidewalk an inert heap. He was afterwards picked up by a policeman and taken to the station house, where his injuries were treated.

On returning to consciousness he expressed a natural surprise at the conduct of his assailants. He was wearing his uniform at the time—also his wound stripes and thot that they would be at least a guarantee of safety. He had fought to protect his fellow countrymen for three years, and had started a considerable time before they had thot of participating. So he had expected to be safe on reaching America.

Perhaps he would have been safe in Andover, but this did not happen here. It happened in Chicago, and the wounded soldier was a colored man. The thugs who committed the outrage disproved of his complexion, and complexion has of late been a frequent pretext for murder in that enlightened town.

It isn't very long since Chicago was telling East St. Louis what a shocking, riotous place that city was. And lately took the same attitude toward Washington Chicago has told a good many places what they ought to do and be. And perhaps a lot of places are not what they should become. But they have one redeeming feature. They are not like Chicago.

Andover, don't try to be a metropolis, Washington is one and Chicago is another. It is hard to pick out the ideal that we should copy; there are not many ideal cities. But at any event we can find places to classify as awful warning. We do at least, know what to avoid.

Politeness costs nothing; it is worth much. Take a stroll along one of our streets and you will meet certain people who never fail of a courteous greeting. As you pass them by there comes in your mind a feeling of wholesome friendliness and brotherly love. You instinctively extend them the courtesy of a kind thot and a friendly greeting in return. The two of you are adding yet another ray of sunshine to the community life, and many little rays makes a most pleasing whole. Try it yourself uninterruptedly for a week—and then analize your feelings. You will be surprised at the result.

—Six cents seems to be the amount of damage a libelous newspaper article draws lately, Henry Ford collected that stupendous sum from the Chicago Tribune, for calling him an Anarchist. Even the Judge in charging the jury told them the article was a libel. It must be the jury felt assured that the Tribune was not believed and thus did no damage, or that being an Anarchist was not in itself a detriment to one's standing.

* * *

—The Public Service Commission has ordered the Village of Cuba to turn out all its gas lights every morning and light them every night. This entails an expense several times greater than the cost of the gas so the Patriot says that a special election will undoubtedly be held to vote on electric lights thruout the entire village. At present the village is lighted with gas save a few ornamental electric lights on Main Street.

VISIT ALFRED

Local Chapter O. E. S. Confer Degree for Sister Chapter

By invitation the order of Eastern Star went to Alfred Wednesday night and initiated five lady candidates and two gentlemen int. Kanacadea Chapter. The 32nd. District Grand Officers were present. After the work Anna W. McArthur Chapter also exemplified the floral degree and drill.

Alfred O. E. S. has just been organized but from the enthusiasm shown, and proficient officers, it has every promise of a banner chapter in the future.

Refreshments were served and a general good time enjoyed by all.

MAE MARSH IS STAR OF "SPOTLIGHT SADIE"

Mae Marsh comes to Andover Theater, Saturday evening, in what is said to be without question the best Goldwyn Picture in which she has yet starred. It is "Spotlight Sadie" and presents the appealing star in precisely the sort of role she is best equipped to play.

She is Sadie Sullivan, described as "a whimsical product of Old Erin." Thatched roofs, jaunting cars, simple attire and all the features of life in Ireland are beautifully pictured early in the story. Later the peasant girl comes to New York and in time embarkes on a threatrical career, becoming, by reason of her shyness and aloofness, "the saintly showgirl" in a dashing musical comedy.

AFTER OIL IN TEXAS

Holders of Big Texas Leases Organize To Test Territory

From the Belmont Dispatch

A large oil company with a personnel of local men for its officers has recently been organized in Belmont with an authorized capitalization of one million dollars.

The company is called The Empire Texas Oil Company and is organized under the common law or declaration of trust. Its officers and organizers are as follows: John C. Henry, president and manager; Roy Clark, vice president; Ralph Cornwell of Wellsville, second vice president Byron Gray, treasurer and Asher M. Clark, secretary. Addison Henry is also one of the organizers.

Mr. Henry, president of the company gives the Dispatch the following infotmation:

The company has under lease 774 acres of land in five parcels in the several pools of Texas, one in particular being in the famous Burke-Burnett district, the richest oil field ever discovered. This land was recently purchased by Mr. Henry at a fancy price, while in Texas and is of immense value. This land is surrounded by five proven shallow "pays"

The company has started an advertising campaign, carrying city dailies for the purpose of selling stock for the development of stock sale has been very successful and their stockholders extend over twenty different states.

Knowing what's advertised, you know how to shorten the time and lessen the expense of your shopping trip.
