MARINE NEWSPAPERS.—Every edition of a newspaper contains from five to twenty thousand distinct pieces of metal, according to the size of the paper and type. The displacement of a single dot makes an error. It is a wonder that errors occur. In large professional proof readers are kept, whose practiced eyes, passing over every line of proof, detect most of the errors, a "key" kept for that purpose, at the same time reading the copy aloud. Still, mistakes are frequently found, after coming through such hands, and probably no newspaper or book was ever published without errors, that might be detected by a mere novice. In country offices, the editor has to be his own foreman, job printer, book keeper, and almost everything else, and if the same care had to be expended that is devoted to independent publishers on books, the country newspaper could not be published at all, because of its expense.—Ed.

The Day's Farmer for August.—The August number of this charming monthly is before us, with a beautiful colored page from Sally's pen, and the "Olden Days" of the month. The "Olden Days" is a most interesting and valuable sketch, and is well worth reading. It is a most interesting and valuable sketch, and is well worth reading.
