Football

Many people attended the football game Thursday, Nov. 1, between the Wellsville Reserves and the Andover High School football teams. Both teams were in good form and were equally matched. At the end of the first quarter neither side had scored. However, Wellsville made two points by a safety in the second quarter. The most exciting play of the game was made by Hubertus of Wellsville, when he made a touchdown two minutes before the game ended. The score at the end of the game was 8-0 in Wellsville's favor.

Altho this was not a victory for Andover, the team deserves credit for the splendid way they have been holding their opponents.

TID BITS

Marion Hoffman of Bolivar visited the High School, Wednesday and Thursday of last week.

Helen Smith of Hornell visited school on Tuesday this week.

Many distinguished Americans of the Colonial period came to life last week when the American History Class acted out the parts taken by the framers of the Constitution. George Washington ably acted as chairman of the convention. Benjamin Franklin was present and "poured oil over the troubled waters."

Edmund Randolph from Virginia laid his plan of government before the session. Patterson of New Jersey also presented a plan. However, both were opposed by the fiery orator, Alexander Hamilton. The history now believe they are well acquainted with the "Makers of Our Constitution."

In chemistry one learns that hydrogen is not found near the earth because it is so light. Maybe this solves the problem why some people hold (?) their heads so high in the air.

Peace and Good Will Among Men

Romans 12:1-2, 9-21

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

ARMISTICE DAY anniversary is the time for calling attention to world peace that shall never be broken by the horrors of war. The miseries of the recent holocaust makes people more fearful than ever of adding the next one. The sentiment against war is increasing all over the earth. This feeling was very definitely expressed on August 27 when the "General Pact for the Renunciation of War," as the Kellogg multilateral treaty is called, was signed at Paris by representatives of 15 nations. Within a week a total of 63 countries were for the treaty, thus placing more than [illegible] of the world [illegible] the side of peace [illegible] than with which to make international life endurable. [illegible] which [illegible] than the [illegible] book [illegible]

The two clearly marked sections of the first eleven chapters deal with teachings of doctrinal matters. Following these instructions there is a marked change with "therefore" of 12th, and the remainder of the book is rich with the practical that must follow the statement of principles. This epistle was dictated in Corinth to the brethren who were in Rome, but under the guidance of the Holy Spirit is also intended for those in every age and country.

Because Jehovah has been so gracious in his bestowal of countless mercies we are commanded to give ourselves without any reservation to Him that we may thus in turn be helpful to the citizenry of the whole earth. Since the mind controls matter the heart of the method is reached when we are told that we can be transformed only by the "renewing of your mind." When we think and will differently we will act accordingly. The real objective is to "prove what is the good and acceptable and perfect will of God." Not what we may think, but what He desires.

The verses 3-8 are omitted in the lesson text; they are a part of the study. Individuals and nations too often give excessive thought to themselves. There are always others who are making great progress in doing really worth while things. The traveler may boast about "my country" when he starts on a long voyage, but as he learns about places in other lands while on the voyage he requires greater respect for those of different nations and begins to think in world terms.

"LOVE" is the motive (verse 9) that furnishes different glasses with which to look at our fellow nationals. Read each word and phrase with care. There is profound instruction in every verse. When we are "tenderly affectioned" we will hold the other in "honor" and will "abhor that which is evil" and "cleave to that which is good" in dealing with mankind everywhere, at home as well as abroad. Then the alphabetical order which was used in signing that treaty on August 27 may be laid aside in order to show special honor to a small sized, but well-deserving country.

The very opposite of selfishness and self interest is implied in such words as "not slothful; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord." Laziness keeps us from "going over," which is the meaning of "fervent."

A USEFUL RELATION

Two elderly hardware men met each other after an absence of several years. During the course of conversation one of them said: "By the way, I believe I have a grandson who works in your store."

"That's right," said the other casually. "He went to your funeral last month when the Giants played here."

THE AWFUL TRUTH

Two faces were close together, the hardware salesman's, grim and tense; the other face was small and white, with two slender hands pressed tightly against it. It was those frail hands that riveted the man's horrified gaze.

"Heavens!" he said, still staring; and his voice was tragic, for that other face was the face of his watch and those small hands told him that he had missed the last train home.
