JONES LAW VOTE DRYS STRENGTH

Drys' Big Majority Makes It Utterly Impossible for Congress to Submit Repeal of 18th Amendment.

Mark Sullivan, the well-known Washington newspaper correspondent, had an interesting article the other day on the passage by the last Congress in its closing hours this spring of the Jones law, the most drastic dry measure enacted by any Congress since the Volstead law.

Mr. Sullivan analyzes the vote by which the Jones law passed the House, 284 to 90, with 54 not voting. The reason so many did not vote was due to the flurry in the closing moments of the session. Mr. Sullivan points out that one would conclude prohibition is all wrong did he read the newspapers of the East, and that it is all right according to the papers of the West and South. In a measure this sentiment in the different sections is borne out by the vote in Congress on the Jones law. Concerning the sentiment on prohibition in the West, as shown by the vote in Congress on the Jones law, Mr. Sullivan says:

Different Points of View

The difference between the prevailing wet press of the Atlantic seaboard and the prevailing dry press of the West and South, is a difference of fundamental point of view. The south and west takes prohibition for granted. The Atlantic seaboard opposes it bitterly. The South and West treat prohibition calmly; the Atlantic seaboard treats it excitedly.

In this there is a law of human nature. It is the outsider, the protester, the opposer of what is, that becomes excited. When prohibition did not exist, when the drys were trying to bring prohibition about—they were then the fanatics, while the wets were calm. Today the case is largely reversed. Now it is in the wet ranks that most of the spirit of fanaticism is to be found. The proof of this distinction can be seen not only in the press but in the debates in Congress. Wherever the argument rages it is the wets, more than the drys, who make the most extreme statements, and show the most passion.

More Were Dry

Mr. Sullivan says that actually the dry vote in the House of Representatives on the Jones act did not fully reflect the dry sentiment of Congress, as many of those who did not vote were known to be favorable to the Jones bill. The vote in the Senate on the Jones law is omitted since two Senators can cast the vote of a whole state in that body, and their votes are less representative than the votes of the members of the lower House.

Also, in the picture as presented by Mr. Sullivan, no account is taken of members who were recorded as not voting. The outstanding significant fact is that there were 26 states in which all the Congressmen who voted, voted dry, and in which no Congressman voted wet. Those wholly dry states are:

Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia.

Can Not Repeal

As Mr. Sullivan says, these wholly dry 26 states show the hopelessness of taking the Eighteenth Amendment out of the Constitution. So long as 13 states want the Eighteenth Amendment, it will remain.

Turning to the accompanying map which was a part of Mr. Sullivan's article, it will be seen that in only two states—Arizona and Connecticut, no Congressman voted dry. That comparison, 26 states wholly dry against two states wholly wet, shows the complete picture. There are states which really belong in the dry column but are prevented from being in that list only because only one Congressman voted wet. For example, in Texas one Congressman was wet out of 14 voting. In Minnesota one Congressman was wet out of nine voting, in Colorado one was wet out of four voting, and in Virginia two Congressman voted wet out of nine voting. Mr. Sullivan sums up by incorporating in his article the following list in which more Congressmen voted dry than wet:

California, 5 to 3.
Colorado, 3 to 1.
Illinois, 18 to 5.
Kentucky, 10 to 1.
Massachusetts, 8 to 6.
Michigan, 10 to 2.
Minnesota, 8 to 1.
Missouri, 10 to 4.
Ohio, 14 to 3.
Pennsylvania, 18 to 10.
Texas, 18 to 1.
Virginia, 7 to 2.

The following are states in which the voting was divided and in which more Congressmen voted wet than dry:

Louisiana, 5 to 3.
Maryland, 4 to 2.
New York, 24 to 14.
Rhode Island, 2 to 1.
Wisconsin, 5 to 4.

The following are state in which the voting was equally divided:

New Hampshire, 1 to 1.

The summary of all this is that two states voted wholly wet and five states voted more wet than dry.

On the other side, 26 states voted wholly dry and 12 states voted more dry than wet.

In two states the voting was equally divided.

The difference between the keeping quality of whey butter and that of regular butter is insignificant.

Dr. Kline at County Laboratory

Dr. Edmund E. Kline, formerly a director of the Jefferson County Laboratory at Alabama, has been appointed to the position in Allegany county, made vacant by the recent resignation of Dr. F. A. Hemsath. Dr. Kline, who is also in charge of Cattaragus County is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College, with degrees from the University of Pennsylvania and Michigan.

TWO-DAY FORESTRY TOUR, BUREAU PLAN

Greatest Forestry Event Ever Held in Western New York. Visit to City of Rochester.

Plans are now under way by the County Farm Bureau of Western New York for a two-day forestry tour for June 14th and 15th, 1929. The tour is scheduled to start at 10 a. m., on Friday, at Batavia and will wind up Saturday afternoon at Letchworth Park. The itinerary according to N. E. Thompson, manager of the Allegany County Farm Bureau, is being planned to provide an opportunity to see forest plantations of all ages up to 20 years of practically every kind of forest tree species that can be grown in Western New York.

It is likely that one of the stops of this tour, the greatest forestry event ever held in Western New York, will include a visit to see the 1,200 acres of forest plantations of the City of Rochester on Hemlock and Canadice Lakes in Livingston county. Letchworth Park is also an outstanding demonstration of what may be accomplished thru reforestation. Nowhere else in the state is to be found such a wide variety of species set out in forest plantations.

Arrangements are being made by the Allegany County Farm Bureau to conduct a large group of farmers and other interested people on this tour.

BAPTIST CHURCH 100 YEARS OLD

County Baptist Association Will Help Celebrate Event by Holding Session Here June 5-6.

In recognition of the centennial of the organization of the First Baptist Church of Andover, the Allegany County Baptist Association is to be held in Andover, June 5th and 6th, 1929.

The First Baptist church of Andover was organized Dec. 31, 1829. Of the constituent members—of whom there is said to have been 12, only three names are obtainable—those of Phillip Wardner, Ambrose Coats and Samuel Rush.

Prior to the erection of the present house of worship, which was dedicated Nov. 30, 1853, religious services were held in school houses and in the Congregational church. During the pastorate of Rev. Charles H. Harrington the building was rearranged on the interior and modernized.

The church now has a membership of around 175.

The Baptist church edifice would cost six or seven thousand dollars to build and the parsonage adjoining the church $300.

Of the pastors in charge up to date (in many instances only the family name is obtainable) we have ascertained the following:

Revs. Bemis, Randall, Haskins, Chadwick, Conwell, Colby, Clarke, Call, Newland, E. F. Crane, R. A. Washburn, Wilson, Shotwell, F. F. Sherer, P. M. McLead, J. J. White, Smith, Taylor, Crum, Charles Smith, S. Childs, L. C. Davis, Wayne Brewster, V. L. Eggleston, Charles H. Harrington, A. L. Boynton, W. H. Randall, A. S. Wahl, N. M. Langenecker, G. A. Orton, D. FEDERAL LEVY ON RADIO SETS

Small Tax on Receiving Sets Is Called Need.—Senator Brookhart Objects to Advertising.

Washington.—A suggestion that a small tax be levied on receiving sets to bear the radiocasting costs was made by Smith W. Brookhart (R.), Senator from Iowa, before the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission which is considering a bill to group radio, telegraph, telephone and cable communication under one governmental body. Senator Brookhart also inquired of Louis G. Caldwell, former general counsel of the Radio Commission, who appeared as a witness, whether there was "very reason why the Government could not take over the whole broadcasting business."

"No," the witness answered.

The questions of censorship of advertising over the air also arose when Senator Couzens, author of the bill referred to "the propriety" of advertising recently sent out by a cigarette manufacturer.

"Should radiocasters be permitted to encourage the use of cigarettes in the home?" he asked.

"Those questions," Mr. Caldwell answered, "will be decided by the public. In reviewing licenses for radiocasting, the commission has the discretion of considering past performance of the stations and for the present at least, that seems to be a sufficient safeguard."

Mr. Caldwell added that it costs the larger stations from $200,000 to $400,000 annually to operate and that the receiver pays nothing. "The expense," he said, "must be borne by revenue from advertising."

"The only excuse, then, for advertising," said Key Pittman (D.), Senator from Nevada, "is the revenue."

Senator Pittman suggested there are other "things of so much greater educational value that the public probably will find a way to obtain them in place of advertising."

C. C. Dill (D.), Senator from Washington, expressed the opinion that the taxing proposal would "have to travel a long road" before it could be enacted into law.

Improving Residence

Mr. and Mrs. Arling Baker are improving their residence on Center street by a two story addition at the back, which will include a modern kitchen, bedrooms and sleeping porch. This will furnish them a most spacious and up-to-date home.

Maple Syrup Crop

Seventy-five thousand pounds of maple syrup was shipped this spring from Whitesville by the Cary Maple Syrup Co., of Vermont. This included what the firm purchased from Andover. The season this year was short and the sweets not up to usual standard because of the unfavorable weather conditions. The company left about $7,000 in money with the farmers in return.

SENATE PASSES FARM AID BILL

House is Decidedly Hostile to Debenture Plan. Their Refusal Kills All Farm Aid.

Washington, May 14.—A farm relief bill unacceptable to President Hoover because it contains the export debenture plan was passed today by the Senate, 54 to 33, after a full month's labor.

The greatest uncertainty surrounds its final enactment because of the sharp difference between the Senate and the House on the debenture action. The President early in the session strongly objected to that method of farm relief.

The Senate measure will be messaged tomorrow to the House where administration leaders are inclined to refuse the bill. They base this on contentions that the Senate had no right to initiate the debenture proposal on the theory that it is revenue legislation and therefore constitutionally must originate in the House. Strong opposition to this opinion was expressed today in the Senate and administration leaders have been working to prevent a deadlock.

Old Combination

The Farm Bill was passed in the Senate largely by the same combination of Democrats and Republican Independents who voted for the debenture plan.

Thirty-one administration Republicans including Senator Watson of Indiana, the party leader, voted against the bill as a protest of the debenture section. Two Democrats, Wagner of New York and Walsh of Massachusetts, also voted against the bill.

Nine Senators who voted against debentures, however, voted for the measure, but even if they had cast their ballot with the administration group, the bill would have passed. These Senators were Capper of Kansas; Couzens and Vandenberg of Michigan; Cutting of New Mexico; McNary and Steiwer of Oregon; Shortridge of California and Thomas of Idaho, Republicans, and Ransdell of Louisiana, Democrat.

Immediately after the measure had been passed, Senator McNary, as chairman of the Agriculture Committee, obtained consent to have a conference committee appointed for the purpose of meeting with a similar committee from the House, should one be authorized, to agree on disputed sections.

Warn Republicans

Just prior to the final vote, Democratic spokesmen warned Republican leaders that refusal of the House to receive the Senate bill because of the debenture section would mean a defeat of all agricultural legislation. The Democrats, Robinson of Arkansas, the party leader, and Harrison of Mississippi, declared that if no farm measure was finally approved, the responsibility would rest upon the Republican leadership.

In the main, the Senate farm bill does not differ greatly from the measure passed some time ago by the House which has the endorsement of Mr. Hoover. Except for the debenture plan, both bills seek to aid the farm situation by setting up a comprehensive structure for the orderly marketing of crops so as to prevent the surplus from disturbing price levels.

The Senate measure would create a farm board of 12 members—the House bill provides for one of six—which would be vested with broad power to study, direct and control the multitude of factors which go into the production, storing and disposition of farm commodities.

Commodity advisory councils would be authorized to assist the board in disseminating information and to advise the board on the needs of the various crops. Stabilization agencies would be created upon request by co-operative associations to buy up, store, process and sell surpluses with the intention of maintaining a comparatively even price level.

Debenture Plan

The debenture plan would be invoked only when the board deemed it necessary to bring it into use as a result of failure to cope with the farm problem in any commodity by means of the structure devised in the bill. Under this plan, an exporter of surplus crops would receive a debenture certificate, whose value would be equal to one-half the tariff on imports of those commodities. The certificates would be redeemable at par for the payment of import duties.

The farm board would be given a revolving fund of $500,000,000 to carry on its operations.

This money would be loaned to co-operative and stabilization corporations for the construction of facilities, the formation of stronger organization and the marketing of crops.

The bill originally provided that loans should bear four per cent. interest, but an amendment by Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, altered the interest provision in such a way that the rate will probably be slightly lower. The House bill calls for loans at four per cent.

NOTORIOUS GANG LEADER SENTENCED

Judge Hinman Sends Bert Perry to Auburn State Prison for Five to Ten Years.

Bert Perry, the notorious gang leader and all around criminal, pled guilty to a charge of larceny before Judge Guy O. Hinman at County Court, Tuesday. He was sentenced to not less than five years nor more than ten years in Auburn state prison.

A fugitive from justice since August, Perry was captured by Sheriff Brigham on March 29, when he went to feed cattle in a secluded barn two and one-half miles north of Canaseraga. He was wanted in connection with the robbing of the Shawmut railroad station at Birdsall on August 8, 1928, when about $200 worth of merchandise was stolen.

Edward Sullivan, 26, of Canaseraga was arrested next day and eventually convicted and sentenced on a burglary charge. He is still doing time, Perry, also suspected, vanished, and was not heard of until Sheriff Brigham received a tip that he would be in the barn where he was arrested. Altho Perry is reputed to be an ex-cowboy and handy with a gun, which he always carried slung under an arm pit, he offered no resistance when apprehended.

Said to be long a source of trouble to railroad police, who suspected him of being the brains of a gang of car thieves, Perry served a term at Atlanta recently, according to Sheriff Brigham. He was sentenced in 1925 by Federal Judge John R. Hazel to two years in the federal penitentiary and to a fine of $10,000, following a daring attempt to burglarize a freight car while it was in rapid motion.

The attempt was made the year before, between Niagara Falls and Wilson, according to recollections of railroad detectives, a gang of four men lowered a rope ladder from the top of a freight car in a R. W. & O. fast freight train.

One known as "Shorty" Garner climbed down the precariously swaying ladder and broke the seals of the door.

He paid with his life for the daring. Gaining the interior of the car, he was killed by two railroad detectives secreted in the car. For the railroad police had received a tip that an attempt would be made to burglarize that particular car.

Perry is said to have engineered the exploit and to have followed close to the train in his automobile on an adjacent highway. He was arrested and connected with the gang.

Only two other cases were slated for trial in those of Edward Willard of Wellsville and Edison Tate, both held on peace warrants. They were dismissed when no one appeared against them. Willard is a brother of Oscar Willard, murdered junkman for whose death Leon Cronk was last week sentenced. He was charged with an assault made on a Wellsville pool room proprietor.

Farewell Party

A farewell party was given in honor of Tim Padden at his home on Church street, Friday evening by friends from Genesee, Wellsville, and Andover. A very enjoyable evening was spent in dancing after which dainty refreshments were served.

Friends departed wishing Mr. Padden much success in his new position with the Western Union at Newark, New Jersey.
