SOUND REASONING

The only correct method of fitting oversize pistons to a motor is to have the cylinder re-bored or re-ground first.

The most wear in a cylinder, requiring an oversize piston, occurs only where the rings slide, leaving the top and bottom of the bore smaller. This necessitates dressing the piston to fit the smallest part of the cylinder with the result it will be too loose in the larger part and the job will be short lived.

Our price for truing up a block is $2.00 per cylinder. This does not include dismantling as that can be done wherever you prefer.

We have the only shop in Andover completely equipped for doing this work on any make of car and we welcome work from the other garages.

We guarantee the job to stop oil pumping and piston slap when finished according to our instructions and you will be surprised at the "new" feeling your motor has.

MAY REBUILD THE B. & S. RAILROAD

Engineers Examine Concrete Abutments Between Wellsville and Buffalo, to See if Fit to Use Again.

Talking with workmen at the Canacadea dam the other day, it was learned that engineers had been thru that territory recently examining the concrete abutments to the bridges along the abandoned B. & S. railroad, between Wellsville and Buffalo. The engineers said there was a strong possibility that the road would be rebuilt in the very near future.

Now the information comes to light that the great Baltimore & Ohio railroad has offered to purchase the entire Buffalo & Susquehanna railroad, offering $6,300,000 for it or an amount which is $90 per share for the stock in that company. This comes in an announcement from E. R. Dalow, president of the B. & S.

The B. & O. offered to pay $90 a share for each of 70,000 shares of common and preferred stock of the Susquehanna now outstanding.

Buffalo & Susquehanna directors in a letter to stockholders urged that the offer be accepted and the stock held be deposited with the Jirard Trust Co., of Philadelphia depositary under the agreement.

The terms of the agreement were negotiated with the B. & O., by Mr. Darlow of Buffalo and A. A. Jackson and Albert L. Smith, of Philadelphia, who acted as representatives for the B. & S. stockholders.

The agreement was contingent with the approval of the purchase by the inter-state commerce commission.

Operating offices of the Susquehanna are at Wellsville, northern terminus of the road.

The Baltimore & Ohio offer was said to be in line with the plan of controlling interests to establish a fifth railroad from New York to Chicago. This plan would call for combination of the Central of New Jersey and Reading lines with the B. & S. Susquehanna lines, as well as those of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, the B. & O. could connect with its tracks north of Pittsburg.

FEDERAL AGENTS RAID IN ANDOVER

Joe Mussolini and Tony Sinicropi Ordered to Answer Charges After Dry Agents Find Booze.

Federal agents from the Elmira office, operating in this vicinity Thursday, made two big hauls. Joseph Mussolini, of Andover, formerly of Hornell, is charged with three violations. Tony Sinicropi, of No. 24 Maple street, Andover is charged with two.

About three o'clock Thursday afternoon, the agents visited an establishment in Andover alleged to have been conducted by Mussolini and Sinicropi, and seized a quantity of white distilled spirits, colored distilled spirits and several bottles of alleged beer. Both men were charged with sale and possession and ordered to appear before Commissioner Albert Robbins of Hornell, Saturday.

The high light of the afternoon's work came at 6 o'clock when the agents arrested Joseph Mussolini again on a charge of transportation of alleged alcohol. He was ordered before Commissioner Robbins.

Mussolini, according to information received at the Elmira office was engaged in trausporting a quantity of alleged alcohol when stopped by the agents about two miles west of Alfred Station. Mussolini's car, a Buick Victory coupe, was seized and also the contraband.

Major George Lewis, chief of the Elmira office, appeared against Mussolini and Sinicropi. In the absence of Commissioner Albert Robbins, who is away from home the defendants were taken before a justice of the peace to post temporary bond and the hearing was postponed until the return of the commissioner.

Don't Bite

All students and especially last June's graduates are warned against taking up any correspondence course from agents, who may try to persuade you to do so, as you will find it a very unwise act afterwards. They may tell you and it may also be written in the contract that if you are dissatisfied with your course your money will be refunded, but that is only their alibi. Beware of them all and be safe.—One who bit.—Fillmore Observer.

Z. F. Cook's Body Taken to Weehawken

The body of Z. Frank Cook, 58, Weehawken, N. J., who died in Hornell, Saturday, August 3, while on a visit to a sister, Mrs. Lida A. Cartwright, 10 Ransom street, was taken to Weehawken Sunday night, where funeral services and interment took place.

Besides his widow, he is survived by a daughter, Shirley Louise, and a son, Frank, both at home. Two sisters, Mrs. Cartwright of Hornell and Mrs. A. J. Cole of Elm Valley and one brother, R. J. Cook of Andover, all of whom have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in this vicinity.

BUFFALO NEWS WILL FIGHT MONOPOLY

Applied to Commission for Consent to Build Huge Independent Broadcasting Station at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 7.—On the ground that the public interest requires it on account of the present monopoly which controls the major stations in Western New York, the Buffalo Evening News has filed an application with the federal radio commission at Washington for permission to build and operate an independent broadcasting station which will be in a position effectively to compete against monopoly.

Following the usual procedure, it is expected the radio commission will deny the application. That automatically will result in a hearing being fixed. At that hearing the evidence to substantiate the claims set forth in the application will be presented to the commission.

The official statement of the Buffalo Evening News, explaining why it seeks to break up the monopoly that now controls the four largest stations in the eighth judicial district, follows:

"Since the four leading radio stations in Buffalo have come under the control and management of the Buffalo Broadcasting Corporation, service to the public gradually has deteriorated. Programs are being interrupted with all kinds of direct advertising announcements.

"The present local monopoly is not in the public interest. The effective competition and high grade radio service which will be insured if this application is granted will restore to the public its rights in radio."

"Furthermore, many letters have been received by the radio department of the Buffalo Evening News, complaining about the deterioration in service of certain stations controlled by the Buffalo Broadcasting Corporation.

"The Buffalo Evening News has had considerable experience with radio broadcasting and news presentations and, therefore, fully is qualified to restore adequate service and effective competition in a field which has suffered by reason of a radio monopoly erected in spite of the general policy to the contrary which is embodied in the Federal Radio Act."

That the effort of the Buffalo Evening News to restore effective radio competition in Western New York is in the interests of the listening public is indicated by the response to the announcement that the application has been filed.

James A. Johnson, president of the Radio Listeners' League of Western New York, the pioneer organization in this part of the state to protect the public's interest in radio, issued the following statement, urging the necessity of competition in the radio field:

"The Radio Listeners' League is convinced that from the listener's point of view, better and more varied programs will be obtained if there are several independently operated radio stations located in this immediate territory, than is possible under the present conditions, where the four most important stations are controlled and operated by one organization and all using the same studio."

"The shifting of certain chain programs from one station to another station is extremely confusing to the listener.

"The league desires only the reception of good programs, and that they be as varied as possible so that the listener can choose the program he desires, and not be confined to the reception of programs containing excessive advertising."

J. Craig Roberts, former assistant district attorney of Erie county, said:

"I guess I represent the average listener, and instead of noting an improvement in quality, I have watched the opposite effect take place."

More Opportunity for Success on Farm than City

Scientifically Trained Young Men with Farm Experience and Background will Find Agriculture an Ideal Career.

By MICHAEL H. CAHILL

Prominent New York Banker, Exclusive to Publishers Autocaster Service.

One of the serious obstacles that must be overcome for the good of our economic system and the country at large, is the well-planted theory in the mind of the farmer's son that he must leave the farm to reach the elusive goal of success.

The farm is not only a basic industry but the most important industry of our entire economic system. The successful farmer, therefore, is just as important to the welfare of this country as our biggest industrialist, merchant or financier. The people of this country or any other country could exist in crude comfort without our great industrialists and financiers, but industry and commerce could not exist without the farmer.

There is no profession or vocation more respectable, more independent or more wholesome than that of the successful farmer. There never was a time when farming held forth a greater or more successful future for the right type of scientifically trained young men than it does today.

In order to keep the farmer's son on the farm, we must first impress upon his mind that farming today is a highly respectable and specialized business, and that the successful farmer is a man of actual and not merely theoretical importance in the community.

We must impress upon him, also, that to be a successful farmer requires something more than a mere knowledge of how to plow a straight furrow, or the proper time to plant potatoes and sow buckwheat.

He must learn to analyze his soil in order that he may know what crops will give the greatest possible yield. He must learn to analyze market conditions in order that he may determine in advance what commodities he can produce which will bring him the most profitable returns. He must learn to develop thru organization a stable market for his products. He must appreciate the importance of raising thorobred stock and eliminating waste. He must know what improved machinery to purchase in order to cut down his overhead expenses for man power.

In other words, we must impress upon the farm boy the fact that education along agricultural lines is as necessary to the successful farmer as an engineering course is to the man who aspires to be an engineer. We must teach this boy to visualize the successful farmer as he is.

The successful farmer today has a freedom and the means to get more wholesale happiness out of life than does his wealthy city cousin.

He has electricity to light his home, his barns and to run his iceless refrigerator and other farm machinery. He has his automobile, radio, telephone and daily paper. He has his garden where fresh vegetables, sweet corn, berries and fruits are grown for his table. He has fresh, golden cream, milk and butter. He can and does set a table of wholesome, delicious, nutritious food that any millionaire would envy.

He can hunt, fish, bathe, ride horse-back and drive his car in garden spots that his city relative only dreams about six days out of seven. His workshop is God's great open space—there is no better place. His work is hard but healthful. He has no time clock to punch; no landlord to pay; no commuter's train to catch and no stifling subway to squeeze into. He is his own chairman of the board, president and board of directors. He is his own boss; king of all he surveys.

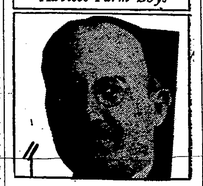
He never has to worry over where he will find a job if the factory should shut down, his factory always remains open and in operation. He has many friends, a good home, sufficient income to enable him to live comfortably and provide for his future. His work is interesting, as well as profitable, if properly done.

If this is not success, what is success? Certainly, it is not limited to any particular profession or vocation. Success means, crudely, securing the best results that can be obtained with the job in hand. The farm boy has a greater opportunity for success at home than he has abroad.

If we wish the farmers' son to remain upon the farm, we must impress upon his father the importance of attractive homelife for that boy and the necessity of giving him a college education along scientific agricultural lines.

If these facts are brought home to the farmer's son, he will know that he represents a noble and highly respected profession, and he will be inspired to prepare himself for the career of successful farmer. Then we shall have no farm boy "problem."

Advises Farm Boys



Michael H. Cahill, retiring president of the New York State Bankers Association, was born on a farm in New York State 42 years ago. One of the most prominent of American bankers, he is noted also for his interest in matters pertaining to farm life and the problem of the boy on the farm.

Snyder — Austin

A very pretty and attractive wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Miner Austin on August 5th, at 8:15 p. m., at White's Corners, in the town of Ward, when their oldest daughter, Doris, became the wife of Herman Snyder of Elm Valley.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Clyde Ehret of Alfred. The ring ceremony was used. The bride wore a gown of pink georgette and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Mrs. Mamie Thomas of Alfred and the bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Dickinson of Wellsville. Mrs. Dickinson is a sister of the groom. Lucille Austin, sister of the bride, performed the part of flower girl. The house was tastily decorated in pink and white. The flowers were pink and white sweet peas, pink lillies, and many beautiful potted plants. The ceremony was performed in the presence of 32 near relatives and close friends. Following the ceremony and congratulations a lunch was served, when eight sat down at the bride's table and the remainder of the company was seated in groups about the house. Lillian Austin, sister of the bride, Louise Vincent and Clara Hall, served the guests.

After the lunch, amid showers of rice and many well wishes from those present the bride and groom left for an extended wedding trip to Rome, Albany and New York City and Washington, D. C. On their return they will make their home with Mr. Snyder's mother, Mrs. Katherine Snyder of Elm Valley, Andover, R. F. D. 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Snyder are well known in this community. Mr. Snyder is a prosperous young farmer. Mrs. Snyder graduated from Alfred high school with the class of 1926. The following year she took the teachers' training course, and has since taught in rural schools. The coming winter she will teach near her home in Elm Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Snyder were the recipients of many useful and beautiful wedding presents.

School Meeting

The annual school meeting of District No. 1, Andover High School drew a very small audience, Tuesday evening. There was not much to call out the voters.

All the old trustees, excepting Mrs. Floye Lever, who refused to go on the board again, were re-elected. Mrs. Floyd Farwell was elected in her place. Those elected were T. K. Regan, Mrs. Florence Earley and Mrs. Floyd Farwell.

The budget of $12,500 was voted to run the school the coming year.

TO DEDICATE NEW BUILDING

Allegany County Health Camp Will Hold Dedicatory Services Next Saturday, Aug. 10, at Camp.

The new recreation and assembly building at the Children's Health Camp at Cuba Lake will be dedicated next Saturday afternoon, August 10th. This new building is the most important addition to the splendid equipment to the health camp since its establishment nine years ago. It provides a pleasant and comfortable place for the children to play in wet weather without disturbing their beds and also for their indoor games, classes and assemblies.

In addition to the directors and committee members of the County Public Health and Welfare Association which operates the camp, invitations have been sent to the members of the county Board of Supervisors, other public officials, doctors and ministers of the county. The general public is most cordially invited.

An interesting feature of the afternoon will be the dedication exercises conducted by Rev. S. W. Hale and the children. The camp committee of which Robert H. Bartlett, of Cuba and Tulsa, Okla., is chairman, will be in charge of the celebration.

In addition to the new building, additions have been constructed to one of the boys' dormitories and to the dining room, giving increased capacity to the camp. New walks have also been laid, all the buildings repainted and other improvements made, making this camp one of the best equipped children's camps in the state. These improvements have been made possible by the generosity of several residents of the county altho the improvements have not yet been entirely paid for.

There are about 35 children's health camps in New York State. Some of them are larger and have more elaborate buildings and equipment. Allegany county's camp is ranked as one of the very best of them all. The camps are inspected every year by the State Department of Health and Charities. The state inspector visited this camp only last week and was enthusiastic in her praise of it. The only suggestion she could make for improvements was the provision of two additional fire extinguishers. These are being provided.

There are 48 children, ranging from five to 13 years, in the camp at the present time. About 100 have been cared for this summer.

Independence Community Christian Endeavor

There seems to be a growing interest and attendance in the Sunday night meetings of the Community Christian Endeavor. Those attending have been especially interested in the programs put on at the last two meetings.

On August 20th, the teachers, Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Greene, Elrene Crandall and Minnie Claire, and the 27 pupils who were in attendance at the Daily Vacation School, gave a most interesting demonstration of the work accomplished during the short session of school.

On the evening of July 27th was another rare treat when Mr. George C. Rosa of Wellsville gave a talk on "Eight Sundays in Europe." Little Lorraine Piper, Mr. Rosa's granddaughter, accompanied the family that night and played beautifully five selections on the harp.

The attendance has ranged from over 40 to nearly 80, which is an evidence of the interest shown by the people of this community.

NEXT THURSDAY IS HARVEST HOME

The 53rd Annual Gathering Will Maintain the Reputation of the Annual Event. Good Program.

The 53rd annual Harvest Home picnic held under the auspices of the First Presbyterian church of Andover, will be held next Thursday, August 15, in the church park.

This annual event has always meant much to Andover people. It is a regular annual home-coming time for all our people. It is the day of all days of the year when neighbors and friends may gather together and enjoy each other's companionship. Former residents have come to know this date as the one to make their home-coming, as they can then see many more of their old friends and acquaintances than on any other day of the year.

This year unusual attractions have been made for the enjoyment of those who attended the 53rd Harvest Home. Rev. A. Clyde Ehret of Alfred, pastor of the First Seventh-Day Baptist church, comes as the speaker of the day. Mr. Ehret is well known in Andover, and his ability to interest and instruct his listeners is as well known as his pleasing personality. He is a speaker of exceptional ability and pleasing delivery, and he always has a worthwhile message.

While the program for the day has not been yet fully completed, it is known that it will be fully up to that of former years. Good speakers, fine music and a splendid dinner served only as those experienced people can. The chicken pie dinner will be up in every way to the standard that has been maintained for over 50 years by the good women of the church. No chicken pie can compare with those furnished by the Harvest Home committee.

In the evening the management of the Auditorium has arranged for a special Harvest Home motion picture that will please all.

Make all your arrangements to come to Andover for the whole day and evening next Thursday, August 15, and join with your neighbors and friends in a real Harvest Home festival.

AMERICAN LEGION MEET IN UTICA

Will March Over Historic Ground in the Heart of the Old Empire State. Program Is Unique.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Fifteen thousand World War veterans will march over historic ground here next month, when they swing into line in the spectacular procession which will be one of many features of the New York State Department of the Legion Convention, opening Sept. 5.

Indian trails have been replaced by paved streets and Indian wigwams have given way to homes, business and commercial plants in Utica, the heart of the Empire State, but Legionnaires will, nevertheless, follow the Redskins' path as they wind their way up Genesee street to tunes they whistled as they fought the enemy across the Atlantic in the memorable struggle.

The Legion program is unique. For the first time the department was organized a military nonsectarian religious service will mark the opening of the convention. In the center of Utica's business section and at a point dotted with street intersections where thousands can congregate, three clergymen, from as many religious beliefs, will officiate. They are Rev. S. J. Lagineer, national chaplin; Rev. George F. Kettle, state chaplin and Rev. Donald Stuart, chaplin, Utica Post 229.

The convention will continue for three days. Business sessions will be held twice daily, and after that pleasure will reign. In addition to the scores of natural attractions which abound in Utica and vicinity, visitors will be given the opportunity to inspect the grounds and buildings known as the Masonic group, where this order has expended millions of dollars annually for the last several years. There also will be side trips to Cooperstown, made famous by Cooper's Leather Stocking Tales; Richfield, with its natural health-giving springs, and to the popular Adirondack Mountains, the Thousand Islands and the St. Lawrence River section.
