AndoverHighSchool TIDBITS

We are glad to be back in school. It sure is a grand and glorious feeling to enter the doors of our new high school building. Yes, some of us have memories—and not very pleasant ones either—of last year. We have a good start. Well, you know what that means.

Registration for the high school was conducted by Principal Hardy on August 31, September 2nd and 3rd. It sure must have been quite a task for Mr. Hardy assisted each registrant with the making of his or her program of study.

The teachers had their first meeting in the library room of the high school on Labor Day evening. There were a few new faces. Yes and just a few more new names.

The students had their first touch of 1929-1930 school on September 3rd. Like everything else in this world of ours there were some changes. Last year's graduating class were not in the back seats of the study hall. No, they are gone out in the wide, wide world to make a name for themselves, and Andover High School. In their places could be seen last years Juniors. The Sophomores are Juniors indeed now. Well what about the Freshman. They are green indeed but they look very promising.

The Board of Education had their school-day on September 5th. So you see that everything is pretty well under motion in the Andover schools.

Time limits what we have to say for the Andover schools. Next week we hope to have ready, a directory of the schools. This will contain important information not only for the students but also for the patrons of the Andover schools. That includes every member of this community and those who have learned their reading, riting and rithmetic and now are in college or the world at large applying that learning.

Our slogan shall be "Tell the world about the Andover Schools." Your slogan should be: "Know your schools."

OVER—AND—OVER

Football is in the air. Last Monday night a meeting was held. Coach Perrone gave out the equipment. Well, there was not quite enough equipment, so that speaks pretty well for the number that were out trying to land a berth on Andover High's football team. On counting noses we found that there were about 20. We still have place for a few more candidates.

Next to a few more candidates, the squad needs just a little more equipment. A team that Andover should be proud to see, of course, should look good. That means at least football jersey of the same color. How about having a real team representing "The Purple and White," on the gridiron this fall? The boys did quite a little last fall without any assistance when they organized Andover's first football of this decade. Just think how much more can be done if the high school and town will only help.

The squad was rather fortunate in obtaining the fine field of the Albert Godde, Bedin, Inc., silk company. The High School and town should be thankful for the use of this wonderful haven for athletics. All practices and home games will be held on the Silk Mill field.

Only Cable, Williams, Seely and Fuller of last year's team were on hand for the first workout on Tuesday night. The rest of the squad is green but full of the old determination. As most of the squad are under-classmen you will hear plenty about them in the future.

The first game will probably be played on September 28. On October 4th, the team will journey to Bath where they will battle the Haverling High School. Games will be scheduled with Cuba, Wellsville, Hornell, Bolivar, Eldred, Little Valley and Olean Junior Varsity.

Let's have a team but let's make it a good team. That means everybody get behind and push. Yes, push. Andover High.

What college this fall? Have you thought of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University? It offers new two-year courses, and tuition is free to residents of New York.

WILLIAM DUKE, JR., CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY JUDGE AND SURROGATE

William Duke, Jr., one of the candidates for the nomination for County Judge and Surrogate, in the Republican primaries to be held September 17th, was born in Scio in 1883 but has lived most of his life in Wellsville. He graduated from Wellsville High School in 1900 from Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., in 1902 and from Cornell law school in 1905. He passed the state bar examinations and was admitted to practice the same year.

Mr. Duke was member of assembly from this county eight years and during his entire time in the Legislature was a member of The Codes Committee. He was chairman of this important law committee for six years and it was while he was chairman that the new civil practice act, Surrogate's Court Act and Justice Court Acts were passed.

Mr. Duke helped in the passage of the law legalizing the Dairymen's League and as chairman of the Codes Committee used his influence to prevent the passage of the repeal bill each year until the Dairymen's League and the co-operative rights of the farmers became recognized rights in this state. He sponsored several bills and secured their passage which were direct benefits to the people of Allegany county. A few of them were as follows: Establishing lighting districts in Houghton and Scio; the surplus water money bill for the village of Cuba; the bridge over Cuba Lake outlet for the town of Cuba; the Genesee river dam at Belmont. The bill which has undoubtedly been the greatest benefit to Allegany county from a financial standpoint was the "oil well flooding law," passed in 1919. Mr. Duke was the only member of the Legislature with practical knowledge of the oil industry and he was able to secure its passage by the Legislature and approval by the governor upon a personal conference explaining its merits.

Mr. Duke is at present Attorney for the village of Wellsville and for ten years has been attorney for the First Trust Company of Wellsville, N. Y. He has made a special study of Surrogate's Court work which is the largest amount of business of the County Judge and Surrogate. The County Judge is also Judge of the Children's Court and his work for the past five years with the Boy Scout movement, and as chairman of the Boys' Work Committee of the Wellsville Rotary Club, has put him in touch with boys of the county and their ways so that he is especially well qualified for the work in this court.

THE CALL OF THE OUTDOORS

Fall is here with the purpling grape and yellowing corn. Crisp air and open roads lure millions from congested city areas into rural by-paths—and sometimes into temptation.

Reddening apples, gloriously yellow pumpkins—with Hallowe'en approaching—pears, watermelons, and cantaloupes—all the delectables of the farm; beckon glowingly to the smoke—and soot-wearied urbanites—urchin and elder alike. A few apples lying on the ground—windfalls they may be—a few bunches of luscious grapes, or a pumpkin or two—they'll never be missed. So, careless training says, "Why not take 'em?"

But careless training is on the wane. A new spirit of "respect others' rights" is being bred in American motorists and picnickers along with the teaching of "Don't hog the road." They are beginning to appreciate the fact that the products they see in the fields form the farmer's means of sustenance—that they are the wages of his sweating brow.

Far too many farmers have been compelled to pass Saturdays and Sundays keeping watch over their property to prevent heavy losses. It is not the one person who steals an apple, or ear of corn, or a bunch of grapes, but in the course of a vacationing day hundreds of individuals, each purloining a single item, make the total losses mount.

"What if the farmer should invade your apartment and strip it as you strip his fields?" is one of the questions put to tourists by the Izaak Walton League of America thru its 3,000 organized chapters thruout the United States. Chapters are furnished a series of cartoons by nationally known artists and special accompanying articles for their local papers to teach a code of "Good Manners" which appeals to the honor and fairness of the public to let farmers' property alone.

Farmers, as a rule, are courteous. A request for privileges promptly brings assent in most cases, which invading the farmer's property for foraging, or hunting, or fishing, without asking permission rightfully brings resentment and often forcible ejectment. All the rural people ask is fair play and proper respect for their rights.

Removing dust regularly from window sills, porches, steps and walks, helps to keep it out of the house.

Stock Players Coming To Andover Auditorium

John "Ducky" Rhoads and his company of players will be at the Andover Auditorium every night next week presenting a repertoire of late Broadway successes in comedies and dramas. The vaudeville, as well as plays will be changed each evening.

The company is headed by the popular comedian, John "Ducky" Rhoads and he is supported by talented players from the best stock companies which have been playing the larger cities.

Monday evening the sensational New York comedy success, "Crooks" will be presented, giving local patrons opportunity to see a real late Broadway success at reasonable prices.

Monday evening ladies will be admitted free—one with each paid adult ticket. Doors will open at 7:30. The concert will start at 8, and the play at 8:15 each night.

The message is written in German and translated into English by the operator, who broadcast it, and was presented by him to Richard M. Auger of Waterbury, Conn., who has given it to the Steinheim.—Alfred Sun.
