Normal School Requirements

Regents College Entrance Diplomas

College entrance diplomas, which are issued in arts, science or engineering, and whose requirements are substantially the same as the entrance requirements of the colleges of the state, are designed to guide preparation for and to facilitate admission to college and to constitute in part the basis for awarding the University Scholarships. These will be given only to pupils of the registered secondary schools in this state who take the usual oath of allegiance to the State of New York and the United States, and file the same, together with their respective principal's certificate of their good moral character and the written application for the diplomas, by the fifth of July next succeeding the completion of the requirements for the diplomas. Failure to do so might deprive a candidate of a University Scholarship.

The examination requirements for a college entrance diploma are as follows:

1. The candidate must offer evidence that he has satisfactorily completed a four-year secondary course approved by the Board of Regents.

2. He must pass a comprehensive examination in each of five subjects as follows:

(a) English, four years; (b) Latin or French, three years; (c) Intermediate algebra; (d) Plane geometry; (e) one subject chosen from the following: History, one year or Physics or Chemistry, one year or a second foreign language, two years.

3. He must obtain an average rating of 75 per cent. with a minimum passing mark of 65 per cent. for any paper.

4. The geometry examination can be taken at any time during the high school course.

Intermediate algebra must be taken in one of the last four examination periods before graduation.

The balance of the examinations must be taken during the last three examination periods before graduation.

The examination mark in Latin or French, four years, can be substituted for (b) above.

The examination mark in Advanced Algebra can be substituted for Intermediate Algebra.

College Preparation

Pupils working for the Regents College Entrance Diploma must understand that this diploma does not guarantee admission to any college on its face value. You must look up the requirement of the particular college you expect to attend and arrange your course of study to satisfy those requirements:

Scholarships

State scholarships of $100 a year thru a four-year course have been established by law. Five such scholarships will be awarded each county annually for each assembly district therein.

The Regents College Entrance Diplomas constitute in part the basis for awarding the scholarships. In addition, the winners of the scholarships must be among the five obtaining the highest average on the five examinations required in earning a Regents college entrance diploma.

Heart-Heart Talks

By Dr. John Joseph Gaines

FOOD FOR REFLECTION

The newspaper is the great educator of the masses today. Where one reads a two dollar book, five thousand read the five cent daily. Since this is true, the editor should spend a good deal of time on his knees, it seems to me, with his mind fixed on the Giver of all good; none the less should the contributor for the newspaper wrestle in prayer; if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall in the ditch.

I go to my newspaper every day for information—for counsel. Such of it as I don't like, I don't take. Since humanity is pretty much the same the world over, I assume that you do the same.

I am interested in the legislative problem of reapportioning the states for the purpose of securing better representative government; I am not interested in the kind of hosiery worn by the king of Siam or the sultan of Turkey.

Which leads to the thought: If our daily newspapers were shorn of much that is the merest rubbish, there would be less volume, but more useful to our people. . . . The Sunday edition might be cut almost half.

"Oh," some one says, "we are not all alike; some want to know about the king of Siam—the sultan of Turkey; they must have Sunday reading." I grant it. But our aim, it seems to me, should not be to kill time, but to store our minds with useful information. There would be a better world if there were no prize-fighters in it; there would be a more useful citizenry if men and women busied their minds with things calculated to make the world better.

I'd rather study business, or even politics on Sunday, than possible championships in utterly useless occupations. Life is too short to waste valuable time in worthless things.

I like my paper to contain, first of all, news. Next, such leisure reading as cannot fail to be instructive to me in things calculated to elevate and uplift a frail or faltering humanity.

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for September 29.

Review: Significance of the Exile and Restoration

Golden Text Psalm 103:17

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

The review lesson is like clinching the nail. A careful study of this quarterly lesson will help to hold the facts in memory, and especially as you are putting the truths into practice in your life. Something over 150 years in time are covered in the past 12 lessons. The title gives the two subdivisions from the historical standpoint: Exile and Restoration.

Those who are seeking to get all out of this course that is possible will read the entire books from which these lessons are taken, and they are Ezekiel, Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah and Malachi. You should read at least the selected portions that were studied in connection with each lesson. Very little success comes without genuinely hard work.

Since history is usually centered about the lives of individual leaders you can get much by giving special attention to the biography of the contemporary, tho no lesson was given this quarter to her life. Also look up the secular history of that century and a half. You will observe the rise and fall of vast empires; Babylonia, Persia and Greece. The horizon of Israel was greatly broadened during the years of Exile. They began to realize that there were other nations that were playing a great part in the life of the world. They had been largely an agricultural nation, but the contacts in Babylon thrust them into the commercial activities that they have ever since maintained. Their cultural development was increased as they became students in the schools of other nations.

A purpose from Jehovah's angle was to stamp out idolatry which in Palestine was polluting them physically and enervating them spiritually. They went back to Jerusalem to live according to the Law of God. To be sure there were lapses; there always are. They rebuilt the Temple and then protected it by

of the year so everyone is looking forward to it.

Andover high school had a few visitors this week. Claire Greene, Robert Common, Raymond O'Boyle and Miss Eleanor DeRemer, all of the Class of '29, are the ones we remember in particular.

Football stock has come down quite a few points since last week. Some of the boys seem to lack the old determination. Another week will tell the tale. It sure is tough on the faithful few who would like to play this wonderful game played by America's youth.

You can blame Mr. Microbe for that stomach-ache

ONCE you let Mr. Microbe and his tribe get into your food, you're lucky if you have nothing worse than a stomach-ache.

Food-germs thrive in temperatures about 50°... make food unfit for use long before you can detect it with your eye or nose.

Why risk baby's precious health? Be sure that his milk is always sweet and pure . . . keep it in steady 50° temperature . . . see about a good refrigerator today.

If you buy an electric refrigerator, you'll be surprised at the low cost of operation . . . only a few pennies a day. For never has your electricity cost less. While the price of most necessities has practically doubled, Niagara Power Service costs less today than when women wore bicycle bloomers.

Compulsory Education Law

Particular attention is called to the Compulsory Education Law, which requires every child from seven to fourteen years of age to attend school every day and every child from 14 to 16 years of age to attend unless he has a work certificate and is legally employed.

The following excuses are accepted as legal:

1. Illness of child. The school authorities may demand a doctor's certificate in any case.

2. Severe storms or roads absolutely impassable.

3. Contagious disease in a community; school authorities or local board of health determining when danger of conveying disease has passed.

4. Sickness or death in pupil's family, requiring his or her services until other help can be secured.

Continued and repeated tardiness is just as much a violation of the law, as illegal absence.

Important Regulations

1. All pupils must present written excuses from parents or guardians in every case of absence, stating definitely the reason. Excuses for leaving the building must be on its face value. You must look up the requirement of the particular college you expect to attend and arrange your course of study to satisfy those requirements:

2. Pupils absent from classes shall not be permitted to enter the same without a slip from the principal. This slip is to be presented to the teacher.

3. All academic pupils are required to carry their subjects at 70 per cent. during the year. If their standing is below that figure it shall be entered in red.

4. There shall be a period of one-half hour after the close of the session each school day to be known as the "Detention Period." Pupils absent or tardy illegally may be required to make up the time in detention periods.

5. There shall be maintained at all times silence in the halls. All classes shall pass in an orderly and quiet manner without noise or confusion.

6. Pupils must not mark or deface the walls cut, mark or injure the seats or woodwork, or in any manner deface the building. Pupils must not throw papers on the floor of building or grounds surrounding same.

7. Smoking in the school building or on the school grounds is absolutely forbidden.

8. Each class or club shall have a faculty advisor approved by the principal. All plans for class activities must be submitted to the faculty advisor before definite action is taken to carry out these plans.

9. Any pupil wishing to maintain a position on any athletic team must have an average grade of 70 per cent. in his total subjects and maintain acceptable conduct.

Demerits

Illegal tardiness, 1; illegal absence (each day), 3; discourtesy, 1; disturbance in school, 1; defacing school building or grounds, 2; continued unprepared lessons, 1. Other cases given demerits according to nature of offense.

A total of ten demerits dismisses the pupil from school. The parent or guardian must then come to the principal and talk the situation over before the pupil is allowed to return to school. If the pupil is allowed to re-enter school, it is upon condition that if he shall receive another ten merits, he will be dismissed from school permanently.

Assemblies

Here's Howe
BY E.W. HOWE
THE SAGE OF POTATO HILL

VOLTAIRE, A MASTER. VIRTUE. STAYING POWER.

Frequently a reader encounters these two words: "Voltaire said." . . . I always read what follows; sometimes I do not understand it, occasionally I disagree, but always I recognize a master mind and hand.

Some will not read him; they have heard he was a mean and foolish little man. On the contrary, he was so unusual that he is still encouraging or distressing his fellow men.

If you read of Napoleon you soon note he had a good deal of respect for Voltaire. You have undoubtedly heard of Frederick the Great, who had the advantage of being a king to start with. Voltaire was a much smarter man; he has had far greater influence on the world. In spite of faults inevitable and natural in any human machine, Voltaire came nearer having intelligence than any other living organism.

I give him no credit; he simply had it. Instead of being born a pitiful fool, he was born with the world's greatest mind. Some of the famous prophets were weaklings compared to him; Mahomet's personal history convicts him frequently of being an ass—indeed, I know of no great mystic among rulers who had a really good mind.

Voltaire won his fame as fairly as has evolution; every scholar has added him up, and given him great pages to the word virtue, but it all condenses into this; a high average in fairness, honesty, industry, temperance, usefulness in small or great ways, and thrift in health and business.

And the lowliest of us may profit from the practice of virtue.

I have received many letters in a single delivery of mail, and not one of real interest; but I received one today that caused me to take notice. "The heroics of human life," said the writer, "do not consist in spectacular circumstances; in great deeds, or in the taking of cities, but in the staying powers we have for the monotony of little things that make up the long hard seige of living and behaving creditably." . . . This, it seems to me, is wise; had I encountered it in Emerson or Aristotle, I should have been moved no more than I was by this utterance of one of the plain people of 1929.

Cuba Resident Flew to Fish

William H. Marvin of Cuba, accompanied by Clair Cornwell, of Bolivar, left Sunday, September 8, in his Waco biplane and flew to the Thousand Islands to fish. At that place they joined Dr. O. E. Osgood of Belfast. A landing was made on Stoney Island, where they lived in a real log cabin which dates back to Indian days and caught a fine string of bass. The return trip on the 11th was made in two hours and 12 minutes. The distance by road is 300 miles.

Junior field days at Cornell attracted so many 4-H club members that a new plan may be adopted to limit the number who may attend.
