TODAY TOMORROW

FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

WORK

Half of all the work done in the world is done in the United States, says Dr. Thomas Thornton Read, professor of mining in Columbia University. The average American does 30 times as much work as the average Chinaman, two and one-half times as much as the average German, almost twice as much as the average Briton. Electrically-powered machinery is the answer; each American worker has the equivalent of 35 slaves at his command, who do not have to be fed out of his earnings.

Europeans, puzzled by our prosperity, have attributed it to America's natural resources. We know better. We do more work.

YOUNG

Owen D. Young told a Senate committee that it will soon be possible for anybody to write a message in his own home or office and have it transmitted in his own handwriting, instantly, to any point in the world. All that needs to be done to accomplish this as a slight extension of existing telegraph facilities. Technically it is easy.

Mr. Young's predictions are always entitled to respectful consideration. He is one of the rare men who combines great business ability with a broad and statesmanlike view of public affairs. As the head of the international commission which worked out the plan for the World Bank to handle war reparations payments he has a reputation in Europe even greater than in America. He is a Democrat; otherwise he would have been in the cabinet of President Hoover, who is one of his warmest friends.

KLEIN

Keep an eye on Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, the young man from California who has been the center of the business conferences in Washington. Dr. Klein is a graduate of the University of California and of Harvard; he studied also in Berlin and Paris universities. He knows more about international trade than anyone else in America and, what is more important, he understands men and knows how to make industrial and business leaders pull together. He will go higher in public service.

BARNES

Another man to watch is Julius Barnes, head of the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. Mr. Barnes has an office in New York, but spends most of his time on the floor of the Produce Exchange where he has done more than any other one man or group of men to stablize the price of export grain for the benefit of the American farmer. Mr. Barnes has not made a fortune for himself out of his wheat operations, which he took over after the war from the U. S. Food Administration. He has charged himself with the duty of seeing that American grain goes where it is needed and that the price is fair to buyer and seller.

Mr. Barnes is one of the President's most intimate personal friends and perhaps the most intimate. His hobby is the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, which he believes can be made the most useful constructive force in American business, and he has the faculty of making big business men believe him.

MORROW

When the international commission or naval disarmament which is to meet in London in January finishes its work, if it does not break up in a row, one man whose influence will have had a large part in the conclusions arrived at will be Dwight W. Morrow. "The smartest man in the world" is the way the editor-in-chief of a big New York daily referred to him in conversation the other day.

Success has not spoiled Mr. Morrow or his family. They live in the pleasant but decidedly not "smart" suburb of Englewood, N. J., in much the same way as any ordinary family of middle-class Americans. Being a partner of J. P. Morgan, ambassador to Mexico, the next Senator from New Jersey, has not impressed Mr. Morrow with the necessity of keeping his trousers creased and otherwise dressing like a bond salesman. One of his daughters is a school-teacher, another, as everyone knows, married "Slim" Lindbergh. Just plain Americans to whom "society" means nothing.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

THE STITCH IN TIME

Our working people have learned pretty well the danger of blood-poisoning from rusty nail wounds, or, in fact, from injuries apparently trifling, from any outside source that might inoculate the site of injury with dangerous if not deadly germs. Accidental scratches about the hands are seldom produced by surgically clean instruments; and, it is not absolutely necessary for a wound to bleed to become poisoned by the violent intruder.

I knew a man who got a splinter-wound while opening a box containing goods for his store; he paid no attention to the little thing—until it compelled. The poison invaded the hand, the arm, the chest; a pneumonia developed from which the patient died within a week from the initial infection. If he had only attended to the small matter in time—but he didn't.

It was just about ten days later when I wounded the knuckle of my right forefinger on a door-hasp of a building only used occasionally; the metal was dirty, of course, exposed to the dust of the street, which the winds carried. The rather deep little cut bled annoyingly, and was quite painful. I thought of my late friend instantly, and his tragic end. I must disinfect at once.

But I had no germicide with me—nothing whatever in the way of iodine, mercury tablets, even without quick access to hot water and soap. I reflected seriously. Finally a happy thought—I had some matches.

I ignited one, and applied the flame to that wound, until it was cauterized thoroly—I grinned and bore it, as we often are compelled to endure what is good for us. I never had any trouble with that wound, you may be sure.

I might have averted serious trouble by my prompt tho not very scientific treatment of the injury. And, I am relating this to assure you that if injured, and have a simple little match or two in your pocket, you can cauterilize the wound capably and go on about your business. A stitch in time.

Let Us Have Peace

This season when the bells again bring Christmas messages to men, let Peace not seem so dim and far, let's bring her nearer where we are. We gave God speed to Ramsey Mac across the gray Atlantic track. When larger aspects are discussed how often is our answer just, but every day decision brings for peace or strife in little things. Not guiltless are the editors who feed our thoughts of future wars, and histories not balanced truly but magnifying war unduly. I do not like those cannon there in plaza, park or public square. I do not wish to see our sons too friendly with the shotted guns. Let's park these things in museum not out where kids will daily see 'em. For all of us will tend to be akin to what we hear and see. I would not that we cease to praise the men sore tried in bitter days. But I would rather magnify the inward thing, the vision high, for which brave men have dared to die. So may our sons, when war shall cease, become the heroes of our peace.—BOB ADAMS.

THE CALL OF THE OUTDOORS

What the Old Guide Says

"The sentiment that it is not all of fishing to fish nor all of shooting to shoot is one which sounds well when interjected into a record of success in the field; but gives sorry comfort in alleviation of the disappointment and chagrin which crown an utterly barren enterprise with rod and gun," remarked old Hank, the guide, as he shoved his ram-rod down the barrel of his aged twelve gauge. "When one goes for fish or game he wants something tangible to show for it; that is, unless he shall be content to dodge all his sportsmen friends, or cultivate the arts of deceit and dissimulation.

"Now, listen—by this statement I do not mean that it is necessary to go out and take the limit every time you go afield, but I do realize that the average sportsman tires of listening to the birds sing, watching the butterflies flit about or witness beautiful scenery while his fly remains untouched by a trout, or his gun silent on account of shooting no game. No angler likes to be called a poor fisherman, neither does a hunter welcome the 'kidding' received when he returns with an empty bag.

"To be a good clean sportsman does not necessarily mean that you should throw back 98 per cent. of the fish you hook or pass up most of the game you could shoot—not by a long shot—but it does mean that every day common sense should be practiced when outdoors and any man, woman or child that practices good conservation feels in his, or her, own heart that they are sportsmen. The real sportsman takes only what he needs from nature's playground and leaves the largest share for future propagation.

"The Izaak Walton League of America represents everything that means good sportsmanship and conservation. This organization has done wonders in preserving what is left of our outdoors and it is my wish that every lover of nature become a member and worker of this great conservation movement. By helping the League with its great program of game restoration, fish propagation, forest reserves, refuges and fight against pollution we all will be able to enjoy better shooting, fishing and outdoor life in years to come. And besides, it means a lot to those who are to follow us. I'd hate to think of my children being unable to enjoy the outdoors when they grow up—wouldn't you?"

BALTIMORE & OHIO WANTS THE B. & S.

Big Road Asks Permission to Acquire Smaller One By Buying Stock at $90 A Share.

Washington, Dec. 23.—Authorization for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad to acquire control of the Buffalo & Susquehanno road in connection with its plan for improving its route from Chicago to New York and Philadelphia was asked in an application to the Inter-State Commerce Commission today.

The B. & O. would be awarded the B. & S. under the consolidated plan published by the commission.

Control of the Buffalo & Susquehanna would be accomplished thru the purchase of stock at a price of $90 a share for both preferred and common. The application says that 28,196 shares of preferred stock and 16,858 shares of common stock have already been deposited with the Giard Trust Co., of Philadelphia for the purpose of carrying thru the transaction.

American Legion Christmas Tree

Thomas Lynch American Legion have again demonstrated their public spirit by placing a beautifully electric lighted Christmas tree in Legion park, where for the past week it has produced a splendid holiday appearance in our village and been the object of much admiration. Monday night a crowd gathered at 6:30 p. m. in the park and Santa gave out 200 gifts to children under ten years of age. A band composed of local men furnished fine music. The Legion and Auxiliary gave out a number of Christmas baskets to homes where needed and sums of money in some cases.

As we remember the unsightly spot, in the midst of our village, converted into a plot of beauty as a park, by our American Legion boys, and their splendid demonstration and worthy charity during the Christmas season, certainly our village owes them its thanks and support in all their work.

Nineteen twenty-nine is fast drawing to a close. It has been a pretty good year for business, floods, storms, epidemics and calamities have been very few in our midst, crops and the price they will bring are above the average. Surely we have very much for which to give thanks and very little for which we may justly complain.

We hope that you all (every one) had a most Merry Christmas and we wish for you and yours a Happy Contented and Prosperous New Year.

We thank you for your continued and loyal patronage; we have tried to serve you acceptably and give you full value. If we have failed in any instance won't you kindly tell us and give us the opportunity to make amends?

We expect to be at the same address for 1930; we would like to work for you all of the coming year if you will employ us as your Hardware Dealer we will try very hard to earn our wages, and keep smiling.

We have just signed a franchise for the exclusive sale of Aladdin Mantle Lamps and extras in Andover and vicinity.

The new Aladdin is as easy to light and operate as a candle; there is no generator and no pump pressure. Burns over 90 per cent. air, is noiseless, odorless and smokeless. One quart of kerosene oil will produce a 150 candle power light for more than ten hours.

These lamps are made in many styles — hanging lamps, bracket lamps, floor lamps, and table lamps; a variety of shade is available, plain or decorated as you desire and made up of all sorts of shade material—silk, parchment, china and glass.

They are as beautiful and adaptable as those furnished for electricity.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Albert Baker of Railroad Valley is reported ill.

It's been a Merry Christmas. Now all together, let's make for dear old Andover—"A Happy New Year."

Doga killed eight sheep and injured several others in the flock of Joseph Clancy at Angelica, last week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jordan of Richburg has a dislocated shoulder, caused from a fall on the icy steps at her home.

Mrs. A. O. Kemp who has been ill for several weeks, has so far improved in health as to be able to accompany Mr. Kemp to Hornell, Christmas Day.

It certainly was a white Christmas; one of the good old fashioned kind. The only lack of "ye olden tyme" being the jingle of the sleigh bells on the street.

John Royce, a middle aged resident of Belfast is ill with what the press terms a mild case of smallpox. Mr. Royce has no idea where he could have contracted the disease.

Hunters have been in luck this year. Every local paper reports several townsmen who have returned from hunting trips bringing fine specimens of deer which they had shot.

Miss Hazel LeBar, who has been ill with mumps the past two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mullen on Barney street, was able to return to her home at Scio Sunday.

Rev. John McIntosh and family of Delavan, N. Y., arrived in Andover, Friday and are nicely located in the Baptist parsonage. Rev. McIntosh is the new pastor of the First Baptist church of this village.

The ice and snow storm which decended on Western New York the last of the week is among the most severe ever experienced in this locality. Telegraph line men and railroad employees were kept more than busy.

Rev. Theodore Buch, son of Rev. George Buch for many years pastor of the Wellsville Lutheran church, has accepted the pastorate of the Zion Lutheran church at Johnstown, Pa. The Zion church is among the largest in the denomination, having a membership of over 4,000.

Andover postoffice has handled a large amount of Christmas mail this year apparently as neat as clock work. Much credit is due the postmaster and force, for the efficient and courteous treatment which the patrons have received from them during the rush of heavy work.

An official notice from the State Division of the Department of Public Service, under date of December 11, 1929, and signed by the secretary of state, specifying the immediate elimination on the dangerous Erie railroad crossing at Belvidere has been received by the town officers.

L. C. Clair of Elm Valley had a close call when their Chevrolet car skidded on Cemetery Hill this side of Hornell and after turning over several times landed right side up 50 feet below the highway. The occupants escaped with minor cuts and bruises and the car was not damaged beyond repair.

Mrs. J. E. Thompson and daughter, Ethel, of Belmont, were seriously injured when two cars came in collision between Scio and Belmont, Monday. Mrs. Thompson was badly bruised about the body and has a sprained ankle. Her daughter is more seriously injured in the back so as to cause the loss of the use of her limbs.

Howard McAndrew, 11 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. George McAndrew of Scio, R. F. D. No. 1, is in St. James Mercy hospital, Hornell, suffering with a badly injured eye, received in a coasting accident. He was riding down hill and struck his eye on a stubble, cutting the eyeball so badly it was necessary to take stitches in it. Physicians hope to save the vision of the eye.

A. F. Randolph of Alfred is the newly elected president of the Allegany County Farm and Home Bureau Association in a joint meeting of the two societies. Mr. Randolph was also named as head of the Farm Bureau Association; Miss Blanche Pease of Belmont as president of the Home Bureau; Mrs. E. D. Van Horn, Alfred Station, vice president and Mrs. W. L. Greene, Andover, secretary and treasurer.

Dr. E. F. Comstock of Wellsville had his car stolen from a parking place on Jefferson street, that village No trace could be found of the machine but 24 hours later the car was found in front of the Preheater plant on South Main street. The car had been driven about 200 miles and scratches and jams on the side showed had been in an accident. A case of valuable surgical instruments was found intact in the car.

A new troop of Boy Scouts has been organized at Scio, starting off with a membership of 19.

Edward E. Beckwith succeeds George A. Durnford as principal keeper at Auburn, N. Y. state prison.

Walter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Johnson of Wellsville, fell on the ice this week dislocating his elbow.

Not too late for a subscription gift of the home paper or a magazine. We can furnish any one at the lowest possible cost to you.

Yuletide programs and trees have been held at the Andover churches the past week and also at the school and in many of the fraternal organizations in the village.

NO EXTENSION OF TIME GIVEN

You Must Use New Licenses On January 1st. No Excuse Will Be Tolerated This Year.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 21.—Today marks the beginning of the last full week for the sale of 1930 automobile registration plates and in commenting on this, here yesterday, Charles A. Harnett, commissioner of motor vehicles declared there will be no extensions beyond December 31 for machines licensed in 1929 if they are to be used beginning January 1.

"There will be no extension of graco granted," declared Commissioner Harnett. "Car owners have had since November 25 to procure their registration plates for their motor vehicles and due to the change in law they have been enabled to display the 1930 plates on their cars since last Monday. There can be no excuse this year that there was no need of buying plates early because they could not be used until a day or so before the beginning of the new year. This year the plates could be placed on the cars 15 days before the new year. Therefore there will be no extensions or grace granted for car owners whose machines are licensed in 1929."

Grange Notice

~~The next regular meeting of Andover Grange will be Monday evening, Dec. 30th. Note the change in date.~~ At this time Christmas exercises and gifts will be the order. Gifts are not to exceed ten cents in value.

Mrs. Emily Swain Injured

Mrs. Emily Swain, daughter of Mrs. Martha Orvis of this village, fell Friday night, on the ice near her home at Canaseraga and suffered a fracture of the hip. Mrs. Swain was alone at the time and managed to crawl back to the house and lay there about three hours before her son returned from school and summoned a physician. She was taken to Bethesda hospital, Hornell.
