POTATO GROWERS GET GYPPED

Many Potato Farmers Suffer in Deals With Truck Buyers.—Should Get the Cash.

A farmer in western New York sold potatoes recently to a trucker from Pennsylvania and was paid by check. The trucker gave no sales receipt. The next day, the market for potatoes in Wilkesbarre, Pa., fell off, and the trucker, to prevent loss on his purchase, stopped payment on his check. He claimed unjustly that the potatoes were frozen.

The farmer demanded redress of the state-federal inspector in Wilkes Barre, but since he had no sales receipt the trucker could not be prosecuted.

This case is typical of other farmers in New York state who have accepted checks from Pennsylavina truckers which have proved worthless, says W. C. Hopper of the New York State college of agriculture.

"Farmers should refuse to sell on credit and refuse to take checks in payment for produce delivered," Mr. Hopper asserts. "If a farmer feels he must sell on credit, he should never fail to get a sales receipt stating quanity and type of produce delivered to the trucker, the date and place of the sale, the signature of the trucker and his address. If trouble develops, this receipt helps to obtain redress. The better way, however, is to get cash."

The sale of farm products to trucker-dealers has become an established practice in New York State, Mr. Hopper notes, and adds that many honest truckers are in business even tho dishonest ones exist and continue to ply their trade.

"The way to drive these dishonest men out of business is to demand the cash before allowing the products delivered to leave the farm."

Mrs. Albert Kaufman Found Dead in Bed

Mrs. Bessie S. Kaufman, wife of Albert Kaufman, was found dead in bed Wednesday morning at her home near this village on the Liberty Highway. It is believed Mrs. Kaufman passed away soon after retiring for the night, in her usual health.

Deceased, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Smith, was born in Andover 58 years ago yesterday, and had always lived here.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home this Friday afternoon.

NO CHANGE MADE IN VILLAGE BUDGET

Board of Trustees Approve Budget as Published. No Objector Appeared at the Hearing.

The Village Board of Trustees of the village of Andover met directly at the close of the budget hearing Friday night and approved the budget as published. No changes were made from the tentative form in which the budget was presented to the public by publication previously.

It must be that Andover people had no objections to offer, as not a single person showed up at the hearing. This would indicate that all were pleased with the work of the trustees in making the budget.

There being no objections the "ayes" have it and the Village Board will undoubtedly soon own the building recently occupied by the Burrows National Bank for their offices. These rooms will make most pleasant and serviceable quarters for the business of the village of Andover. After the purchase and moving of the village into them it will be there where we will all have to trek to pay our water and light bills, as the village clerk tradition will be located there.

Officers of Fire Department

The following officers of the Andover Fire Department have been recommended to the village board for appointment:

President, F. S. Potter.
Vice President, Clair Jackson.
Treasurer, A. L. Rogers.
Secretary, B. B. Hann.
Trustee, three years, Mark Kemp.
Foreman, Richard Harder.
First Assistant, Gerald Hann.
Second Assistant, Glenn Perry.
Chief, Archie Kemp.
First Assistant, E. P. Rogers.
Second Assistant, Joe Hemmer.

Chick Management Program Attracted 4,120 Poultrymen

The final report of the chick management campaign for 1933 shows that 4,120 persons from 31 counties were enrolled, says L. M. Hurd of the poultry department in the New York State college of agriculture.

Erie county had the largest enrollment with 425, followed by Ulster with 350 and Otsego with 262. Eighteen counties had an enrollment of 100 or more.

On the basis of accepted reports, Otsego county led all others in the 1933 campaign in number of chicks brooded with 63,768. Oneida was second with 40,088, and Ulster third with 40,021.

The chick management campaign, says Mr. Hurd, aims to help poultrymen reduce losses and to rear as nearly 100 per cent. of their chickens as possible. Problems of disease, feeding, hatching, rearing and care are discussed in weekly service letters sent to all who enroll in the campaign. Mortality records are kept and a report made of results each fall.

Three Home Bureau Meetings

Mrs. Ruth Comstock, assistant county home demonstration agent, will lead three Home Bureau unit meetings next week on "Living Room Accessories," as follows:

Tuesday, May 1, Little Genesee; Thursday, May 3, Houghton; Friday, May 4, Canaseraga.

R. V. Akin at Hospital

R. V. Akin of Pleasant avenue was taken to St. James Mercy hospital, Hornell, Friday, where he submitted to a major operation. The News is glad to report his condition favorable at this time.

Reports from county debt conciliation committees show that many heavily-mortgaged farm homes have been saved from foreclosure and satisfactory agreements reached between debtors and creditors.

Potato fields should be plowed before May 10 to avoid new attacks of wireworms. Early plowing also helps to conserve moisture.

TWELVE CRIMINALS ARE SENTENCED

County Judge Renwick Handed Out Sentences in County Court Friday.—All Pled Guilty.

Five Allegany county residents were sent to Attica State Prison, along with one from Hornell, by Judge Walter N. Renwick at a special term of County Court at the county seat Friday, all on pleas of guilty to felonies. Six others admitted guilt, too.

Judge Renwick recalled a grand jury while he was district attorney which brought in several indictments for statutory crimes. Three such bills were found by the grand jurors reporting April 17.

The first group to come before the bar of justice were the three residents of the town of Hume, Clifford Guska, 31, single, railroad employee, and Cyril Fisher and Leland James, each 26, farmers, both single, who admitted thefts and burglaries to the number of 23 in the central and northern parts of the county extending over three months until some time in March. They were arraigned for burglarizing a Rushford Lake cottage. A second indictment for the same thing at a Rockville Lake cottage is still pending. Despite its being their first offense they were each given one and one-half to three years in Attica.

Statutory offenses sent Clarence E. Clemens, 21, of West Clarksville, negro youth, to Attica, for not less than five or more than ten years, and Clarence W. Bailey, 36, Hornell divorced truckman, to the same place for two and one-half to five years. Edwin D. Gordon, 19, Hornell laborer, must serve a term in Elmira reformatory for the same crime. A Friendship girl of 14 years was complainant against Clemens, a Birdsall girl of 16 against Bailey and Gordon.

Francis E. Plaisted, 19, Whitesville laborer, charged with first degree robbery, was allowed to plead to grand larceny and given a term of five to ten years in Attica. He came nearest to being a habitual criminal of any of those before the court Friday. He has been in Industry State school and the Elmira reformatory and convicted of petit larceny in Hornell. Officers say he has escaped punishment for other infractions of law and they have made every effort to induce him to go straight. He assaulted Walter Fisher of Whitesville in a hitch shed there and secured $60, restored thru quick work by Deputy Sheriff Birney Wilson.

Harold J. Davis, 29, Bradford bakery employee, arrested Thursday, was arraigned for abandonment of his two children in Oramel after indictment by the January grand jury. He plead guilty and was given a one year's suspended sentence to Monroe county penitentiary, paroled to Mrs. Clara H. LeClere, county children's agent, on promise to pay $7.50 per week.

Raymond Ritter, 23, married, Whitesville farmer, accused of forgery, second degree, two checks totalling $14, admitted his guilt. Sentencing was postponed one week.

Frank L. Sheehan, Genesee, Pa., youth of 17 years, admitted forgery also and was given a suspended sentence to Elmira reformatory as he had an otherwise good record.

Earl Davis and Donald Hatch, two Allegany youths of 17 years, freely admitted their part in burglarizing Cuba Lake cottages. Both were once inmates of the Randolph orphanage. Because of that and no previous crime, Judge Renwick only paroled them to Officer James McCreedy, Olean, and even told deputy sheriffs to see they got transportation to Allegany where they expected employment on farms.

Mothers of at least two of the men sentenced were in the court room, along with other relatives, and there were several affecting scenes as sentences were given in the hope of a warning to others to keep free from crime.

Tests Seed For Members Only

The department of plant breeding in the New York State college of agriculture announces that it handles seed samples for testing only from members of the New York seed improvement association who want them inspected for certification.

All others, the department says, should send their seed samples to the state seed laboratory at Geneva, New York.

Book Notes

The mention of non-fiction might imply text book form, but not so with the following books listed below. These stories are composed of recreational reading and about things we are all familiar, but have not given especial thought. Some outstanding titles in the list just received:

"I Went to Pit College," by Lauren Gilfillan. How many have visited an area of land that produces its wealth by its mines? An absorbingly interesting record that reads like a first rate novel as seen by a young Smith College graduate who disguises herself and lives the life of the miners for a few weeks, including a strike. Just a stark picture of a plague spot in a prosperous country.

"Windows on Henry Street," by Lillian D. Wald. Lillian Wald has been a leader in numberless movements to improve our city civilization. She organized the public health nurses, originated the idea of U. S. Children's Bureau in the garden behind Henry Street. She built the first playground in New York City tenements. She took boys and girls off the street and helped them become proficient in the arts and crafts. A wonderful book based on real facts.

"While Rome Burns," by Alexander Woollcott. Have you heard "Alex" Woollcott over the radio? Well this is the same who has written this book. America's favorite raconteur (one who tells stories) here offers a generous selection of his best honor stories, anecdotes, personal portraits, legendary tales and reminiscences.

"Native's Return," by Louis Adamic, one of the national best sellers. A naturalized American goes home to Jugoslavia and describes his experiences there with intense zeal and interest.

PUT GOVERNMENT ON THE SPOT

Allegany and Cattaraugus County Printers Protest Unfair Practice of the U. S. Postoffice.

Allegany county publishers started a ball rolling at Olean last week that may be heard from every corner of the county. They passed a resolution protesting against a thing that is being done by the U. S. Postoffice, which the government has strictly forbidden printers from doing the country over, because it was not just. Selling printing below the cost of production.

Following is the resolution:

"We, the members of the Allegany County Publishers Association, at a special meeting held in the city of Olean, N. Y., April 18, 1934, unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, The Fair Competition section of the Graphic Arts Code establishes the principal that no printing shall be produced or sold for less than cost, as determined by a uniform cost-finding system and

"Whereas, All printers are being required to conform to this Code, and

"Whereas, The U. S. Postoffice Department is selling printed envelopes at a much lower cost than they can be produced under such Code, therefore be it

"Resolved, That this Association protest against this unfair competition of the U. S. Postoffice Department, which is a manifest violation of the spirit and letter of the Graphic Arts Code, and be it further

"Resolved, That this resolution be presented to the Regional Group Meeting of the New York State Regional Code authority to be held at Olean on this day and date, with the request that it be adopted by them and forwarded to the Code Administration of the State of New York."

The Cattaraugus county delegates concurred in the passage.

FROST DAMAGE TO SEED POTATOES

Examine the Tubers Weeks Ahead of Planting Date, Advises Cornell Professor.

Many potato growers are wondering how much damage sub-zero temperatures have done to seed potatoes in storage this past winter, observes Professor E. V. Hardenburg of the New York State college of agriculture who says that the extent of damage depended on how far below the freezing point the temperature went, how long it remained below this point, and the sugar content of the tuber.

Temperatures below freezing, he notes, may cause chilling, frost injury, or freezing injury. Chilling injury refers to development of a sweetish taste without visible injury to the flesh. Frost injury is similar to that caused by freezing but usually refers to damage done before harvest. Actual freezing injury ranges from a slight discoloration to a complete breakdown of the tuber flesh. To determine serious damage quickly, the tubers should be taken to a warm room, cut in half, and exposed to the air a few minutes. If the cut surfaces become reddish or greenish-yellow color, the damage is probably serious.

"If after long exposure only certain areas become brown or black, the injury may be less serious, depending on the extent of the discoloration. Usually the stem portion of the tuber will show freezing injury quicker than the seed end.

Following "Stored tubers," Professor Hardenburg says, "that are only slightly injured by freezing and show just a little flesh discoloration may be suitable for planting. Tubers should be examined several weeks ahead of planting date to determine if new seed is advisable. The best test is to clip off about an inch from the stem end. Often the discoloration is confined to the ring in the potato. If the cut is made too close to the stem of the tuber, the blackening of the ring may be confused with that caused by the wilt disease. If the area around the ring is killed, or the inner flesh blackened, the tubers should not be used for seed.

"Another way, tho not as reliable, is to examine the sprouts that develop in storage. Partially-frozen tubers may develop sprouts and still not produce strong plants when cut and planted. It is safe to say that if the central sprout in each eye appears normal, and very little injured tissue is near the stem end of the tubers, the potatoes are suitable for planting."

Payments Slow Coming In

Since publication of the county Allegany county tax sale on Monday, May 7th, it was expected there would be quite a payment of taxes to avoid the sale of farm and other properties over the county. But County Treasurer Claude L. Cummings reports that payments have come in at a very slow rate this year.
