1934 LEGISLATION ON MOTOR VEHICLES

eign consulates in the State of New York" shall be registered free provided there is reciprocity.

Chapter 412, effective June 1, 1934, amends Sections 11 and 41 by harmonizing the language between companion provisions relating to motor vehicles and motor cycles, respectively, correcting some obvious defects in the old language and making a much needed change with respect to furnishing number plates to be used in place of those which have become mutilated or lost. The new law permits the commissioner upon an application by a motor vehicle or motor cycle owner who has lost his number plate or plates to furnish either a duplicate or a substitute. The expense of making a duplicate is very great, and consequently, it is important that it should be legal to furnish a substitute. The fee provided in the new law for furnishing either one plate or a set of plates is $1.00 and provision is made for the requirement of full proof of the facts of the loss of any plate claimed to have been lost.

Chapter 426, effective June 1, 1934, adds a new subdivision to Section 11 and to Section 41 and marks a departure from former things. A new law makes it legal for the Commissioner to issue registrations at one-half the annual fee on the preceding Friday whenever the first day of July falls on Saturday, Sunday or Monday. In other words, in certain years registrations will be issued at one-half the annual fee slightly earlier than July 1st for the accommodation of the public. The reason for this innovation is found in the common practice of taking a week end trip including Independence Day whenever that day comes at or near the week-end. Under the old law, such a trip was greatly curtailed for those who were securing half-year registration whenever the first of July fell on Saturday, Sunday or Monday.

Chapter 469, effective June 1, 1934, amends Section 12. It is designed to prevent the display of number plates on any vehicle other than the vehicle registered under the number appearing on such number plates. The measure provides that upon a conviction for displaying improper number plates the number plates shall be surrendered to the court for delivery to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. As an aid to the police it is provided that the failure to produce the certificate of registration renewal stub of a vehicle shall be presumptive evidence of displaying number plates not proper for the vehicle. The measure also modifies the law with respect to the ownership of number plates by providing that all number plates issued shall remain the property of the state until the correct registration fee is paid. After the correct registration fee is paid, the number plates will belong to the registrant.

Chapter 432, effective May 9, 1934, amends Section 14 with respect to the maximum length of a combination of vehicles. This new chapter reduces the total length of a combination of vehicles from 65 feet to 50 feet. The vehicles which were exempt from the maximum length under the old law are exempt under the new law and in addition fire vehicles are exempt. The chapter carries a special provision, however, that a combination of vehicles registered in this state prior to May 9th, 1934, may have a total length of 65 feet until February 1, 1938. In other words, a combination of vehicles having New York registration on the effective date of the act will not be affected by the amendment until Feb. 1, 1938. It will be governed by the old maximum of 65 feet until that date. Any combination of vehicles not registered in New York prior to May 9, 1934, will be subject to the 50-foot limitation, hence, no combinations of vehicles operating in New York State outside New York City under foreign registration may exceed 50 feet in length except in rare cases where those vehicles had New York registration prior to May 9, 1934 unless the vehicles be among those excepted, namely, fire vehicles, vehicles of a corporation which is subject to the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission, the public service commission or other regulatory body and which are used in the construction, reconstruction, repair or maintenance of its property or facilities and vehicles hauling poles, girders, columns or other similar objects of great length.

Chapter 433, effective June 1, 1934, amends Section 15 to provide that every trailer and semitrailer weighing more than 1,000 pounds unladen manufactured after October 1, 1934, shall be equipped with adequate brakes in good working order if operated or drawn upon the public highways of this state.

Chapter 449, effective September 1, 1934, amends Section 15 in three principal particulars. (1) No light other than white or yellow may be displayed upon a passenger motor vehicles so as to be visible from a point directly in front of the vehicle "except an ambulance, a police vehicle, an omnibus having a seating capacity of more than seven passengers or an emergency vehicle of a public utility company." This amendment is designed to aid traffic policemen in giving the right of way to vehicles which should have the right of way. It should be noted that a fire vehicle is not a motor vehicle within the definition of that term contained in Section 2 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law and hence displaying red lights on the front of a fire vehicle is not in conflict with this amendment. (2) Every motor vehicle not otherwise required to have reflectors which is manufactured after January 1, 1935 must have at least one adequate reflector securely attached to the rear. Such reflector may be a part of the rear lamp. (3) Every reflector to meet the requirements of the law must be of a size and type approved by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. On and after September 1, 1934, displaying a reflector not of the size and type approved by the Commissioner will have no effect with respect to complying with the reflector law.

THE BOOK

A weekly review of the Book of Books, "The Holy Bible" and which contains Four Great Treasures . . . . . .

by BRUCE BARTON

JONAH AND THE WHALE

IN ISAIAH and Jeremiah we find the new thought of God's kindness gaining added force, but the book of Jonah gives the most interesting and probably the least appreciated glimpse of the development of the idea. Because of Jonah's mishap, which resulted in a three days' sojourn in the belly of a big fish, that book of four little chapters has been too often passed over lightly. It deserves recognition, for it contains the most compassionate note in the Old Testament.

Jonah was a preacher, and was ordered by God to go to Nineveh and denounce the city for its sins. Instead Jonah ran away, was caught in a storm at sea, thrown overboard by the sailors, and held in the belly of a great fish until he was thoroly repentant and ready to obey. After this severe lesson he went to Nineveh and announced that the city would be destroyed for its sins within 40 days. So convincing were his words that the rulers of the city ordered a general period of fasting and repentance.

> Who can tell (they cried) if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, and we perish not? And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil ways; and God repented of the evil, that he had said he would do unto them; and he did it not.

This was good luck for the people of Nineveh but it was hard on Jonah and "he was very angry." He reproached God, saying, "I knew you wouldn't go thru with your threat and that's why I tried to run away from this assignment." He went outside the city and sat down in a chair to watch and sulk and to see what would happen. The sun was hot and God caused a great gourd to grow up over Jonah and shelter him. But the next morning when Jonah thought he should be sitting pretty, God sent a worm to cut the stem of the gourd and it withered away. Then come the final verses which picture a more compassionate Jehovah than any of the Old Testament writers:

> Then said the Lord, Thou hast had pity on the gourd, for which thou hast not laboured, neither madest it grow; which came up in a night, and perished in a night:
> And should not I spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than sixscore thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand; and also much cattle?

What a noble utterance. What a long upward climb has been made since the days when the Israelites plundered cities and wiped out men, women and children under the conviction that they were working the will of God. The record of this upward progress is the Old Testament. It begins with savage people, merciless prophets and a terrible God. And it ends with a people who have learned humility thru suffering.

Two Await the September Grand Jury

Edgar A. Wilbur, 43, who gave his address as R. F. D. 1, Bolivar, was held to await the action of the September Grand Jury after examination by Justice of the Peace Victor Fredorne in the town of Cuba Friday, on a charge of forgery, second degree. Wilbur was returned to Allegany county last Thursday by Sergeant Harold L. DeBrine and Trooper Scott from Hudson, N. Y., where he was picked up and detained at the request of Allegany county authorities.

George W. Chandler, 21, also awaits the action of the Grand Jury, in Allegany county jail, having waived examination on a charge of forgery, when arraigned before Police Justice Frank Welch in Belmont last week. Chandler, who refused to make a statement to Sheriff Edson A. Brigham, was identified by Merle Criss, manager of the Belmont Market Basket store, as the youth who cashed an alleged worthless $39.79 check at his store. The First Trust Company of Wellsville returned the check, claiming it to be a forgery. Chandler had previously been indicted for forgery and pleaded guilty to petit larceny several months before.

COST OF ELECTRICITY CAME DOWN

Now twice as much electricity costs her only a few cents a day more

"I watch our pennies pretty closely in our house," Mrs. M——* told us, "and I find our electricity is the cheapest thing we buy. During the past few years, we've bought a new electric refrigerator, a washing machine, vacuum cleaner, toaster, and kitchen mixer. And they have more than doubled our use of electricity. Yet our bills average only a few cents a day more than they did a few years ago."

Compare your own electric bills. Count the new appliances you've added in the past few years. You'll be surprised to see how much more electricity you're using, at little or no increase in cost. Yes, electricity is the biggest bargain you buy.

The Other Fellow

We are all more or less deluded by the idea that our actions, opinions and conclusions are the result of a logical analysis, while, as a matter of fact, they are largely following out a course of action developed by environment; in their cupidity for initiative, mankind is still akin to many animals of the lower order.

We follow parades, we watch our neighbors and copy even their idiosyncrasies, we join fraternal orders and dress ourselves with strange and barbarous costumes. We are saturated with superstition and weighted with paganism; but in defiance to all this, we are as intelligent and kind and considerate a people as the experience and the civilization of all the ages has been able to effect.

Relying on this trait of human conduct, we wish to direct your attention to a phase of the initiative that many people have found profitable, economical and altogether satisfactory. We break the news—Use Moore's Paint!
