Aims Ordinance at Laundry Trucks

At the direction of the trustees, the village attorney of Wellsville is drafting an ordinance to require dry cleaners and laundry concerns who solicit business there, as well as other canvassers and hucksters, to take out licenses, the fee for nonlocal firms thus soliciting business to be $100. Seven laundry concerns now send trucks to Wellsville, it is reported. The ordinance will not apply to bread trucks, as this would be to invite litigation, the board of trustees was advised.

Good work, Wellsville. That is a step in the right direction—but only a step. Now please go a step farther and get your attorney busy drawing up an ordinance that will keep your own trucks, peddlers, handbill slingers, store flyers, and newspaper solicitors at home and not bothering your neighbors and you will have accomplished something.

Third of Income Goes Into Taxes!

Washington, D. C. "All of us realize that the tax burden is rapidly becoming more and more unbearable, if not indeed confiscatory," said Silas Strawn of Chicago, formerly president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in addressing the general session of that body. "We cannot prosper if we continue to spend one-third of our income for the support of governments."

Mr. Strawn made a plea for drastic reductions in the expenditures of all governmental bodies, national, state and local, in order to bring their budgets into balance rather than to attempt to balance them thru increasing already excessive taxes. He insisted that government al budgets must be balanced before normal credit and business conditions could be brought back to normal.

Get on the Band Wagon
Every home nowadays has more or less linoleum covered floors. They look well and wear a long time if properly cared for, but usual methods of care are laborious and require frequent attention.

The up to date home keeper who is posted on the cheap, easy way of getting the most satisfaction from their surfaced floor coverings is using Lin-X, which is neither a varnish nor a lacquer, but a chemical formula developed thru a long period of research.

It is easy to apply, dries quickly, gives a high lustre, is not slippery and provides a surface that will withstand grueling punishment for a long, long time—hot water, hot grease, scouring compounds or even alcohol base products have no effect on its beauty or durability.

If you have some left over from treating Linoleum, recoat some door ways, table tops, or any place where it will receive unusual wear and then watch its resistance; it will surprise you. Pint cans, eighty square feet covering capacity, 75 cents; the sooner you use it the more quickly you will begin to really enjoy your printed or inlaid covered floors.

Back Again
Another assortment of Red Skin Gloves, look like rubber but are stronger and more elastic than can be produced from the finest rubber yet available.

They are odorless, stainless, as elastic as natural skin but protect and keep hands soft, plump and healthy, no matter what the labor involved.

If you paid $1.00 you could not buy better value but Red Skins remain at the old low price, 25c a pair.
