The Christmas Grouch

ALONG about this time of year the Christmas grouch begins to breathe and come to life, and he dies hard, too.

There are many of them in every community and lots of families have at least one with which to contend. The Christmas grouch is someone who thinks gifts are foolish and that money spent in making others happy at this season is wasted.

It pains him sorely to see money wasted, it grieves him to see the Christmas tree cut down; he thinks it is a sin to tell the children about Santa Claus; he scolds about shopping; he is sorry for the postman who has to carry so many large bundles; he bemoans the fate of those who indulge in Christmas buying because they will all be in debt and start the new year wrong; he believes the sentiment that was formerly attached to Christmas is all gone because it has been commercialized; he thinks Christmas trees are a menace to life because he once knew a house that was set on fire by one; he declares it is a sin to spend money for flowers at Christmas.

The Christmas reformer has hundreds of ideas about how Christmas could be improved. He opines that the Christmas holidays mean nothing to him and that he will be glad when they have passed.

But Christmas remains Christmas just the same, for all the grouch's protests, and will be the same forever. The grouch casts a gloom over the household for a time, but even he can't resist the appeal of the happy Christmas season. Sooner or later he will be ashamed of himself and join in the merriment.

Placing Responsibility

"WHO is responsible?" When anything goes wrong or is neglected, this is generally the first question asked.

It never occurs to the questioner that it may be he or she who is responsible—that responsibility may be traced to his or her own doorstep.

It may not be a direct responsibility. The causes leading up to the trouble are due to neglect, which is often more dangerous than positive acts.

Those who ask this common question never search their own deeds or misdeeds, or even negligence. They never realize that they may be responsible because they failed to warn in advance against the danger that lay ahead.

A citizen's duty does not end with the election of public officials. Having elected them, it is incumbent upon all who are interested in the welfare of the community and its people to consult, advise and cooperate with them, to the end that they may have all the information possible as a basis for their public acts.

We may expect children to cry over spilled milk, but never people who have reached mature years. If the warning is seen and not acted on, then there is nothing to do except take the medicine in whatever size doses the directions say.

Add to useless things—a breakfast nook. Dad grabs his at the restaurant and the rest of the family doesn't get up till noon.

Two most plentiful things: Trouble and advice for the farmers.

Our Modern Day Schools

THE public high school as it exists today is distinctly American, and is of comparatively recent development in the history of educational institutions. The first public high school was founded in the city of Boston in 1821. Today approximately 18,000 high schools thruout America are bringing educational opportunities within easy reach of more than two and one-half million boys and girls.

Prior to the development of the public high school the only training beyond the elementary level was provided in the Latin Grammar schools, during the period from 1635 to 1750, and thru private and religious academies during the century from 1750 to 1850. Since 1850 the rise of the American high school has been rapid. Altho founded originally to provide preparation for the college courses that led directly into professions, it has in the late decades broadened its courses of study to meet the widely varying and rapidly changing conditions of modern life. The high school has become the "people's college," bringing within easy reach of every child the opportunity to train for a fuller life while at the same time developing specific vocational skills and abilities.

The high school of a generation ago included only those pupils who expected to attend college. Today practically all the children of all the people, regardless of vocational interest are coming under the influence of some high school. In order to meet the needs of this increased enrollment, the curriculum must be gauged in accordance with the varying interest and capacities of the larger group. A great modern educator has said: "It is the business of the school to teach the child to do better the things he is most likely to do anyhow."

In light of this principle, the secondary school program of studies must be conceived and operated so as to enforce, guide, and direct the activities of the pupils both within the school, and in relation to other educational activities in the community.

The high school of today is comparable to the college of yesterday.

The Management of Homes

THE management of a household is the purchasing agent for a large proportion of the family needs. In order to take care of the job right, she must know what, when and where to buy. She must study goods and stores which have them to sell. She must put her home on a business basis and run it on business principles in order to make the most of the family income.

Information is the only basis for intelligent purchasing. And the right way to get the greatest amount of necessary information is to read the advertisements in this paper.

These advertisements will tell you what is new and good in merchandise. They reveal improvements and inventions that make home life easier, more comfortable and more convenient. They give you information about a thousand and one things that are useful and interesting. They tell where you can buy to best advantage, when you can get the lowest prices and best quality.

Every manager of a household—every member of a household who shares in the responsibility for the family's welfare—should make a practice of reading the advertisements. They are daily lessons in economy.

The local merchants realize these essentials facts in regard to advertising and they are endeavoring to be of service to the home managers of this community by advertising what they have to sell.

What you fall for isn't as important as what you stand for, which isn't as important as what you help with.

What has become of the old-fashioned woman who always put on a clean apron before calling on the neighbors?

Give us a man who sings at his work, to quote from a well known writer, but not one who croons.

Another queer thing about America that a foreigner might not understand is why we loaf on Labor Day.

A DISH FOR THE WEEK

Whole wheat with dates and nuts, topped with a delicious custard sauce and a dash of tart jelly makes a dessert combination hard to beat.

Date Nut Whole Wheat Pudding

½ cup of walnut meats, chopped finely.
1 cup of dates, cut in medium-sized pieces.
Two-thirds cup of sugar.
1 tablespoon of flour.
Two-thirds tablespoon baking powder.
4 egg whites.
1 cup of ready-prepared, rolled whole-wheat cereal.
2 tablespoons of lemon juice.

Sift together the flour and baking powder, and add it to the sugar and the whole wheat flakes, mixed together. Add the walnuts, dates and lemon juice, and mix them thoroly. Fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites. Spread the mixture about two inches thick in a greased tin. Bake at about 350 degrees Fahrenheit, until the egg whites have set and the pudding is a delicate brown on top. Serve with a soft custard made of the four egg yolks and four cups of milk, four tablespoons of sugar, one teaspoon of vanilla, and a pinch of salt. Heat the milk, add the sugar and pour the mixture slowly over the beaten egg yolks. Stir constantly. Cook the mixture in a double-boiler, and stir constantly until the egg coats the spoon. Do not allow the water in the bottom of the double boiler to boil, as such a high temperature will cause the custard to curdle.

Whole wheat pudding makes a fitting dessert for the following meal, says the New York State college of home economics. Veal loaf, baked potatoes, crisp celery, stewed tomatoes, bread and butter, and milk for all.

Reports from the 12 federal land banks indicate that farm land is attracting higher prices in almost every section of the country.

WEAK AND SKINNY MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN
Saved by new Vitamins of Cod Liver Oil in tasteless tablets.
Pounds of firm healthy flesh instead of bare scrawny bones! New vigor, vim and energy instead of tired listlessness! Steady, quiet nerves! That is what thousands of people are getting through scientists' latest discovery—the Vitamins of Cod Liver Oil concentrated in little sugar coated tablets without any of its horrid, fishy taste or smell. McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, they are called! "Cod Liver Oil in Tablets", and they simply work wonders. A little boy, 4 years, scaly sick, got well and gained 16½ lbs. in just one month. A girl of thirteen after the same disease, gained 8 lbs. the first week and 8 lbs. each week after. A young mother who could not eat or sleep after baby came got all her health back and gained 10 lbs. in less than a month.
You simply must try McCoy's at once. Remember if you don't gain at least 2 lbs. of firm healthy flesh in a month get your money back. Demand and get McCoy—the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablets—approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Refuse all substitutes. Insist on the original McCoy's—there are none better.

GREENWOOD

(Mrs. H. C. McCaffery, Reporter)

Community Fair a Success

The first community festival in Greenwood, held in the Masonic hall came to a close Saturday evening after two days of festivity and was voted a success by all concerned.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal church opened the ceremonies with one of their famous dinners. A large crowd attended. The entertainment Friday evening was in charge of the Eastern Star and was made up of musical numbers both vocal and instrumental, furnished by Miss Ruth Bess, Lloyd Chaffee, Elwood Clark, Leonard Dennis and Walter Redmond. The hit of the evening was an old-fashioned dance done by Mr. and Mrs. Dever Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bess, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McCaffery, Mrs. Francis Vickers and M. L. Brundage. Music for the dance was furnished by the Allen orchestra with Freeman Rogers acting as caller.

On Saturday the Needlecraft Society of the Latter Day Saints church served a chicken dinner which was well patronized. Mrs. Shirley Travis directed the Darky show put on by a group of young people Saturday evening. It was much enjoyed by a large audience and merited much praise for both director and participants.

The Ever Ready Class, McGavern Class, Rebekah Lodge, Grange, Camp Fire booths and the Epworth League fish pond were all very well patronized.

It is hoped that this will be an annual affair.

A Rival for Durante

At last Eugene Pallette's schnozzle has assumed a place of importance on the American screen.

Gene Pallette and his nose are coming to the Temple Theatre Friday and Saturday, when "One Exciting Adventure," Binnie Barnes' second American film, is shown for the first time. Gene and his partner, Grant Mitchell, enact the roles of Europe's worst team of detectives. With them in this outstanding romantic thriller appear Neil Hamilton and Paul Cavanaugh.

For 20 years Gene has contributed to the humor of the screen, appearing in many distinguished stories including "Fair and Warmer," "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," and "Douglas Fairbanks' "Three Musketeers."

"Cheating Cheaters

Cesar Romero, leading man in "Cheating Cheaters," was once embarked on a banking career. His father wanted him to follow the financial game, but Cesar had ideas of his own, which eventually led him to a screen career.

"Cheating Cheaters," with Fay Wray in the feminine lead, is showing this week at the Temple theatre.

LOW COST ELECTRICITY
keeps her home running smoothly

A FEW years ago Mrs. R. used only half the electricity she does today, yet she paid almost as much.
Now—from the first ring of the electric alarm clock, until the radio and the last lights are clicked off at bedtime—electricity helps to keep her home running smoothly for a few cents. Her new appliances have added only a cent or two a day to her electric bills.

Electricity today is the biggest bargain you buy. It's like buying groceries or other commodities. The greater quantity you use, the bigger bargain you get.

HOW, WHAT and WHY?

The Andover News has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State colleges of agriculture and home economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Strong Soap

Mrs. W. S., Delhi, writes: "We make our own soap, and the lye seems too strong for the hands. Can borax be used in place of lye? What is a good recipe for mild soap?"

Ella M. Cushman of the New York State college of home economics replies: "Borax cannot be used in place of lye to make soap, as the borax is not strong enough. Some persons add borax to their soap, but I do not think this is necessary. Any home-made soap has enough free alkali to cut grease in laundry.

"If the lye seems too strong, perhaps you do not allow the soap to season five or six weeks before it is used. It takes that long for the lye to combine with the fat.

"I suggest this recipe for mild soap: Six pounds of hard fat, either beef or mutton; six cups of water and one can of lye. Not as much water is needed with a soft fat, and a blended fat is better than fat that is all hard or all soft.

"Pour the lye carefully in the cold water; stir it with a wooden paddle until it dissolves. When it is cool, pour the clarified fat slowly into the lye solution, and stir it vigorously. Lavender oil may be added during the beating if desired. Beat it about 10 or 15 minutes before it is poured into heavy pasteboard boxes lined with heavy waxed paper. Allow the solution to stand in a warm place until it hardens, then cut it into bars before it is too hard to cut without breaking. Wrap the bars in waxed paper, and store them in a tight box for five or six weeks before they are used.

"To prevent graining, have the fat only warm enough to be in a liquid state, or about lukewarm."

Care of House Plants

Mrs. L. G. H., Massena asks: "What can be sprayed on house plants to control lice?"

Grace H. Griswold of the department of entomology answers: "A copy of Cornell bulletin E-162 has been sent to you. It tells how to control aphids on house plants. Others who have the same trouble with their plants may obtain a free copy of this publication from the office of publication, Roberts Hall, Ithaca, New York."

Who Keeps Records?

B. L. B. asks: "How many farmers kept cost accounts in 1934?"

The answer: "For the crop year 1934, accounts are being kept on 143 farms in New York State. Last year, 74 farmers kept cost accounts. Of this number, five farmers have continuous records for 15 years or more; three have such records for from 10 to 14 years, and 26 have continuous records for from five to nine years."

BALDWIN SUGGESTS MILK LAW CHANGES

Terms Present Legislation Constructive and Warns Against Radical Changes Without Considering Many Factors.

Commissioner Charles H. Baldwin recommended five changes in milk legislation to the recent annual meeting of the New York State Farm Bureau Federation.

The new features are:

1. Uniform control over the entire milk shed to be secured by joint state and federal co-operation.

2. The equalization of markets so that every producer sharing in the fluid market will receive his just share of the profitable market.

3. Protection for co-operative associations so that eventually every dairymen in the shed will be a member of some co-operative association which will work together for the benefit of all and be in a position to protect the dairymen's best interests when emergency legislation is unnecessary.

4. Protection of dairymen's financial interests so that it will be necessary to establish prices only to the dairy farmers and the dairy farmers will be assured that they will receive the price that is established.

5. Continued constructive milk promotional work to maintain the gains that have been made and to secure the benefits that can be expected as a result of the intensive promotional campaign which is now being carried on.

He explained regarding the fourth recommendation, that consumers' prices must be maintained to protect the dairymen's money. When it can be arranged so the milk dealer has his own money invested in the milk he will not be so free to sell at cut prices.

"I am hoping the new law will contain some provision to protect the dairymen's interest so when milk is delivered the dairyman will know that he will be paid for the milk. This will make it quite unnecessary to set prices to the consumer, but until greater protection is given to dairymen it is needless to talk about abolishing prices to consumers. I believe we are working along constructive lines and it will be best for everyone to consider many factors before suggesting radical changes in the present law," he said.

Dry Towns

More than 170 Pennsylvania townships and boroughs voted to return to prohibition in the Nov. 6th election, returns show. Lewisville, in Potter county, was among them.

State College, Pa., where Penn State College is located, voted dry 1,270 to 868 votes.
