

its success! On the Church of Christ they have had little power, except to strengthen and exalt it.

The true Sailor declared, when about ascending to reign over his Kingdom, "All power is given unto me in heaven and on earth."

This power penetrates all depths of matter, leaves in the roll of the sea, administers back of thrones, tempers the course of history, and turns and overturns, till He, whose right it is, shall reign.

Nations are beginning to awake from the sleep of ages, and to bathe their eyes in the beams of the Sun of righteousness.

Pilgrims that wandered long in the deserts of earth, are nearing the Canaan of their hopes.

Pagan tribes are learning a new name, and shall soon lift the gloom of the redeemed, when this world shall be given to him whose cross shall be the theme of every tongue and the object of every eye.

The prospect of that ultimate glory has kindled into rapture the vision of prophecies; it has animated the souls of the Church in all ages; it was given in death by Son of God, when he endured the cross and despised the shame. If we could see with clearer sight we should discover that the wide earth where we dwell is a vast Patmos, over which are opening glorious visions of the Kingdom of Christ. When it shall reign from pole to pole, and his final revelation—his last judgment—shall break forth, like hidden flame from the eyelid affections of a converted world.

Christianity is marshaling its hosts for a conquest of greater grandeur than earth has known. In day of victory draws nigh. The great procession of triumph marches to the final jubilee. Royals and princes move with their squadrons. Bands of delivered captives swell all its ranks. Their songs of rejoicing are wafted across continents and seas. The King of Zion shall appear in her midst, while her banners wave from every tall of regalia on the globe. This earth, awhile revolted from God, shall surrender to His Son, temples, and treasures, and thrones. All humanity will hail the glory of this day; all humanity take up its shout of joys, and while the human flashes of the radiant sky blend with the richer reflections from wings of skeletal demons descending near to earth, the harmonies above and beneath shall culminate in one song: "Alleluia! the Lord God omnipotent reigneth; for the Kingdom of this world are become the Kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ." Amen. So note it be.
